Impeachment panel sifts jury evidence

WASHINGTON (A) — The House Judiciary Committee is getting its first look at the celebrated briefcase full of grand jury evidence relating to President Nixon's role in the Watergate cover-up.

The material, forwarded to the committee for its impeachment inquiry by Judge John J. Sirica of U.S. District Court, has been examined by the chairman, ranking Republican member and chief staff lawyers, but has not been available to committee members until today.

Now, after months of being kept in the dark about it and other evidence gathered by the impeachment staff, the committee will start considering the case for and against Nixon's impeachment.

The opening of the crucial phase of the inquiry will be marked by a round of speeches in public session, after which the committee will go into executive session to consider evidence bearing on the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said Wednesday the closed sessions probably would continue through next week, after which a decision will be made on opening them.

Another decision facing the committee is what to do about Nixon's refusal to give it any more Watergate material. The committee has subpoenaed tapes of 42 presidential conversations dealing with Watergate and has a request pending for 76 more.

At a Democratic caucus Wednesday there was unanimous support for issuing a new subpoena, but divided opinion on when it should be issued and what it should cover.

The most likely course to be followed was suggested by the senior Republican, Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, at a news conference with Rodino.

Hutchinson said that when gaps appear in the presentation of evidence and Chief Counsel John Doar says they could be filled by material sought from the White House, the committee could decide then whether to request it again.

Hutchinson said that rather than issue a subpoena, he would prefer to negotiate the matter with Nixon's lawyer, James D. St. Clair, who will be

Ohio House faces flood of new bills

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Both houses of the legislature held skeleton sessions Wednesday in advance of floor sessions next Tuesday formally reopening their 1974 deliberations.

It was the cut off date for bill introductions in the House, and members poured 73 new proposals into that chamber. The Senate set no cutoff date, and none was introduced.

Speaker A.G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, set no target date for adjournment of the session which started Jan. 2, but reiterated he hopes the lawmakers can wind up "some time in June."

The legislature was in recess from April 4, a break that gave members a chance to campaign in the May 7 primary election. It paid off for all but three.

Only 22 incumbents had primary opposition in the House, and they all won renomination. The lower chamber wound up 14 lame ducks, however — those who decided to retire or to run for higher office. Their terms expire the first of next year.

Three incumbent senators were defeated — Sens. Harry L. Armstrong, R-17 Logan; Howard C. Cook, R-1 Toledo, and Anthony F. Novak, D-23 Cleveland.

Subjects of the 73 new House bill covered a wide range, including a pair by Rep. Jerome P. Stano, D-7 Parma, on highway safety. He proposed the

Trudeau out; vote in July

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's political parties began preparing today for a general election in July after the toppling of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's Liberal government. Inflation was certain to be the major campaign issue.

By a 137-123 vote, the House of Commons adopted a motion of no confidence in Trudeau's minority government. The 54-year-old prime minister said he would call on Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger today to ask him to dissolve the lower house and call an election.

Election day is expected to be July 8. Meanwhile, Trudeau and the Liberal cabinet continue in office as a caretaker government.

Trudeau said in a telecast after his defeat that he welcomed the electoral fight but considered the interruption of parliament while the country faced inflationary problems "unfortunate and unnecessary."

Trudeau was brought down by the New Democratic Party, Canada's third largest political faction, whose support had kept him in office since the Liberal majority in Commons was reduced to a minority by the 1972 election.

Parking, subdivision measures OKd

Council paves way for new industry

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald City Editor

City Council members Wednesday night assisted in clearing the path for a new industrial plant interested in locating in Washington C.H.

Council members unanimously adopted a resolution to cooperate in the location of a new industry for Washington C.H. The new plant, the identity of which was not disclosed, will manufacture fiber glass and polyethelene tanks, according to the formal resolution.

In other legislative matters, Council adopted new subdivision regulations for Washington C.H. and formally approved changes in parking meter enforcement hours.

However, before the approval of five items of legislation, Council member Mrs. Bertha McCullough said she had "second thoughts" regarding the passage of legislation carrying emergency tags.

Mrs. McCullough was concerned because she felt, after receiving complaints from other city residents, that emergency tags on legislation constituted a tool used by Council to enact laws without adequately informing the public.

It was explained by Council Chairman John E. Rhoads that emergency tags merely expedite passage of legislation. Three readings of an ordinance are not required when rules are suspended under emergency legislation procedures and publication of the proposed legislation is not requred.

City Manager Dan Wolford explained that emergency legislation also deletes a 30-day period following passage for enactment of the legislation. He also said that the word emergency does not necessarily suspend the second and third readings of an ordinance.

SUBDIVISION regulations, which have been described earlier as "a stimulus for well-planned community growth," were adopted as emergency legislation by Council. The new standards had been submitted to Council with a strong endorsement for approval by the City Planning Commission.

The regulations were originally proposed early in 1973, but were delayed after City Council had requested a number of revisions.

It was again pointed out that the regulations were prepared with the professional assistance of a number of experts including developers, surveyors, engineers and architects in addition to personnel from the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development in Columbus.

The regulations, which have been applauded by developers, builders and other authorities, will replace the present standards established in 1962.

A public hearing was held during the opening portion of the Council meeting to provide residents with the opportunity to voice objections to the regulations. No objections were voiced.

Wolford pointed out that state regulations forced some new amendments in the city's subdivision standards. He said the regulations contain a consistent explanation of exactly what is expected from developers.

Council member Hugh Patton said

Council offers new pay package

A new salary and benefits proposal for city employes has been drafted by Washington C. H. City Council members, it was disclosed at Wednesday night's meeting of the legislative body.

Council members huddled in an unannounced "work session" prior to Wednesday's regular meeting to hash over the new proposal.

Chairman John E. Rhoads said the new offer has not yet been delivered to city department heads. Contents of the package were not disclosed.

The new proposal was drafted after representatives of the Washington C. H. police and fire departments expressed displeasure over a previous salary and benefit improvement package last Friday.

The major disagreement between police officers and firemen over Council's proposal is that the package did not contain any immediate provisions for a salary increase as requested by both departments in correspondence submitted earlier this year.

The police and fire departments submitted proposals, which included salary hikes and other fringe benefits, to Council more than two months ago and the city's legislators returned the counter proposal April 22.

PROPOSALS for all individual city departments differed and apparently all sections, except the police and fire departments were satisfied with Council's plan, Rhoads indicated.

Police officers had requested pay increases amounting to about 15 per cent in their original proposal, while the fire department's request contained an approximate 10 per cent pay raise.

Council's counter proposal to both departments included revised health care insurance coverage, increased uniform allowances and life insurance policies.

Chester Hamulak, 1028 Center St., criticized Council members for not providing a pay increase for the city employes.

"These dedicated men need better wages," Hamulak said.

The frequent Council visitor also mentioned that a number of concerned citizens had conducted a survey which disclosed that at least 50 per cent of the city's residents would be in favor of a one-half per cent income tax.

Nixon drowns scandal with words

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After futile efforts to dam up Watergate, the White House apparently is trying now to drown the scandal in a deluge of words.

That's half the strategy. The other half is to stonewall it against further disclosures of White House tape recordings demanded by Congress and the special prosecutor.

Public release of the edited Watergate transcripts, and the series of White House analyses, speeches and comments that have followed, add up to an intensive campaign to get across the President's version of the story.

One assumption in that effort has to be that, however many Americans take the time to read the 1,254 pages of edited conversations about Watergate, almost everybody will know that the President made them public.

In that campaign, the act of releasing the White House transcripts was itself a crucial step, whatever reading they get and whatever construction is put upon their ambiguities. It was unprecedented, and it put the White House in a position to say that the President, by his own decision, had revealed "the whole story of Watergate."

The President and his men are stressing two themes: That the transcripts, for all the scars they may put on Nixon's image, show him innocent of knowledge of Watergate or it's cover-up, and that everything relevant to the case has now been made public.

The key is relevance and the fact is that the White House decided what fits that description.

House impeachment investigators do not agree that the whole story is out. Furthermore, they want to judge for themselves what is relevant, not only in the transcript tapes but in other recordings of White House conversations.

The House Judiciary Committee seeks tape recordings of nearly 150 conversations not covered by the transcripts, involving Watergate and such other issues as dairy cooperative campaign contributions and the ITT antitrust settlement.

The President says he will yield no more on Watergate, but left room for negotiations on evidence in the other areas.

Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski seeks tapes of 64 presidential conversations, including 20 covered in the edited transcripts.

The Senate Watergate committee, saying it doesn't trust the transcripts, still is battling in court for five Watergate tape recordings—which the others already have.

So while the President has released a pile of transcripts, it is only a fraction of what is being sought. His lawyer, James D. St. Clair, says the demand would be never-ending if Nixon yielded more.

The edited tape transcripts are a

Transcripts bring mixed reaction

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ray Sauers took up President Nixon's invitation to read the edited transcripts of his private Watergate conversations, which Nixon said "will tell it all."

Sauers, one of the first to buy the blue-bound volume, doesn't think it does. Other first day purchasers think it does.

"It's a survival effort," Sauers concluded Wednesday after reading the critical March 21 conversation when then White House counsel John W.Dean III told Nixon of the full proportions of the Watergate break-in, conspiracy and coverup.

Sauers, 33, a research analyst from Birmingham, Mich., and his 8-year-old daughter, Laurie, were visiting Washington last week when the edited transcripts went on sale at the Government Printing Office bookstore. They were among the first in line when the doors opened at 8 a.m.

"The March 21 conversation convinces me ... hush money to (Watergate burglar E. Howard) Hunt was approved," Sauers said in a telephone interview from his home. "It does no more than re-enforce what I already believed ... These things (transcripts) hurt him."

A check with tourists, businessmen, housewives and lawyers who purchased the instant best-seller the first morning it was on the market indicates that many of them think the conversations raised more questions than they answered; most think the six-pound volume is worth the $12.25 it cost. All have read at least portions of the transcripts. None finished the entire volume.

"I've read some of the significant meetings," said Joshua Davidson, a customs lawyer from New York City who purchased the volume while in Washington on business. "I think I'm in apparent agreement with a good many legislators in Congress who feel it hasn't helped the President one bit. In fact, it's been the reverse."

Tom Gallian, owner of a McDonald's Hamburger franchise in Dunn, N.C., disagrees. He took time off from a Chamber of Commerce convention in Washington last week to pick up several copies of the edited transcripts.

After getting "about half through," he said, "I voted for him (Nixon), and probably would do so again. I think it's a comedy of errors the President got into. I have no conclusions yet whether he's guilty or innocent ... I think he should turn over the tapes ... So he swears a lot? What the hell? We all do."

Mrs. Marjorie Hooper, an English teacher in a Washington high school, said after reading about 400 pages of the transcripts, "I think he (Nixon) warrants impeachment. There was definitely a cover-up after March 21. After he was informed, the whole group entered into a conspiracy to obstruct justice.

"I've been floored by the depravity of the whole situation."

Gilligan and Glenn patch up differences

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Gov. John J. Gilligan and exastronaut John Glenn patched up their eight-month-old dispute Wednesday and began making plans on how to operate their fall campaigns.

Gilligan will be seeking reelection and Glenn was the upset victor in Tuesday's primary election over U.S. Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, whom Gilligan appointed and endorsed for the nomination.

"We're looking forward to uniting the party and going into the fall campaign," Gilligan said after the two emerged from an hour-long confab in the governor's office.

Gilligan noted that Democrats often were involved in hard-fought primaries but then united in the general elections.

"The national issues," he said, "are more important than primary animosities."

Campaign aides accompanied both men to the private meeting. Gilligan walked into the cabinet room, where Glenn was waiting, to escort him into his office.

"Hello senator," Gilligan said, as he walked in holding an outstretched hand.

"I like that confidence," Glenn smiled as the two shook hands.

When they emerged an hour later, Gilligan said they had spent much of the time going over statistics of past campaigns and discussing the one in November.

Glenn will face Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk. Perk, a Republican, defeated Canton businessman Peter Voss to win his party's nomination.

Glenn and Gilligan had been close friends until last September, when the governor urged Glenn to strengthen the state ticket by running for lieutenant governor.

Glenn, at a Sept. 18 meeting at Democratic headquarters, made public the offer and accused Gilligan and state party officials of trying to throw the endorsement to Metzenbaum. He called it "bossism."

Glenn said he hadn't given any thought to any changes he might want at Democratic headquarters since he will be leading the party ticket in November.

He did say that he thought the party might want to modify its endorsement procedure.

Both men agreed that their campaigns would dovetail with those of the entire party ticket in November. Gilligan will face former Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Gilligan and other regular Democrats urged support for Glenn.

But Metzenbaum gave no firm indication of what his position would be with regard to Glenn. He merely issued a statement saying he was returning to Washington to "continue to represent the people of Ohio in the United States Senate until my term expires in mid-December."

Metzenbaum said he would "leave it to the political pundits to provide an analysis" of election results.

State Rep. Richard Celeste of Cleveland, who topped a ninecandidate field for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, said "I've always had a high regard for John Glenn.

"He has demonstrated he can and will campaign hard."

Gilligan won the nomination over the relatively unknown James D. Nolan of Cleveland, who surprisingly received nearly 300,000 votes out of about a million cast.

Rhodes swept to an easy triumph in the Republican primary over state Rep. Charles Fry of Springfield and Columbiana County Engineer Bert A. Dawson.

The votes hardly had been counted when Gilligan and Rhodes exchanged verbal brickbats.

Gilligan said his administration's four-year record would be on the line. Rhodes said "the Gilligan Gougers"

Wholesale price increases slow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sharp declines in farm and food prices slowed the rise in wholesale prices in April to its slowest rate in six months, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said wholesale prices increased seven-tenths of one per cent seasonally adjusted and five-tenths of one per cent unadjusted.

The increase was still high by normal standards but considerably below increases recorded since November.

April's rise compared with adjusted increases of 1.3 per cent in March, 1.2 per cent in February and 3.1 per cent in January.

Businesses crack anti-inflation front

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council's heralded anti-inflation commitments from big business appear about to crack unless Congress votes to hold them together.

Ford Motor Co. announced Wednesday price increases averaging $163 for its 1974 autos, and the council said General Motors was planning to follow suit.

The Ford increase was quickly branded by Council Director John T. Dunlop as unwarranted and in violation of Ford's commitment last December not to increase prices further for 1974 models, barring unforeseen major economic events.

A council source said Ford may have blundered in its timing since the announcement could provide additional incentive for Congress to grant the council authority to enforce anti-inflation commitments.

The Senate scheduled a vote for today on a bill that would grant enforcement authority to the council. The old authority expired on April 30 with the rest of the administration's wage and price control program.

About 300 major businesses in 17 industries made anti-inflation commitments to the council in exchange for early release from the government's wage and price controls before April 30.

Dunlop heralded these commitments at the time as being a major help in the fight against inflation.

Defections from the commitments also accentuated problems facing William E. Simon, sworn in Wednesday as Treasury Secretary, succeeding George P. Shultz.

At a White House ceremony, Simon said inflation was his No. 1 challenge. He called for a "new political will" by Congress and the administration to bring it under control.

The Labor Department today releases its Wholesale Price Index for April, which was expected to show another big jump in some wholesale prices.

Dunlop told newsmen inflation is boring deeper into the economy and may be reaching the point where it is irreversible.

After the Ford increase was announced, Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., said it showed a need for new standby control authority.

The administration backs the legislation to give it new authority to enforce commitments, but it opposes standby controls. It argues they would only induce additional wage and price increases.

Gilligan seeks lottery cash for 'human needs' programs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan said today he will ask the General Assembly to spend $43.5 million in proceeds from Ohio's new state lottery on "important, innovative programs to meet human needs."

Gilligan proposed the first $14.9 million from the lottery be used to pay off bonds financing the state's program of bonuses for Vietnam era veterans.

Next, he said, $12.5 million should be earmarked as "state matching money for all of the vocational education levies approved in the state to date."

He said the next $4.2 million would go for free transportation for senior citizens and $2.76 million would match federal money for emergency medical service programs for Cleveland, Cincinnati, Parma, Springfield and Toledo.

The governor, in unveiling his proposal, discounted reports of a surplus in the state treasury at the end of the year.

He said current projections show tax revenues running at about the level forecast by the legislature when it adopted the biennial budget a year ago.

Said Gilligan: "There will be no surplus."

Gilligan suggested $2.5 million be spent to insure completion of the Appalachia Highway from Albany to Athens — it would be used to get $10 million in federal money—and not $2 million be used to underwrite the cost of paying patient workers at state hospitals.

He said another $1.54 million would go to the Ohio Development Center to stimulate growth of business and industry in Ohio and that the Ohio State Fair would get $1.5 million to bring facilities into compliance with health and safety regulations.

The governor proposed that $800,000 be spent for renovation and construction work at the state School for the Blind, $322,317 for operation of the new Ohio Emergency Energy Board, $262,494 to permit the Ohio Department of Natural Resources to take over Edgewater and Gordon parks on Lake Erie in Cleveland, $110,000 for disaster relief services for the residents of the tornado-torn Xenia area and $100,000 for Ohio's participation in the National Bicentennial Celebration.

Adoption authority clarified

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A county welfare department may not block an adoption proceeding that has the approval of a probate court, Ohio's Supreme Court has ruled.

The unanimous decision came Wednesday in a case involving Mr. and Mrs. Grover Hanna of Ravenna. The Portage County Welfare Department sought to prevent their adoption of a female child it originally placed in their custody Dec. 5, 1969, making them foster parents.

Records showed that in August 1972, the department removed the child from the Hannas' custody and placed her with another set of foster parents, James and Ruby Avery of Akron. The child, Antionette, had been with the Hannas since she was 12 days old.

The Hannas, subsequent to the removal of the child from their home, went into Portage County Probate Court and received approval of their application to adopt the child. The department and the Averys went into court to try to prohibit the adoption.

The Eleventh District Court of Appeals ruled against the Hannas on grounds the probate court lacked jurisdiction. It said state law requires the approval of the certifying agency (the department) in the approval of such an adoption.

However, the Supreme Court reversed the appeals court. Notwithstanding a requirement for the certifying agency to approve, the high court said the department may not act as "final arbiter" and "may not divest the probate court of its original and exclusive jurisdiction over adoption proceedings."

Kopechnes support Sen. Kennedy

SWIFTWATER, Pa. (AP) — The parents of Mary Jo Kopechne, who drowned when Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's car went off a bridge five years ago, say they will support the Massachusetts Democrat for President.

"We like the senator just as we liked his brothers, Robert and the President," said Gwen Kopechne, 56. "He stands for what I think is right. He's a lot better than what we've got now."

She and her husband, Joseph, 61, both said they thought Kennedy's political strength is in his appeal to youth. Kennedy, who has said he will decide next year about seeking the Presidency, has acknowledged the 1969 incident involving Miss Kopechne probably would be an issue if he runs.

in the committee room during the presentation.

But the Democrats and Doar appear to prefer a subpoena. Doar said at the news conference the issuance of a subpoena is the orderly, lawful way to proceed.

"It isn't a question of whether we will issue a subpoena, but when," said Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y.

Rodino said the opening phase of the presentation of evidence will be limited to Watergate, one of six areas of presidential conduct the committee is investigating.

Rodino said it probably will be the end of June before the committee is ready to vote on whether grounds exist for impeachment. House Majority Leader Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill said a full House vote on impeachment will take place about Aug. 1.

Other new measures offered in the House covered subjects ranging from hunting and strip mining to a series of measures which in various ways would increase state aid to public education.

Rep. Sam Speck, R-95 New Concord, proposed in one measure to guarantee all school districts in the state a $75 per pupil increase in their subsidies for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Other proposals would:

—Prohibit the use of public money to provide school busing designed solely to bring about racial balance in the schools.

—Require an adult to accompany and supervise anyone under 18 using a firearm while hunting.

—Appropriate $1.5 million for the Sundry Claims Board for emergency disaster grants to pay damages such as those resulting from the devastating tornadoes in Greene County last month.

—Require a license as well as a presently required permit to engage in strip mining in Ohio.

—Expand Ohio's instructional grant program for needy college students to include those enrolled part time.

Cloudy skies, fog and rain set the weather picture in Ohio Thursday morning with little change in conditions seen over the next 24 hours at least.

Rain fell in all sections of the state during the night but by dawn was falling mostly in eastern counties. Fog was spotty and most dense in the northwest. Temperatures show a wide spread, varying from near 40 in the northwest to the middle 50s in the southeast.

The morning weather map showed a low pressure center in central Lake Erie with a trough from there to southwest Ohio. Rain and mild temperatures are east of a trough. West of the trough there are lower temperatures, fog and some drizzle. The trough and low pressure center will move east beyond the state today. Skies will be mainly cloudy today, clearing for a time in western sections tonight.

Friday, the state will come under the influence of another low pressure center which will spread rain into western and southern Ohio and return the clouds.

Mild with a chance of showers Saturday through Monday. Highs in the 60s Saturday and in the 70s Sunday and Monday. Lows in the 50s.

Storms soak wide area

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms and showers soaked a broad stretch of the eastern third of the nation today ranging from the lower Great Lakes to the Deep South.

Rain that began in the Ohio and Tennessee valleys during the night spread to the eastern Great Lakes and into Alabama and Georgia before daybreak.

Thunderstorms of lesser intensity continued along a front over the central Plains, and showers were scattered across the central Plateau and Rockies. Isolated showers sprinkled southern Florida and sections of the Washington coast.

Fair to partly cloudy skies prevailed from the lower Mississippi Valley through the southern Plains and over many Western states.

Unseasonably chilly weather clung to much of the Midwest and Great Lakes region where readings in the 30s and 40s were common overnight.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 28 at Sawyer Air Force Base, Mich., to 83 at Needles and Daggett, Calif.

Stock list up again

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices continued to climb today but trading remained slow, as the attractiveness of bargain prices of many stocks outweighted investor fears of rising interest rates and inflation, brokers said.

The Dow Jones average climbed slowly but steadily to 858.40, up 7.50 points at noon and advancing issues broadened their lead on declines to 3 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange.

The broad-based NYSE index gained .22 and stood at 48.75 at noon.

On the American Stock Exchange, the index rose .49 to 87.60 at noon.

Westinghouse Electric was the Big Board's most actively traded stock, off ⅝ to 15⅞, followed by General Electric down ¾ to 51.

Turnblazer sentenced

PITTSBURGH (AP) — William J. Turnblazer, the man whose testimony led to the murder conviction of former United Mine Workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle, has been sentenced to 15 years in prison on federal conspiracy charges.

U.S. District Court Judge Gerald Weber imposed sentence Wednesday.

Turnblazer pleaded guilty to the charges last Sept. 6, the day he and Boyle were indicted by a federal grand jury investigating the Yablonski family slayings.

That same day, previously secret state murder warrants against Boyle were released in Washington County, Pa., charging him with the Dec. 31, 1969 deaths of UMW insurgent Joseph "Jock" Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

Authorities said it was Turnblazer, former president of the UMW's Kentucky-Tennessee District 19, who supplied the information which led to the indictments against Boyle.

Priest backs President

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Jesuit priest on President Nixon's staff says the White House Watergate transcripts show that Nixon acted honorably in dealing with a "fetid episode ... a dark footnote on his administration."

Defending his boss against rising criticism from Democrats and Republicans alike, Dr. John McLaughlin said of the President's actions as disclosed by the recently released transcripts:

"The conclusion that they are amoral or immoral is erroneous, unjust and contains elements of hypocrisy."

At a news conference, Father McLaughlin said: "The President acquitted himself throughout these discussions with honor when you consider the circumstances ... the total context ..."

Reflectorized reindeer

The Lapland winters are tough on reindeer. Not, it turns out, because of the winters' severity, but because of their darkness, which for months on end prevails except for a brief twilight at midday.

It seems that great numbers of the reindeer, the chief source of livelihood for many residents of northern Fuinland, are run down by automobiles and trains.

The remedy of Lapland herdsmen have hit upon is of interest as a new example of human ingenuity. If a current experiment turns out well, some 100,000 reindeer will be fitted with traffic reflectors attached to a leather neck thong.

This will be no guarantee against their being hit by trains; it may not even be wholly successful in preventing livestock losses as the animals cross the main north-south highway in winter darkness.

Still, the idea is intriguing. If nothing else, the sight of reflectorized reindeer should help relieve the tedium for motorists tooling along Highway 4 north of the Arctic Circle.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Rodino to run tight ship

WASHINGTON — The great White House balk on the tapes was fully anticipated by the staff of the House Judiciary Committee.

Narrowing access down to matters allegedly relating only to Watergate, the President's counselors hoped to frustrate Chairman Peter W. Rodino's goal of holding up the Whole Nixon before the impeachment process.

But in spite of the stonewalling (that favorite White House phrase) the committee means to show how the milk fund, the President's taxes and ITT relate to his conduct in office.

As the public inquiry into the evidence goes forward before the committee, the plan of interrogation is as follows: Committee Counsel John Doar will present all the material available on the ITT case and the connection with an aborted antitrust suit. He will then call on the President's counsel, James D. St. Clair, seated at the counsel table, for tapes of presidential conversations on ITT.

St. Clair will replay with the statement that he has made repeatedly that they will not be forthcoming since the committee already has all the material relevant to the impeachment process.

AT THIS POINT Doar will zero in. He will demand to know why a matter directly related to the integrity of the Presidency in the conduct of a case involving a possible fix in a deal of hundreds of millions of dollars should be cancealed.

If the President has nothing to hide, why is he unwilling to let us hear what he had to say to the men who were putting the deal through? This demand will be repeated again and again as the long series of related charges comes before the committee.

St. Clair's repeated refusal will, in the belief within the committee, have a great impact on members of the House who may be wavering over an impeachment vote. For millions of television viewers, it will be a high point of the drama.

As pointed up in one charge after another, the objective of the staff is to build up a massive picture of rejection.

Should the stonewalling continue throughout the hearing on the evidence, the consequences in the committee's final report have been carefully thought out. Stressed will be the "irresistible inference" that the President has something to conceal and that concealment itself is a cause for impeachment.

REPUBLICAN leaders are saying that, by their count, the vote for impeachment in the House is still 45 votes short. They take it for granted that the Judiciary Committee will recommend a resolution of impeachment.

Rodino believes the final vote in the committee will not be on Republican-Democrat lines, or that at any rate, the division will be nothing like the 210 to 18 split over whether to accept the transcripts as satisfactory evidence as against the tapes. The chairman is determined to maintain, as far as humanly possible, an impartial position.

That is to say he wants to try to avoid becoming a partisan and advocate. Rodino declined an offer of network television time to reply to President Nixon's broadcast on the tapes. He will try during the public hearings to maintain the tightest control.

Although at one point he might have been concerned about his district back home in Newark, N.J., he has been able to put his worries aside. In the Democratic primary on June 4, Rodino will have opposition considered marginal.

His district is 55 per cent black. Running for his 12th consecutive term in 1972, his Democratic opponent was Mayor William Hart of East Orange, a black. Hart ran a formidable race, crowding Rodino too close for comfort.

THIS TIME the opponent is Michael Giordana, an Italian-American in a city where white ethnics once predominated. Newark Mayor Kenneth Gibson is a black who has become a leader among blacks in the nation. His problems in trying to keep the city solvent and to hold a peaceful balance between the races are enormous.

That the seniority escalator should have brought Rodino to the top in a key position at this critical moment is the kind of accident that now and then proves the system is workable.

A graduate of the University of Newark (Rutgers) law school, Rodino has learned a great deal in the rough and tumble of New Jersey politics and in his 26 years in the House.

Those who know him best believe he will run a tight ship throughout the upcoming public phase of the hearings and emerge with a more or less unified committee.

Startling evidence is to come that will bring the charge against the President close to bribery, which is a specific for impeachment in the Constitution. It will be a drama of an order the nation has never before experienced.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

A flood of hearsay

As a consequence of the acquittal of John Mitchell and Maurice Stans, there seems to be a sudden interest in the defects of the jury system.

No one has yet suggested the reintroduction of the old British custom, last employed in 1680, which permitted the judge to jail a jury which delivered the "wrong" verdict. But obviously something must be wrong with a system that lets off "bad men" like Stans and Mitchell.

The Times has suggested that the defense managed to stack the jury, and that the latter dominated by a Svengali named Andrew Choa, an educated, articulate man who became de facto foreman.

I admit that on the human level I would have loved to see John Mitchell — the big "law and order" man who launched all those lunatic conspiracy trials against the "Chicago 7" and the like — in handcuffs. But the obligation of a petit jury (as distinct from a grand jury) is to treat the accused as innocent until it is unanimously convinced, beyond a reasonable doubt, of guilt.

And I am prepared to say that, as I closely followed the testimony in the Stans-Mitchell trial, I became more and more convinced that it would not justify putting a dog in a pound.

TO REPEAT, this has nothing to do with my personal convictions about the defendants.

At the time of the first Alger Hiss trial for perjury, for example, I was convinced of Hiss' guilt but, if I had been on the jury, I would have voted "Not Guilty." The United States attorney simply did not present a case adequate to eliminate reasonable doubt.

The jury's reaction was similar: it was unable to reach a verdict, and Hiss had to be retired, this time by professionals who in my judgment, locked up the case. (I might add parenthetically that this kind of approach guarantees that I will never sit on a jury.)

Those of you who are bored with my attacks on the law of conspiracy can stop here. I can not resist any opportunity that presents itself to vent my passionate conviction that the time has come to drop conspiracy raps from the criminal code. As one of the Stans-Mitchell jurors is quoted as saying, "We came out 10 different ways on that one."

Well they might: the conspiracy charges were founded on a flood of hearsay. Wthout attempting an authentic rerun, the gist of an accusation was that Q told R that S had written a letter to Y. And what is a jury supposed to think when one of the government's prize witnesses is an admitted perjurer? The common sense question is, of course: "When did you decide to stop lying?"

Which brings us to the whole business of a normal jury's reaction to plea-coppers, which is going to play a major role in the trial of the "Watergate 7." Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski has developed copping a plea into a science: "If you turn state's evidence, the felony charge will be dropped. The train is just about to leave the station, but there's still time to get on board." (Not a quote from Jaworski, but a summary of his method.)

In the normal run of felonies, copping a plea may be vital to obtain direct evidence of crime: "If you tell us where the money is hidden, we'll let you off with a suspended sentence for grand theft auto." The canary sings, the cops go to the appointed spot, the money is found, and the plea-copper's accuracy is verified.

BUT IN a conspiracy case there usually is no tangible evidence to back up a copped plea. There is no tin box full of money hidden in the fireplace.

Rather, the man who turns state's evidence, like John Dean, presents fundamentally unverifiable hearsay: X told me Y said Z knew all about it, and that sort of blather.

In the New York case, for example, the jury had to choose between Dean's unprovable testimony and Mitchell's. The jurors knew that Dean had made a bargain but had produced no outward manifestation of inner and abiding veracity.

The jury, being sensible folk, inevitably suspected that there are characters around who would confess to assassinating President McKinley to avoid 10 years in the bucket.

The fault, dear Brutus, lies not in our jury system, but in the evidence. Now brace yourself for the Washington trial, where hearsay is going to flow like Niagara Falls and confessed perjuriers are going to be falling all over each other — but will there be a tin box?

Ferguson fights abortion outlays

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson remains steadfast in his refusal to approve payments for abortions performed on welfare patients.

Hundreds of vouchers—reportedly totaling more than $100,000—have been held up in Ferguson's office. The peppery 81-year-old auditor, a devout Catholic, said he will carry his fight to the U.S. Supreme Court if he is challenged in court.

The veteran state official claims abortions are murder and that the state will not be "subsidizing crime" if he can help it.

Ohio's Department of Public Welfare began paying for welfare patient abortions last August after a U.S. Supreme Court decision wiped out the state's anti-abortion law.

Welfare officials estimate the state paid out about $1 million for abortions at about $150 each before the auditor cut off payments.

Ferguson, who is retiring at the end of the year, is not alone in his position.

A bill approved by the House and pending in the Senate, giving the state a new abortion control law, provides that public funds may not be used to pay for welfare client abortions unless they are necessary to preserve the mental health or life of the mother.

Substantially rewritten and approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee, the bill is expected to be brought to a floor vote when the legislature returns to work after today's election.

The Senate version then would go back to the House for consideration of Senate changes.

Senate sponsors, including Sen. Robert J. Corts, R-13 Elyria, maintain most welfare patients would be able to find physicians who would affirm the necessity of an abortion to preserve mental health or life as the bill requires.

Not everyone agrees. Benson Wolman, executive director of the Civil Liberties Union of Ohio, maintains the provision runs afoul of constitutional guarantees of equal treatment under the law.

Most of the 10 blacks in the General Assembly say they don't like the provision because it would have the effect of depriving poor people of the right to have an abortion because they were unable to pay.

Wolman contends the proposal probably is unconstitutional in two areas other than the welfare provision. The areas he pointed out would require consent of parents for an abortion on an unmarried minor and would permit hospitals to refuse to perform abortions as a matter of policy.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Jane makes three and that's unlucky!

DEAR ABBY: My friend Jane and I work together. She and her husband and my husband and I had been close for years. Two years ago, Jane's husband died suddenly, and we were all shocked and deeply grieved.

My husband and I tried to make life easier for Jane. We invited her over and took her places with us so she wouldn't be alone. Her other friends had her for dinner once and that was the end of it.

It's going on the third year now and I think it's time Jane started to try to make a new life for herself. It's gotten so that she expects us to include her in everything. If we don't, she is hurt, and lets us know.

She and my husband and I are a regular threesome. And who do you think gets all the attention? Jane does. My husband pulls out her chair and helps her with her coat and I have to look after myself.

I mentioned this to my husband once and he said: "Why, you're jealous!"

How can I remedy this situation without hurting anyone? I don't know how much longer I can hide my feelings.

THIRD WHEEL

DEAR WHEEL: Why hide them? Tell your husband: "You're darned tootin' I'm jealous!" Enough is enough. Discontinue the threesome. Dig up a single man for Jane, or ask her to find one, but let her know that three is an unlucky number.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old male with an unusual problem. I've worked for the company for six years and have a good relationship with my boss, who is president and owner of the company. The problem is the boss's daughter who also works here. She is very friendly to me, and every chance she gets, she straightens my ties or gives me a little hug. This girl is very attractive and I find it difficult to get my work done when she's around.

Last week, while I was standing at the copy machine, she came up behind me and put her hands in my pocket to make change for a soft drink.

I don't want to offend the boss's daughter, but I can't reciprocate her friendly gestures, so what do I do?

BOTHERED IN LOUISVILLE

DEAR BOTHERED: You poor kid! Pretend she is just another girl in the steno pool. Why should she be penalized because she's the boss's daughter?

DEAR ABBY: For years I've been reading about women who use the excuse that they're too "tired" to get out of having marital relations with their husbands.

My husband and I are both in our early 30s. We've always had enjoyable sex relations until the last five or six years Now that I'm the mother of three small children, by the end of the day, I am so exhausted, the last thing I want to think about is sex.

Husbands don't realize how tiring it is to keep house, do the laundry, cooking, and care for three children under six years old.

When my husband comes home, his days work is finished and he can relax. My work goes on 24 hours a day. Where does justice lie?

Is it hard to understand that a wife loses interest in being a sex partner when her children are small and demand so much of her time and energy?

My husband still thinks I'm making excuses when I'm too tired at night. This can't be an original complaint. What do other young wives do?

IN LOVE WITH THE SANDMAN

DEAR IN: Your children will leave you one day, and unless you change your husband may leave before they do! Why not get a woman, or a schoolgirl, to come in for a few hours to give you a life? Don't let yourself get exhausted and out of sorts. If a wife stops being a wife-her husband starts finding excuses not to come home. Think about it.

NEW YORK (AP) — Although such shows as "Meet the Press" have long been major news attractions for Sunday audiences, few of the issues discussed on these shows have directly concerned black life in the United States

But two radio networks serving a predominantly black audience say they hope to remedy this shortcoming this month and the next when each starts a half-hour Sunday news show.

One network, the New York based National Black Network, says it's starting its new "Meet the Black Press" series this Sunday with a panel interview of Rep. Charles B. Rangel, DN.Y., a black member of the House Judiciary Committee.

The Washington-based Mutual Black Network, part of the Mutual Broadcasting System, says its Sunday news show, "The Mutual Black Forum," will start in June at a date that hasn't yet been decided.

Both new shows will be taped in advance, network officials say.

Mutual's show will be moderated by MBN newscaster Glen Ford, who'll be helped out each week by a different Mutual newsman and occasionally by a third reporter from outside the network, Mutual said.

The National Black Network's Sunday show will be moderated by newsman Ed Shannon, with two newsmen from outside the network brought in as guest panelists, NPN officials said.

The two networks now serve 157 radio affiliates with a basic daily diet of black-oriented news and sports items. What prompted the new shows?

"We simply felt there was a need to bring black — and white — social, political and economic leaders to a forum in which questions are raised in terms of the black community," said NBN president Eugene Jackson.

A similar reply came from Ralph Featherstone, general manager of the Mutual Black Network, who said the routine fare of sports and news just wasn't enough to sufficiently inform an audience.

The two black networks are relatively new in broadcasting. Featherstone said his company began operating two years ago this month and now has 92 affiliates. Jackson said his network started operations in July a year ago and now has 65 affiliates.

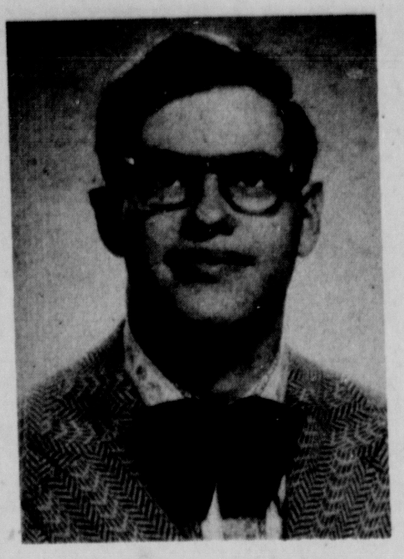
Hoffa wife, son lose union posts

DETROIT (AP) — The wife and son of former Teamsters President Jimmy Hoffa have lost their jobs with the union. Teamsters sources differed on whether it was a purge designed to stop Hoffa's comeback campaign.

The Teamsters International Executive Board, in voting to terminate the services of attorneys on retainer, in effect fired James P. Hoffa Jr., from his $30,000-a-year job.

In another action at its meeting last week in Dallas, the board voted to abolish the women's auxiliary of DRIVE, the union's political arm. Josephine Hoffa headed the auxiliary at an annual salary of $48,000, a union spokesman said in Washington.

A Macedonian astronomer, Andronikos of Kyrrhos, created a weathervane in the form of the god Triton, his hand pointing the direction of the wind, for the Tower of the winds in Athens around 50 B.C.



TO GRADUATE — Russell (Rusty) Zimmerman, son of Mrs. Dee Ellars of Lakewood Hills and Russell Zimmerman of Arlington, Tex., will be among the seniors to gradute from Belmont High School, Dayton, June 6. He will attend Sinclair College in Dayton and will continue working at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base where he has been employed part-time for the past two years.

Fernando Martin guest speaker at chapter meet

The American Field Service Adult Chapter held a meeting in the Washington Senior High School. Following a brief business meeting, Fernando Martin, AFS student living this year with the Rev. and Mrs. Gerald Wheat and family, was introduced to the group. He showed slides of his native land Spain, and particularly of his hometown Toledo.

Toledo is a small city of about 45,000 population, but no larger in actual size than Washington C.H. This is due to the fact that almost everyone lives in high-rise apartments so not much land is needed for growth. These apartments are usually owned by the tenants just as if they were separate houses.

Most people do not require cars since almost everything is within walking distance.

Although the newer dwellings appear very modern, effort is made not to disturb the old world look of the city, since Toledo is famous for its beautiful old Spanish architecture and archeological interest.

After the program, Fernando answered questions and expressed his thanks to the people in this community who made his year in Washington C.H. possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Robinson and daughters, Stephanie and Lisa, Bridge of Allan, Scotland, were visitors this past weekend in the home of his mother, and brother, Mrs. J.R. Robinson and Jack Robinson, 624 Columbus Ave., and with his brother-in-law and sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bachelor, 212 Grand Ave. Mr. Robinson has been transferred as plant manager to the Whiting, Indiana plant with Union Carbide.

M-D dinner attracts 75

Mrs. N.M. Reiff was guest speaker for the annual Mother-Daughter carry-in dinner and program held Wednesday evening in Good Shepherd Lutheran Church. Mrs. Reiff brought her collection of beautiful dolls, purchased while during her travels from most of the countries in the world, and told the story of 'Dolls.'

Mrs. Hilbert Meyer welcomed all present and introduced the speaker.

Tables were centered with flower arrangements in glass containers and some were presented as prizes later in the evening. There were 75 present.

"A Young Mother's Prayer" was presented by Mrs. Jack Sommers, and Leora Burdge read an article entitled "Mother".

A sing-along was led by Mrs. Roger Miller who also presented gifts to Stephanie Heath, Leora Burdge, Mrs. Tim O'Laughlin and Mrs. Cora Fennig, the "queens" for the evening.

The Mary Martha Circle members were hostesses with Mrs. Ora Burdge, chairman. Programs were in pastel shades and shaped like cakes.

Rev. Harold Shank, pastor of the church, was a special guest.

St. Colman Catholic Church is setting for wedding

St. Colman Catholic Church was the setting for the marriage of Miss Jeanne Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Campbell, Rt. 6, to Rick Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billie Miller, Rt. 1, Bloomingburg.

The Rev. Fr. Richard J. Connelly performed the double ring ceremony. Vases of gladioli, roses, carnations, mums and babies' breath graced the altar and the pews were marked with melon bows.

Miss Ann Black was the organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown with square neck, empire waist, and long chiffon sleeves with lace cuffs edged in pearls and lace. A wide row of lace with seed pearls was on the front panel of the skirt. Her long train was also trimmed with clusters of lace. Her elbow-length veil was caught to a cluster of petals. She wore a pearl necklace, a gift from the bridegroom, and carried a blue Rosary, belonging to her Great Aunt Eleanor Sullivan. She carried an arrangement of roses, carnations, mums and babies' breath.

Miss Debbie Schiller, maid of honor, wore a melon colored dress with long full sleeves and empire waist with matching train. The bridesmaids were Debbie Lower and Rita Berwanger, who wore gowns identical to that of the maid of honor except in blue. All three wore white floppy hats. Each carried two long-stemmed roses with babies' breath.

The flower girl was Chery Green, niece of the bride, who wore a pink checked dress with floppy hat of white with pink band. She carried a lace basket filled with roses. Chris Green, nephew of the bride, was the ringbearer.

Gary Campbell served as best man. Seating the wedding guests were Randy Johnson and Billy Miller.

Both mothers wore corsages of roses and babies' breath. The grandmother of the groom wore a corsage of white carnations.

Hostesses for the reception held at the Eagles Lodge were Mrs. Linda Campbell, Mrs. Betty Campbell and Mrs. Chris Campbell, sisters-in-law of the bride.

The new Mrs. Miller, a senior at Miami Trace High School, is employed at Steen's, and her husband, a 1972 MTHS graduate, is employed at Cincinnati Milacron in Wilmington. The couple is residing on Rt. 6, following a trip to King's Island Inn.

Reserve Mining Co. could close doors

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Republic Steel Corp. President W.J. DeLancey says the Reserve Mining Co. taconite plant in Minnesota may have to shut down if the company doesn't get a favorable court ruling on waste discharges into Lake Superior.

DeLancey told Republic shareholders at their annual meeting at Flemington, N.J., Wednesday that "Reserve and its shareholders are convinced that no health hazard exists" from waste discharges.

He said as soon as the Environmental Protection Agency reported a possible health hazard last year the company "moved to thoroughly investigate this new charge."

DeLancey said the health hazard charge was based on claims that the discharges contain "microscopic asbestos-like fibers and that such fibers were found in the drinking water of several North Shore communities, including Duluth.

"Immediately, Reserve sought out and engaged the most renowned authorities in the world to learn the true facts, whatever they might be.

"We have now had the benefit of their testimony in court," DeLancey said, "and on the basis of their reports to us and their testimony in court, we are convinced that no threat to health exists."

Reserve is owned by Republic and Armco Steel. DeLancey said the mining firm "is Republic's principal source of iron ore," producing about 55 per cent of the iron ore used by Republic during 1973.

The plant produces iron ore pellets by crushing ore-bearing rock and separating the iron from the rock.

DeLancey said before the pelletizing project was launched with an investment of $350 million, details of plans for disposal of the residue were cleared with "all governmental agencies interested in the subject."

He said the tailings from the plant flow into a "large, deep trough about five miles offshore and about 900 feet below the surface" of Lake Superior.

DeLancey said if the "health question" is not resolved satisfactorily "it is unlikely that prudent and concerned management could justify continuation of Reserve's operations."

He said Republican already has "made some protective moves" to provide continued sources of iron ore in the event of a Reserve shutdown. But he added that "no matter how successful we are...it is unrealistic to expect that out countermeasures will be able to place us in the same economic position we would be in if the Reserve operations continue."

Man pleads not guilty to murder

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)— Michial Shobek, 19, of Milwaukee, Wis., has pleaded innocent to charges of murdering an American tourist on a Bahamian beach.

Shobek broke a long courtroom silence Wednesday, entering the plea at the start of his trial for the murder of Irvin Bernstein, 44, of Ocean City.

Shobek, who also faces murder charges in the slayings of two other American tourists, had sat silent through nine previous appearances.

As the prosecution opened its case, the judge allowed Shobek's handcuffs to be removed.

In her opening remarks, Crown Counsel Janet Bostwick said that Bernstein arrived in Nassau on Jan. 17 aboard an Air Bahamas flight. His body was found on an isolated Yamacraw Beach the next morning.

Police said they found Shobek's pen and sunglasses near the body. The prosecutor said a pen and pencil owned by Bernstein were found in Shobek's possession.

Mrs. Bostwick said that a black bag found on Paradise Island in Nassau, eight miles from the death scene, contained some of Bernstein's papers and Shobek's driver's license.

Shobek also has been charged with killing Katie Smith, 17, a Detroit student, and Paul V. Howell, a lawyer from Massillon, Ohio.

Last month, Supreme Court Chief Justice Leonard Knowles ordered a psychiatric hearing for Shobek, who police say has travelled between the Bahamas and the United States for about two years. The report was not introduced when the trial opened.

Rail work proves fatal to young man

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Eugene Conner of Youngstown said his son, Ronald, liked working on the railroad and "wanted to follow in Dad's footsteps."

Ronald Conner, 21, was one of two train crewmen killed Wednesday when a Penn Central Tansportation Co. freight crashed into a bridge over the Cuyahoga River in Cleveland's Flats area.

The elder Conner, a road foreman for engines and a 34-year veteran of Penn Central service, said he was working "in my own territory" when he heard about the accident.

"I went right to it," Conner said.

He reached the scene about two and a half hours later at 7:30 a.m.

Conner said his son had worked for the Penn Central for about three years and wanted to become an engineer.

"He liked it very much," Conner said. "After graduation from high school he wanted to go on the railroad the same as I did."

The younger Conner had been living in Madison, Ohio, but the body was taken to the Fox Funeral Home in Youngstown, where services were scheduled for 9:15 p.m. Friday.

The train's engineer, 53-yearold E.J. Koester of Bellefontaine, also has been killed in the crash.

The railroad said two other crewmen aboard the train escaped injury. They were identified as the conductor, W.E. Landis, 51, of Bellefontaine and the flagman, R.B. Talisman of Willowick.

A railroad spokesman said the train tried to cross the bridge while it was in a raised position and hit the massive counterweights which were near track level at the time.

The bridge had been raised to allow a lake freighter to pass underneath.

Koester and Conner were in the first of two locomotives on the 85-car train.

A Coast Guard official said diesel fuel leaking fom the crashed locomotive polluted the river "pretty bad."

Postpone resolution in Springer case

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Cincinnati City Council postponed action Wednesday on reappointing Gerald Springer, 30, who resigned following his involvement in a Northern Kentucky prostitution case.

Council voted 8-0 to accept his resignation. He could be reappointed later.

Liquor Control attorney to address Kiwanis Club

The chief of the legal section of the Ohio Department of Liquor Control will address the Kiwanis Club at the Lafayette Inn Monday night.

J. Fred Rose, a former Kiwanian, will explain the workings of the liquor board to the membership. The meeting will begin at 6:15 p.m.

Rose was admitted to the practice of law in 1951 and engaged in private practice before becoming a referee in probate court, then a permit chief in the Department of Liquor Control, and finally the head of its legal division.

A native of Kenton, Ross attended in Bellfontaine schools and is a graduate of Ohio State University and the Capital University Law School. He was a lecturer on constitutional law at Ohio Dominican College.

A veteran of World War II, Rose served in China with the Office of Strategic Services and with Gen. George Marshall in his efforts to settle differences between the Chinese Communists and Nationalists.

Winter wheat harvest large

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The agriculture department predicted Wednesday that Ohio farmers will harvest the largest crop of winter wheat on record this year.

The Ohio Crop Reporting Service estimated the winter wheat crop at 69.3 bushels— three times the 1973 output.

The service estimated that Ohio farmers have 1,540,000 acres of the grain to harvest, up 114 per cent from last year. The acreage is the largest since 1954.

Yield, based on conditions on May 1, will be 45 bushels per acre, the service forecast. This is the same as the 1972 record yield.

Report boa constrictor stolen from store

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Pet store operator Greg Stewart decided Wednesday that "Pink" was not hiding and reported the 3½-foot boa constrictor had apparently been stolen.

Stewart said the snake—a rare pink boa—and his 35-gallon tank have been gone for about a month.

"Pink doesn't have the nicest disposition in the world," said Stewart. "He tends to snap at people," but only in defense.

Boas only go after things they think they can swallow, Stewart added.

The forests throughout Ontario include about 90 species of trees.

Food costs move over 16 per cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has lost, at least temporarily, one of his favorite lines: that the American people should count their blessings for having to spend less than 16 per cent of their take-home pay on food.

A report Wednesday by his department's Outlook and Situation Board showed that, in the first quarter of this year, after about two decades of annual decline or stability, the amount of disposable income allotted to food went up to 16.1 per cent.

On an annual basis, the percentage has been 15.7 for the last three years, even during last year's record 14.5 per cent boost in retail food prices. The expenditures-income ratio had been falling from 20 per cent in 1960 to 18.1 per cent in 1965 to 16.2 per cent in 1970.

The board also reported that it still holds as "most likely" the previous estimate of a 12 per cent increase in retail food prices for all of 1974 over all of 1973.

Warning that its 12 per cent annual rate estimate could be pulled either way by demand and supply changes, the board gave a range of 8 to 15 per cent for the final over-all average jump in retail prices over last year.

Portuguese adjust to changes

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Manuel Fernandes Videira is a plasterer, a man on a scaffold, who still reaches, bends, coughs in a sea of white dust nine hours a day for the equivalent of $25 in a brown pay packet at the end of the week.

He still takes the same overcrowded trolley bus downtown to work and his wife still packs him the same lunch of fish sandwiches. But for the plasterer, life has changed since April 25, when a military coup overthrew the authoritarian regime that had ruled Portugal for 48 years.

"It has to do with the boss," says Videira. "He's gotten very quiet all of a sudden. He's not stepping on my toes any more. He's promising raises, but there's a bigger change. It's in the way he talks. Before it was always work more, work harder. Now it's just do your job properly and do it well."

More than just a regime, the military coup that the Portuguese call "our revolution" overthrew a relationship between people—one which involved a sullen acceptance of authority and an assurance that power at any level would always go unchallenged.

The plasterer's wife works at the Lisbon University canteen, and she and the other women there felt free enough after the coup to complain about working on Sundays. As a result they got weekends off.

"You could say that we are a bit of a revolutionary couple," said Videira jokingly.

Life has changed, too, though not materially, for some of the privileged class—like Maria Fernanda Portugal Ribeiro, an elegant woman with two grown sons and a husband who commands a navy training ship.

Her cleaning woman still comes to her town house, and her mother-in-law still worries that she is too outspoken. But Mrs. Ribeiro says she is no longer ashamed of her country.

"I used to live here in constant irritation," she explained. "I was always nervous. When I tell you I hated to live in this country the way it was I am telling you the truth. I always wanted to get out. Now I feel jubilant. I want to stay and see what happens."

She said that the biggest change was in her attitude toward Portuguese men.

"I used to feel a lot of contempt for them. I used to think they were worthless, incapable of attempting anything noble. I know many other women who felt this same way. A friend called me up the other day and said the biggest surprise of the whole thing was to find out there are some men in Portugal."

Bad information costly to Xenia residents

By MARK ROTH
Dayton Journal Herald

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — A bureaucratic bobble by the Small Business Administration (SBA) may cost some Xenia tornado victims thousands of dollars in unnecessary interest payments to rebuild their homes.

The snafu erupted when SBA officials handed out incorrect information on the agency's disaster loan program for two weeks after the April 3 storm.

Many residents who lost their homes said SBA spokesmen advised them to use insurance proceeds to pay off existing mortgages, with the promise that they would then be eligible to get 5 per cent loans from SBA for the full amount needed to replace their houses.

Several homeowners did so, only to discover later that either they are not eligible for any SBA funds or can get only a limited loan.

As a consequence, many Xenians are now facing the prospect of scrambling for a new loan at today's higher interest rates to get all the money they need for reconstruction.

Wayne Luders, who arrived from Seattle to head the SBA disaster operation in Ohio just two weeks ago, admits that the misinformation "seems to have occurred here."

He said the problem arose because the first SBA officials to arrive here after the tornado did not clearly understand the loan program.

But he urged victims to "give us a chance to correct any mistakes that have been made."

Under the current law, in effect since July 1973, SBA can provide 5 per cent loans to disaster victims only for the amount of uninsured damage to their homes and personal property, with a ceiling of $55,000 per family.

In addition, the agency can help refinance existing mortgages, but only if 30 per cent or more of the damage is uninsured. Even then, the refinancing is limited to an amount no greater than the uninsured loss.

But the tornado-stricken homeowners contacted by the Journal Herald all said the restrictions were not mentioned when they first visited the SBA.

Instead, the residents said they were told simply that if their homes were leveled, they were eligible for 5 per cent SBA financing for whatever was needed to pay for rebuilding.

A case in point is Roger Alexander, whose home in the Windsor Park subdivision was so badly damaged that the city has scheduled it for demolition.

Alexander—who has been laid off from his job at Chrysler Airtemp since late January— still owed $16,300 on the home to Land Mortgages, Inc. of Dayton.

He received a full insurance payment of $18,700, and decided he wanted to rebuild on the same site.

A builders representative told Alexander it will cost roughly $16,500 to reconstruct an identical home. Alexander sent the insurance check to Land Mortgages and the week after the tornado went to see the SBA representative.

At that point, Alexander said he realized it would be unwise to use the insurance proceeds to pay off his existing 7 per cent mortgage unless he had solid assurances that he would qualify for a new SBA loan.

"I told the SBA man that I could still call and stop the (insurance) check if there was any doubt I would qualify on the SBA loan, and the SBA guy said there was no problem, even though I was out of work."

It was not until two weeks later, after they had filled out the application and returned it, that SBA "said I had no loss that was uninsured and so I wasn't eligible for a loan," Alexander said.

In other words, since it would cost less to rebuild the home than Alexander had received in insurance, he did not qualify for SBA assistance under the law.

In the meantime, though, Alexander had used his insurance to pay off his mortgage and had only $2,400 left over to apply toward rebuilding.

That leaves Alexander over $14,000 short of the sum he needs to rebuild, and since he is out of work, "I've been told I can't get a new loan; I can't get nothing."

If the SBA program had been correctly explained to Alexander the first time, he might have been able to keep his old mortgage alive and use his insurance funds to cover the cost of rebuilding.

Alexander said he has tried to get the old loan reinstated by Land Mortgages, but has been told it is impossible.

Earl Portner, loan service supervisor for Land Mortgages, explained why.

"The trouble is," Portner said, "Mr. Alexander didn't call us until two weeks after his old loan had already been canceled; we called the investor to see what could be done, but the investor said there was just no way the loan could be restored at the old interest rate."

But Luders and SBA attorney Jack Look claimed that where people have mistakenly paid off their original mortgages, SBA can influence the lending institutions to restore the old loans.

It's Easy To Place A Want Ad

Profanity expert loves transcripts

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dr. Reinhold Aman takes a different view of the Watergate transcripts than the pastors and politicians who have criticized President Nixon for the salty language used in the White House.

"I just eat it up," said Aman, a professor of medieval German literature and an expert on swearing who can give 'em hell, damn and thousands of other expletives in 50 languages.

Aman, who teaches at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, sees swearing as a necesssary means of letting off steam in almost every language.

"I don't advocate swearing," he said. "I don't encourage my children or students or friends to swear. I personally swear because there are so many things that bug me. That's why everyone swears, and almost everyone does."

Far from being shocked at the language in the White House transcripts, Aman finds it lacking in the very words he's interested in.

"Most of the time they are omitted, although you can sometimes predict what should be there," he said. "I've been sort of trying to fill in what it can be.

"I wish I could get all the expletives. That would be like winning at a lottery or something."

Aman, 38, has plenty of experience in dealing with nondeleted expletives. He has published several scholarly works on profanity patterns throughout the world and compiled dictionaries of cusswords to help explain the background and meaning of curses.

"Swearing is a means of letting off steam, to keep from getting ulcers and from keeping frustrations bottled up inside," said Aman.

"It should be use properly," he cautioned, adding that most people don't appreciate the finer points of cursing.

He said the unsophisticated curser aims insults at a foe's physical characteristics rather than gauging his cultural and educational background before using the verbal rapier.

Only a low-brow swearer relies on ethnic slurs, he said.

Americans are among the least refined cussers, largely because their profane vocabulary is 25 or fewer words, Aman said.

Among his favorites curses are Yiddish's "May all your teeth but one fall out so you can get a toothache," the rhymed insults of the Turks and the singing exchanges between Eskimoes.

"Tell me what swear words you use and I will tell you who you are," he said.

City Council action covers many matters

the Fayette County Planning Commission and members of the Fayette County Board of Commissioners had been invited to attend the public hearing in an attempt to reach a compatible set of standards for the city and county.

Developers and other concerned citizens have voiced objections to a set of subdivision regulations proposed by the county on numerous occasions.

Wolford said an effort should be continued to meet with commissioners and the county planning commission to reach an agreement on a compatible set of standards.

A PIECE of emergency legislation amending a codified ordinance pertaining to changing parking meter hours in Washington C. H. was approved. The change in enforcement hours for parking meters was approved by Council members at the last meeting. Most of the meters already have been converted.

Enforcement hours will be changed from 8 a.m. until 9 p.m. on Mondays and Fridays only. Meter regulations will be enforced until 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday. Typographical errors in the ordinance were corrected before approval by Council.

In other legislation, Council confirmed the appointments of Carl R. Elberfeld, 426 Rawlings St., to the City Zoning Board of Appeals and Mrs. Evelyn Graves, 219 Wagner Way, to the City Recreation Board.

COUNCIL AGREED to schedule a public hearing on June 26 to consider legislation on an application submitted by Donald P. Woods, 133 W. Circle Ave., to have a tract of land rezoned from residential to commercial to permit the construction of an office-type commercial complex, similar to Fayette Center.

The 5.794-acre tract of land is situated 428 feet east of Elm Street between the Washington Square Shopping Center and land owned by the Washington C. H. Board of Education.

Councilman Billie Wilson argued against the zoning change since he said the original intent of the residential zoning in that area was to serve as buffer zone between the school grounds and commercial property.

FIRE CHIEF Maynard L. (Joe) Denen presented a proposal requesting Council to explore the feasibility of purchasing an additional car for fire department officers.

Denen said an additional vehicle is needed by the department because of the increasing number of semi-emergency calls received.

Denen, who pointed out that there was no monetary loss in fires in Washington C.H. during March, said the department plans to launch a more intensive fire prevention program which would include an emergency index card system for city businesses and industries.

He also said the Fayette County Tuberculosis and Health Association had donated $500 to the department for the purchase of oxygen and pulmonary equipment to treat heart attack victims. The department has nine registered emergency medical technicians.

The department plans to keep its present 1965 model station wagon even if Council purchases an additional five-passenger vehicle. Wolford strongly supported Denen's request.

Rhoads said Council will be meeting in an executive session to consider the request.

THE CITY'S LEGISLATORS agreed to retire a $60,000 debt which is due Friday on money borrowed in 1971 to construct storm sewers in the city. A total of $100,000 was borrowed for the five major projects and the debt has been reduced by $40,000 with annual installment payments. The debt will be retired with funds from the five-year, one-mill storm sewer levy.

Council also agreed to pay its annual fee of $1,000 to the Mid-Ohio Regional Health Planning Council, which is a lobbying organization which assists its 17-member counties to obtain federal funding for health services. Expert services also are provided by the organization and it was pointed out that the city received approximately $5,000 in consulting benefits from the organization last year for sewer treatment plant improvements.

Extension of sewer lines to a residence located just outside the city corporation limit on W. Elm Street and the launching of annexation procedures for the matter were approved by Council.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Gray, 726 W. Elm St., had requested the sewer line extension because of an emergency situation with sewage disposal at their residence.

The city has an ordinance which for the past 10 years has prohibited extension sanitary and storm sewers outside the city limits. The ban was waived and annexation proceedings were begun for the Gray residence.

VFW members plan park clean-up Saturday

Members of the Burnett-Ducey VFW Post No. 4964 in Washington C.H. will be collecting litter and conducting a general cleanup of three city parks Saturday morning.

The VFW post members have been granted permission by City Manager Dan Wolford to conduct the general cleanup campaign as the organization's annual civic project.

Ben Jamison, post commander, said the VFW post members would be sprucing up the grounds at Eyman and Christman parks and the park located on Rawlings Street.

the VFW members expect to start the project at 11 a.m. Saturday, according to Jamison.

Lawyers fight confidence loss

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The president of the Ohio State Bar Association said today the loss of confidence by the general public in the legal profession is a foremost problem.

Walter A. Porter of Dayton, in a prepared text, said, "Obviously many factors have combined to give rise to this conclusion. Perhaps it has been influenced by so many lawyers being involved in Watergate."

Porter said he is "keenly aware of the fact that our profession was, and remains deeply embroiled in the Watergate syndrome."

Some 10,000 Mounties now enforce federal laws in Canada.

MT Junior Achievers receive state awards

Two Miami Trace high school students received awards at the 22nd annual Junior Achievement Future Unlimited banquet, held Wednesday in the Ohio Student Union at Ohio State University, Columbus.

Regina Roush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roush, 8 Fent St., Jeffersonville, and a junior at MTHS, was a finalist in the J.A. of Central Ohio President of the Year contest. She was a member of Ramco III, a J.A. company, counseled by Armco Steel Corp's Metal Products Division.

Howard (Ike) Hixon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Hixon of 4920 CCC Highway-W and also a junior at MTHS, was awarded the Best Purchasing Manager of the Year award. He also was a member of Ramco III.

Both achievers received travelship awards to attend the National Junior Achiever's Aconference to be held Aug. 11-16, at Indiana University in Bloomington, Ind.

JUNIOR ACHIEVEMENT is an international, non-profit organization dedicated to the economic education of youth. In the past eight months more than 1,200 teenagers, from high schools located throughout Central Ohio, have been participating in the Junior Achievement program.

The Future Unlimited banquet concludes the year for 57 miniature companies, all formed in October 1973. These student-operated companies manufactured and marketed their own products or rendered a service under the guidance of volunteer adult advisors from businesses and industries located throughout Central Ohio.

Approximately 1,000 were in attendance at the banquet. About 600 of these were "teen-age tycoons" from Junior Achievement. They were joined by 400 adult business executives, parents and educators, symbolic of the way Junior Achievement instructs youth in the business of business.

ALSO AWARDED at the banquet were five company awards, 16 scholarships, 27 travelships to the National J.A. Conference (NAJAC) to be held in August and 9 awards to top individuals in officer catogories in J.A. companies.

General chairman and master of ceremonies for the event was Beaton F. Pettengill, executive vice president of Corco, Inc. Pettengill is a member of the board of directors of J.A. of Central Ohio, Inc., and currently is chairman of the J. A. Awards and Scholarship committee.

Americans face costly vacations

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
Associated Press Writer

Americans planning a vacation trip this summer should be prepared to pay more, start planning sooner and keep a careful eye on the gas gauge.

A nationwide Associated Press survey shows that families are not being scared away from planning summer vacations by high gasoline prices and the memory of winter shortages. But tourism officials say the summer vacationer plans to travel a shorter distance to find his spot in the sun and to stay put longer once he gets there.

The sharp increases in the price of food and energy will hit the summer traveler hard.

Some vacation areas report food and beverage prices up 20 per cent over last year, and federal officials foresee an average nationwide price for gasoline of 60 cents a gallon this summer, up from the current average of 54 cents for regular and 58 cents for premium. Some tourist areas predict it could go as high as 70 cents. Motel and hotel prices are also up in most tourist areas, but not significantly.

The overall effect means you'll pay up to 20 per cent more for the same vacation you took last year.

Many tourist areas suffered between a 20 and 40 per cent decline in business during the winter. But by April most reported business nearly normal again, and some expect a record summer.

The AP survey showed that traveling on Sundays could mean risking running out of gasoline this summer. There will be fewer gasoline stations open on Sundays for two reasons: (1) many stations do not need that day to sell their monthly allocation, and (2) some owners have gotten used to having Sundays off and aren't anxious to work. The American Automobile Association said Tuesday a survey showed 39 per cent of the nation's service stations open Sundays.

The AP survey also shows that most tourist areas have increased their advertising budgets and concentrated their messages much closer to home. Cape Cod resorts, for example, are advertising in a 300-mile radius instead of a normal 700 miles.

Major tourist areas such as Cape Cod, the Poconos, the Smoky Mountains, Southern California and the lake areas of Michigan and Wisconsin are running ahead of or even with 1973 on advance bookings. These areas said some persons who stayed only three or four days in the past are now making reservations for two weeks.

The economical traveler can cut costs. The AP survey found that in some areas the smaller motels and hotels had been hardest hit by the energy crisis and are less likely to be booked for the summer.

And special deals are available in most areas to tourists seeking them. Some of these offer extra nights in motels free of charge if tourists stay a certain length of time. Others include free rooms for children under 12 and free tickets to local points of interest. Tourists seeking these deals should check with chambers of commerce, travel agents and tourist bureaus.

The major concern is the availability of gasoline. Most officials say they're cautiously optimistic there will be enough. However, there is at least a possibility there won't.

The Federal Energy Office says the outlook for summer is that gasoline supplies will be 4 to 6 per cent below potential demand—the amount used in normal times. A recent AP survey showed that citizens are returning to their normal driving habits. If that continues the chances of spot gasoline shortages this summer are strong.

The energy office suggests that travelers seeking information on gasoline check with the American Automobile Association or phone ahead to their destination before leaving.

Band concert moved indoors

Unfavorable weather forecasts have forced a change in plans for the annual All-City Band Concert Friday night.

Charles L. Shaffer, band director at Washington Senior High School, said Friday's weather forecast calls for chilly temperatures and rain.

The band concert, originally scheduled to be staged at Gardner Park Stadium, will be held in the Washington Senior High School gymnasium.

The public is invited to attend the concert which will begin at 8 p.m. Friday.

Police checking gas theft attempt

An attempted gasoline theft is being investigated by city police.

Sometime between midnight and 8 a.m. Wednesday, the attempt at gas larceny was made at Larkins Arco Station, 205 W. Court St.

Investigating officers found the lock on the ground tank on the west side of the building broken and the nozzle broken off the front pump. But apparently no gas was taken.

A check cashed May 5 for $75 at the Washington Savings Bank, 150 E. Court St., was returned marked "account closed." The person whose name was signed was questioned by police and it was found the fradulent check and another check had been missing from her check book.

An video tape identification is being made of the man who cashed the check.

OU strike arbitration being sought

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio University Student Workers Union has voted to submit unsettled details of a union recognition election to arbitration.

Union President Mark Satchwell said he is to contact OU personnel director Ward Wilson today to request that the official obtain an arbitrator from American Arbitration Association.

OU President Claude R. Sowle has said he would agree to arbitration if negotiations came to a "total breakdown."

Wednesday afternoon, the union was presented with a new election proposal which included several modifications of earlier administration plans.

But Satchwell said about 75 union members Wednesday refused to accept requirements that at least 75 per cent of eligible student workers participate to validate the election.

Satchwell said union negotiators will ask the arbitrator to establish a 60 per cent validation figure.

Sharp quake jolts Japan; report death

TOKYO (AP) — A sharp earthquake jolted central Japan this morning, killing one woman and injuring 23 persons over a wide area of the Izu Peninsula, 70 to 100 miles southwest of Tokyo, officials said.

Twenty-nine persons, caught in a landslide, were still unaccounted for.

Police said the quake, which registered four on the Japanese scale of seven in the hard hit areas, destroyed 54 houses, including five in a fire that followed the tremor, and damaged 231.

Scientists in Honolulu said the quake registered 6.2 on the Richter scale. The quake that hit San Francisco in 1906 registered 8.3.

The quake hit shortly after 8:30 a.m. and lasted for several seconds.

The Meteorological Agency said the center was in the Pacific, 22 miles off Cape Irozaki, where it registered five. Seismographs measured four in Shimoda, Mishima and Shizuoka, all on Izu Peninsula, officials said.

The quake also registered four in Yokohama, 20 miles south of Tokyo, and three in Tokyo where buildings swayed and subways and commuter trains were momentarily stopped. No damage, however, was reported in Tokyo or Yokohama.

Police said rains and landslides which blocked roads in Izu were hampering rescue operations.

Officials said 83 aftershocks were recorded in 10 hours and the shocks were continuing.

Ohio retail sales continue upswing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Retail sales in Ohio in March continued on an upward swing, the Center for Business and Economic Research at Ohio State University reported today.

The center said total sales, seasonally adjusted, were 1 per cent higher in March than in February.

March sales were up 3 per cent from the same month last year.

would be the target of his campaign.

Celeste, who will face incumbent Lt. Gov. John Brown in November, and Tony P. Hall, who won the Democratic nomination to oppose Republican veteran Secretary of State Ted W. Brown in the general election, both were the party's endorsed candidates.

Gilligan earlier had said those two primary races were better indicators of the success or failure of the endorsement program than the Glenn-Metzenbaum battle.

In other contested GOP races Tuesday, Franklin County Prosecutor George C. Smith won the attorney general nomination and ex-state Rep. Roger Tracy was the choice for auditor. Smith will oppose incumbent Atty. Gen. William J. Brown and Tracy will challenge Thomas E. Ferguson, son of incumbent Auditor Joseph Ferguson.

The 22 incumbents seeking re-election to the 99-member Ohio House all won party nominations Tuesday. Five incumbents didn't run again, nine sought higher office and 61 were unopposed for renomination.

Feller wins court suit

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Bob Feller says he'll wait until things settle down before making plans with the former Mrs. George Wolf.

Mrs. Wolf was at his side Wednesday, smiling and crying happily after a Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court jury cleared the former Cleveland Indians' pitching great of alienation of affection charges.

"This is my fourth no-hitter," Feller remarked.

The 55-year-old Feller was sued by George E. Wolf, a grocer from Benton Harbor, Mich., for $1.5 million.

Wolf charged that Feller stole the love of his wife of 27 years, but Mrs. Wolf testified on the witness stand that love had left her marriage before she met Feller.

She and Feller admitted having had an affair that stretched back to 1966. She said Wolf knew of her relationship with Feller and encouraged it.

The jury of four men and four women deliberated 90 minutes before returning their unanimous verdict.

Wolf left the courtroom without a word. His attorneys said no appeal was planned.

Nixon scandal

book, and a long one. A Washington radio station is broadcasting hour-long, nightly readings of the transcripts—a series that is to continue for 36 nights.

For the White House, one gamble now is public reaction to the sheer volume of what Nixon has disclosed. A crucial question is whether Americans will deem it enough because it is so much, despite the fact that it is not what the House panel or the special prosecutor sought.

There is in addition the question of how Congress and the courts will respond to Nixon's announced intent to withhold further tapes.

And there is another question mark, too: That of public and congressional reaction to the substance of the transcribed conversations Nixon released. The White House maintains that they prove the President "never engaged in a criminal plot to obstruct justice," and carried out his constitutional duty to enforce the law. There is debate about that now between Nixon's critics and his defenders.

But in any event, even in expurgated version, the transcripts show the seamy side of the Oval Office.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott has described the discussions as shabby, immoral and disgusting. The House GOP leader, Rep. John J. Rhodes, said he wouldn't quarrel with that.

At one point in the transcript for March 21, 1973, Nixon said:

"I don't give a damn about the publicity. We could rock that through if we had to let the whole damn thing hang out, and it would be a lousy story for a month. But I can take it. The point is that I don't want any criminal liabilities. That is the thing that I am concerned about for the members of the White House staff."

That quote may still be operative. But White House concern now is with the battle over impeachment, and that involves the President, not the staff.

Police cite driver after city accident

A Lyndon woman was charged with improper lane change by police after an accident Wednesday.

Medrith M. Mitchell, 39, was cited after she collided with a car driven by Ruby E. Anders, 31, of 1115 S. Elm St., on Columbus Avenue, 50 feet east of Blackstone Street. Damage was moderate to both vehicles.

Defendant forfeits

A Washington C.H. man arrested for intoxication failed to appear in Municipal Court Wednesday. Acting Judge John P. Case accepted a $100 bond forfeiture from Robert C. Carter, 55, of Washington Manor Court, on the charge. He had been arrested by city police.

Small businesses ask bigger slice

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Earlier this year the National Small Business Association presented congressmen with its view that small and medium-size businesses must be permitted a bigger share in the American economy.

The big three of big business, big government and big labor, the association's spokesmen asserted, ruled the land, formulating a national economic policy that:

"... discourages, handicaps, squeezes, and often destroys small business. Their actions are counterproductive, incestuous, and self-serving in nature. As a result, only the 'scraps on the table' are left for everyone else."

The injustice is clear, they claimed, in the areas of taxes, access to market and money raising — "would any fair-minded person say that equality of treatment is given to the would-be entrepreneur versus the economic power of an ITT although both want to enter the same field?"

But the impact of the small-business report to Congress really lies in pointing out the de facto situation. Here are some excerpts:

—In 270 of 413 manufacturing industries — that is, in 65 per cent of the industries for which figures are available — the eight largest companies account for 40 per cent or more of the value of shipments from their industry.

—In 1960, small and medium manufacturers had 50 per cent of the assets and 41 per cent of profits. By 1972 these corporations had only 30 per cent of assets, and 28 per cent of profits.

Citing Census Bureau figures, the association listed the percentage of shipments accounted for by the eight largest concerns in selected industries, based again on 1967 or 1970 figures.

Here are a few:

Cereal preparations, 97 per cent, chocolate and cocoa products, 90; chewing gum, 97; cigarettes, 100; woven carpets and rugs; 90; tire cord and fabric, 97; carbon black, 100; flag glass, 98; primary aluminum, 100; typewriters 99.

"By what accident or plan did we come to the point where a handful of giant companies can determine what foods will come to our tables and what that food will contain, and what it will cost?" the association asked.

And that's the question—not whether small business provides more variety, competitiveness and innovation, or whether big business produces sameness, administered markets and the status quo.

Is the country drifting into an era of superbig business, evading a decision and dealing with the event after the fact rather than attempting to influence its course?

Rather than drifting, is it being taken along a prescribed course by existing businesses that seek their own preservation rather than the overall good of the country?

Cincinnati to abide by court decision

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Cincinnati has agreed to abide by a U.S. District Court decision to hire enough blacks to make up 18 per cent of the fire department by 1980.

Judge David S. Porter gave the city the timetable. He also said past criminal records could not be a factor in a black applicant's hiring.

Wellman film festival opens

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Most motion picture directors are a little screwy. I know that fliers are, and I have been both, so draw your own conclusions."

The writer is William A. Wellman, whose 75 movies included "Wings," "Public Enemy," "Call of the Wild," "A Star Is Born," "Nothing Sacred," "Beau Geste," "The Oxbow Incident," "Story of G.I. Joe" (his favorite), "Battleground" and "The High and the Mighty."

Also such bombs as "Lady of Burlesque," "The Next Voice You Hear," "Westward the Women" and "Lafayette Escadrille" (his last, in 1958).

He wrote: "A bad picture is like a frightful birthmark on your face — it never leaves you, first run, second run, reruns, TV prime time, late time, lousy time; it's always there for people to stare at unbelievingly or turn away from or worse still turn off, or should that be better still?

"It's your eternal badge of embarrassment."

During his 38 years as a director, Wild Bill Wellman earned his name, laughing, brawling and bulling his way through 75 movies, five marriages, countless feuds and many friendships.

Now 78 and as feisty as ever despite a long battle with arthritis, the director is enjoying a belated spotlight.

Wednesday night marked the start of a 39-film Wellman festival at the Royal Theater in West Los Angeles, organized by the director's actor-son, William Jr., and sponsored by Tom Laughlin ("Billy Jack"), who was hired by Wellman for "Lafayette Escadrille."

Hawthorne is publishing Wellman's memoirs, "A Short Time for Insanity," a remarkable confessional that ranks among the best books about Hollywood.

It is not easily read. In parts it is as circuitous as "Finnegan's Wake." This is because Wellman chose to write it during a drug-laden recuperation from serious illness, and his fantasies mix with past reality. But Wellman is a superbly irreverent storyteller, as anyone can tell from a list of his screen credits.

Wellman is toughest on himself, but he saves some barbs for fellow workers during his studio years. He relates a long binge by Spencer Tracy, whom he describes as "freaky —the bottle never made him high, it always made him miserably low."

Louis B. Mayer, the autocrat of MGM studios, reminded Wellman of a praying mantis, which "feeds upon other insects and clasps its prey in forelimbs as if in prayer."

Wellman's fifth marriage, to Busby Berkeley dancer Dorothy Coonan, in 1933 took. They have seven children and 12 grandchildren. In recent years Wellman has spent his time enjoying his family, enduring constant pain (he broke his back in a World War I plane crash), drinking only beer ("I was not what you'd call a good drinker"), and writing.

He's already working on a second memoir, "Growing Old Disgracefully."

New Folksingers elected at MTHS

By BARB MARVIN

Here at Miami Trace, one of the highlights of the school year is the election of Folksingers in the spring.

This outstanding group of young people are selected by Cinda K. Stinson, director of the Folksingers. The chorale of around 50 are patterned after an Ohio State University group.

Not only have our Folksingers sung numerous times at the Ohio Theater, but also have received congratulations and awards from many organizations and well-known persons including Sen. Robert Taft.

The Folksingers perform at churches, civic organizations, Christmas programs, other schools (including the vocational school), and at various events in central Ohio.

Elise Hill and Brenda Garringer are the accompanists of the group. Old members are Jim Arledge, Denise Beoddy, Belinda Bonner, Beanie Cross, Don Davis, Brenda Garringer, Bob Holloway, Connie Hughes;

Doug Joseph, Tim Keaton, Gretchen Krieger, Dan Lowe, John Milstead, Bud Mountcastle, Mike Pierce, Jeff Ruth, Pam Straley, Carmen White, Jim Woods, Vernon Stanforth, and Jomi Warner.

New members are Leah Wlesh, Cindi Grover, Kathey Edwards, Cheryl Blue, Debbie Haines, Yvonne McCarty, Kathy Junk, Julie Fetters, Teresa McDonald;

Karmel Knedler, Cheryl Pendleton, Susan Coe, Jay Pendleton, Rusty Bainter, John Schlichter, Doug Welsh, Ed Binegar, Kevin Dunn, Keith Holbrook, Bob Phillips;

Jeff Smithson, Michael Kent, Bruce Fennig, Raymond Mick, Randy Beekman, and Mike Ferguson.

Alternates are Karen Brennan, Sherrie Holloway, Linda Varney, Angela Holbrook, Marilyn Creamer, Sam Grooms, and Kevin Higgins.

This Sunday there will be a carry-in picnic at Paula, Leah, and Doug Welsh's residence just outside Bloomingburg. Folksingers often get together at one another's homes, and this will be for both in-coming and outgoing members.

Frosh students receive tests

By DANNY PEARCE

For the past couple of weeks the freshman class of Miami Trace have been taken in groups of one busload a day to the Joint Vocational School near Wilmington. The purpose of the visit is twofold, the most important of which is to take the General Aptitude Battery, or GATBY test.

The written part of the test was taken in the mornings by the entire attending group. Then after lunch the freshmen split into two groups, one doing the manual part of the test while the other group toured the school, which was the second part of the test. The groups then reversed positions and the test was complete.

The GATBY test is a standard aptitude test and is being given to help the freshmen decide on their future occupations and what courses they might take if they enter the vocational school.

The guidance counselors — Mrs. Margaret Dowler, Mrs. Vickie Snow, and Mrs. Fred Doyle — accompanied them.

See rubber auto fronts coming soon

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—It's what's up front that counts, even in new-car bodies, a Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. executive said Wednesday.

Weight, corrosion and damage in minor collisions may drive auto manufacturers to turn to rubber for bumpers, rocker panels and maybe even fenders and door panels, Vice Chairman Richard A. Jay said.

"Petroleum shortages are making auto makers into fanatical weight watchers," Jay said. "Gasoline mileage will become a major selling point on new models."

Lightweight, rubbery materials can add to a car's life by resisting rust while saving on high repair costs by minimizing damage in minor collisions, Jay said.

A block of rubber is the impact-absorbing heart of one of the simplest and most reliable bumpers already in use, he said.

"Although a short-term scarcity of petrochemicals is affecting a portion of the plastics industry, feedstocks are expected to be adequate for both rubber and urethane, the prime candidates for auto body use," he said.

CONNIE STAYROOK

GARY TAYLOR

Seniors of the Week

By ANN CAMPBELL

"I have enjoyed my four years at Miami Trace, but I'm looking forward to graduation. My advice to the underclassmen is to enjoy your high school years because they go very fast," comments Connie Stayrook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Stayrook, Rt. 1, New Holland.

Connie has been very active this year. She is a member of AFS, Y-Teens, Folksingers, Vocal Council, and a member of the Grace United Methodist Church. Connie has also been a cheerleader all four years at Trace. Her talents were obvious as she sang and danced the lead role of "Nanette" in this year's production of "No, No, Nanette."

Her courses this year are Psychology, Sociology, Journalism, Speech, Government, Child Development, Housing, Symphonic Choir, and Bookkeeping.

In her spare time, she enjoys camping, water-skiing, and singing.

This fall, Connie will be attending Clark Technical College in Springfield where she will study to become a medical secretary.

Our next featured senior is Gary Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Taylor, Rt. 4, Washington C.H.

Gary has been very active in the field of farming. He has been a member of the Yatesville Producers 4-H Club, he's been in 4-H for nine years, is vice president of Junior Leadership, president of the Junior Fair Board, president of the Fayette County Farm Bureau Youth Organization, secretary and vice president of the Bloomingburg Presbyterian Youth Group, and a past president of FFA.

He loves to ride horses but says there is "not much time to do so after taking care of our sows and market hogs."

Gary has taken college preparatory courses up until this year. He now takes such subjects as Crop Production, Farm Power, Sociology, and Government. Gary leaves school at 1:30 to work on his farm.

Upon graduating, Gary will "continue farming with my father, then I'd like to, someday, raise purebred breeding swine."

Diane Oesterle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Oesterle, Rt. 1, New Holland, is our last senior of the week.

Diane' hobbies are bicycling, swimming, playing softball and basketball.

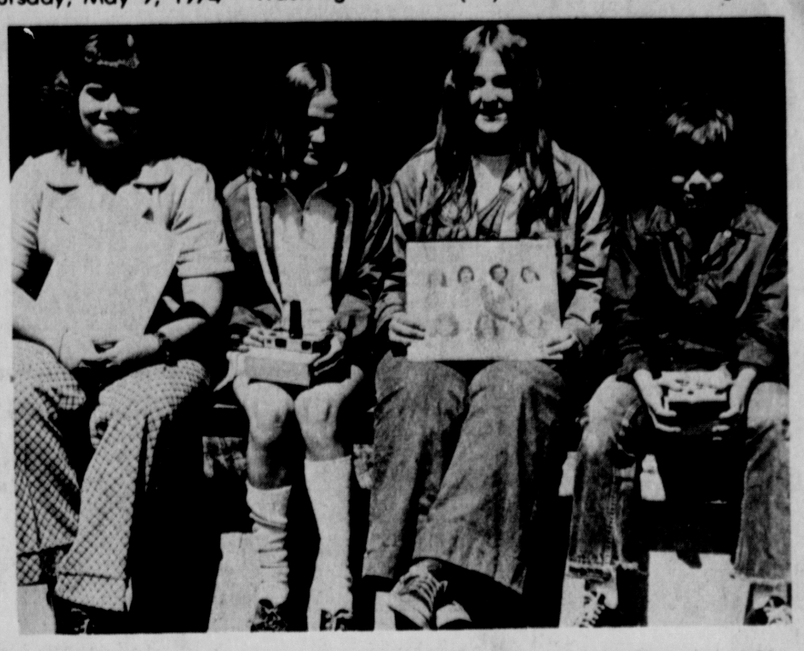
DIANE OESTERLE

She is taking Government, Advanced Math, World Literature, which is her favorite, Typing II, Physiology, and Art I.

Diane is very sports-minded. She played girls' basketball for two years, girls' softball for one year, and was in GAA. She is also in the Linguistic Arts Club.

After graduation, she would like to work for the government.

She says, "My years at Miami Trace have been very pleasant but I'm looking forward to graduation and the future."



"YOU WIN!" — was what these Record-Herald paper carriers were told because of their incentive in recruiting new customers, promptness in paying bills and perseverance in making deliveries. Cardinals turn back Cincinnati, 2-0

Curtis blanks Reds on three hits

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Three former Boston Red Sox players did in the Cincinnati Reds in back-to-back shutouts for the St. Louis Cardinals to sweep the two-game series.

"In spring training, I wouldn't have known either of them if they walked into my office," said Cards Manager Red Schoendienst.

T—1:57. A—9,864.

He referred to pitchers Lynn McGlothen, 4-1, who set Cincinnati down with four hits Tuesday night and John Curtis, 2-3, who turned the trick with three hits Wednesday night.

"I know them both now," beamed Schoendienst. "Curtis' control was better, that was a big change. He's got good stuff and if he gets the ball where he wants it he'll win."

Outfielder Reggie Smith, another ex-Red Sox, crashed two hits scoring Lou Brock in the sixth and eighth innings to down Don Gullett, 2-3. He has also been the Reds nemesis for St. Louis which has taken four of five games from the Reds this season and is 11 for 21 at the plate. He has 26 runs batted in and is hitting .375.

All three came to the Cardinals in trades over the winter.

"I knew I wasn't going to start the season bad," said Smith. "When you're happy you plan well and I'm happy just being away from Boston. I always identified with the National League. In Boston there was undo knocking in the media towards me and I wasn't exactly pleased with the guys.

"There were too many immature players who were too busy watching what the other guys did instead of taking care of themselves."

Curtis said he felt in control throughout the game.

"I must be part duck because the rain did not bother me at all," he joked. The game was played under a tornado watch from the National Weather Service, but no storm conditions materialized.

"I've been fed up with the early walks and some other bull that I've been doing out on the mound. That's just not me. I just decided to go out there and get with it tonight," he said.

Curtis erased the final 18 men he faced with the help of two double plays turned in by the Cardinals, both involving catcher John Bench who had two Reds hits.

It was the first time the Reds, 1973 Western Division champs, suffered back-to-back shutouts in 142 games. The Cubs did it to them in May, 1973.

Reds Manager George "Sparky" Anderson was philosophical about the double loss.

"You run into these things when you're just not hitting. It goes in streaks," he said.

Cincinnati was held to only seven hits in the two-game stint. Cincinnati is idle today and opens a three-game series with Houston here Friday. St. Louis heads for Montreal.

Mayberry's shot gives Royals 4-2 victory

By The Associated Press

Kansas City slugger John Mayberry didn't have to call his own shot Wednesday night against Texas ace Ferguson Jenkins. His manager did it for him.

"Just before John went up to the plate I cautioned him about trying to pull Jenkins' sliders and curves down the line," said Royals' skipper Jack McKeon. "I told him just to aim for the 370-foot sign ... and that is where the ball went."

Mayberry's fifth homer, a two-run shot in the eighth inning, carried over the 370-foot sign in right field and gave the Royals a 4-2 victory over the Rangers, snapping Jenkins' personal five-game win streak and extending the Rangers' losing streak to four.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Boston Red Sox blanked the New York Yankees 4-0; the Oakland Athletics whipped the Baltimore Orioles 7-3; the Cleveland Indians downed the California Angels 32 in 11 innings; and the Chicago-Detroit and Minnesota-Milwaukee games were rained out.

Despite the loss, the Rangers hung on to first place in the West by a half-game over California.

Red Sox 4, Yankees 0

Bill Lee shackled New York on five hits and Carl Yastrzemski contributed a two-run single for Boston. Lee, who evened his record at 3-3, was helped by four double plays. Dick McAuliffe and Dwight Evans drove in the other Red Sox runs with singles.

Athletics 7, Orioles 3

Lefty Vida Blue recorded his first victory after four losses as Oakland snapped a three-game losing streak. Reggie Jackson, Bert Campaneris and Gene Tenace drove in two runs apiece for the A's. Earl Williams clubbed a two-run homer for Baltimore.

Indians 3, Angels 2, 11 innings

Cleveland tied it in the ninth on John Lowenstein's sacrifice fly and won it two innings later when George Hendrick doubled and Ossie Blanco singled him home. The surging Indians have won 10 of their last 12 games and have beaten California six straight times this season. The Angels scored one run while Cleveland was completing a double play and the other on an error by Tribe catcher Dave Duncan.

Bats silenced by NL hurlers

By The Associated Press

The National League is the hitters' league, right?

Don't tell that to a couple of refugees from the American League.

Their names are John Curtis and Jim Lonborg—although a lot of hitters are probably using more picturesque names today.

Curtis silenced Cincinnati's potent bats with a three-hitter Wednesday night, hurling the St. Louis Cardinals to a 2-0 triumph over the Reds.

Lonborg went him even one better. The former American League Cy Young Award winner manhandled San Diego, checking the Padres on two meaningless singles and pitching the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-0 victory.

In Wednesday night's other NL games, the New York Mets beat San Francisco 4-2, Los Angeles defeated Montreal 6-3 and Houston belted Pittsburgh 8-6 in 12 innings. Atlanta at Chicago was rained out.

Phils 4, Padres 0

Lonborg's shutout Wednesday was the first of the year by a Philadelphia pitcher and his first in the National League. He held the Padres to singles by John Grubb in the fourth inning and Willie McCovey in the seventh.

Mets 4, Giants 2

Jon Matlack pitched a fourhitter for the Mets—one of the hits a Bobby Bonds homer—and Jerry Grote and Felix Millan drove in two runs apiece to beat San Francisco.

Dodgers 6, Expos 3

Steve Garvey hit a two-run double in a four-run first inning that gave Andy Messersmith all the runs he needed to turn back Montreal.

Home runs by Ron Cey in the fifth and Jimmy Wynn in the seventh gave the Dodgers their other runs. Ron Fairly belted a two-run shot for the Expos.

Astros 8, Pirates 6

Dave Parker put Pittsburgh on top in the top of the 12th with a solo homer—but Doug Rader unloaded a three-run shot in the bottom of the inning to vault the Astros past the Pirates.

Ladies have nine winners in golf outing

Thirty-two ladies participated in the Wednesday morning Ladies Golf Association at the Washington Country Club.

In the Class A division, Shirley Willoughby recorded the best score with a 51. Katie Moore registered 16 putts in her round and low net was won by Fran Junk's 41.

Jane Wintringham shot a 59 for low score honors in the Class B group. Sally Hagerty was the top putter with 17 putts and Helen Flee turned in a 44 net score.

Phyllis Lehman's 60 was tops in the Class C division. Linda Cramer had 18 putts and Dorothy Mahoney finished with a net score of 50.

Philadelphia Flyers seek to boost morale

BOSTON (AP) — The Philadelphia Flyers have adopted a "You Gotta Believe" battle cry in hopes of squaring things against the Boston Bruins tonight in the second game of the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup final series.

The Flyers have not won in Boston since their NHL expansion club posted a 4-2 victory in its first appearance at the Garden Nov. 12, 1967, and Coach Fred Shero admittedly was concerned.

"I think losing so much to Boston in the past has affected us," Shero said after the Bruins' 3-2 victory in the best-of-seven series opener Tuesday night.

Men's golf league

Because of the bad weather Wednesday evening, the men's golf league was rained out at the Washington Country Club. The men will make up their mtaches this Monday evening.

Nets' series sweep eliminated

Stars find new life with 97-89 win

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — "We lucked out in the third game and made too many mistakes in the fourth," declared New York Nets' rookie Coach Kevin Loughery who now must rally his forces.

Injured Ron Boone proved the decisive factor Wednesday night in the Salt Palace as Utah's Stars escaped oblivion with a fourth-quarter rally and a 97-89 victory over the Nets in their American Basketball Association championship series.

Although New York leads the best-of-seven series, Loughery has problems.

On Monday night here, a last-second three-point shot by Brian Taylor knotted the count at the end of regulation play and the Nets went on to win 103-100 in overtime.

Boone suffered an unusual injury in the second game of the championship playoffs. His left hook caught Taylor in the teeth and severed a tendon in Boone's left hand.

He plays with the fingers taped and bandaged and on Monday scored only two points.

"I had a little less padding on my hand and the shots were just falling for me," the five-year pro veteran from Idaho State said. "We gained a lot of confidence."

The Stars also have an improved Zelmo Beaty and the 6-foot-9 pivotman kept Utah in the game with 14 points in the third quarter as New York outscored the home club 34-24 and took a 76-74 lead. He had 18 for the night.

In the final period, the New Yorkers scored only 13 points and ace Julius Erving had none although finishing as the Nets' leading scorer at 18.

"We were not nearly aggressive enough," Loughery said. "We'll have to pick up hustle for Friday. We are just fortunate to have the 3-1 lead."

No team in major professional basketball ever has lost three straight in a best-of-seven playoff start and rallied to win four in a row.

Beaty, who suffered a gland infection, missed the first two games in New York, but he's now back in action and appears to be gaining full strength.

"We expected him to start hitting sooner or later," said Loughery, "and sure enough, he did. We tried to double up on defending against him, but he hit a bunch in a row there in the third quarter."

Hardship cases eligible for draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Scoring aces James "Fly" Williams of Austin Peay, Gary Brokaw of Notre Dame and Campy Russell of Michigan and rugged rebounder Maurice Lucas of Marquette head a list of 20 college undergraduates who will be eligible for the National Basketball Association's May 28 college draft as hardship cases.

Williams is a sophomore, the others juniors. They will become eligible to play pro ball next season, ahead of their classmates, under the NBA's hardship system whereby a player obtains special classification because of financial need.

Also accepted for the NBA's hardship draft were Alvan Adams, Oklahoma; Jimmy Baker, Nevada; Michael Sojourner and Luther Burden, Utah; Rubin Collins, Maryland Eastern Shore; John Edward Drew, Gardner Webb; David Mitchell, West Florida; Eric Money and Coniel Norman, Arizona; Roscoe Pondexter and his brother Clifton Pondexter, Long Beach State; Robert Taylor, San Francisco State; Mel Utley, St. John's, N.Y.; Henry Williams, Jacksonville; Rudy Jackson, formerly of Hutchinson Junior College, and Michael Washington, Southeastern Community College.

The 6-foot-5 Williams was the nation's third-leading scorer in 1973-74, averaging 27.5 points per game. As a freshman he averaged 29.5 points per game to rank fifth in the nation.

Brokaw, a guard, was a key man on the fifth-ranked Notre Dame team that ended UCLA's 88-game winning streak. The Irish finished 26-3 for the season.

Russell, a 6-8 forward, averaged 23.7 points per outing for sixth-ranked Michigan, 22-5. Lucas, 6-9, helped Marquette to a 26-5 record and a No. 3 ranking.

Borg's play shows plenty of maturity

DALLAS (AP) — He's just 17, and doesn't shave. He has a mop of unruly blond hair that flies like a pony's tail. He looks like a kid who has been separated from his mother at the supermarket.

But don't let Bjorn Borg's callow youth fool you.

"If you don't take him seriously he will murder you," says the veteran tennis star Rod Laver. "He's mature and he's very good."

Laver should know. He lost to Bjorn 6-1, 6-1 in the semifinals of the World Championship Tennis tournament this year in Barcelona.

"He could be the best 17-year-old tennis player who has ever lived," says Arthur Ashe. Ashe's career record against the youngster is 2-3, losing twice this year.

Ashe and Borg clash in one of the remaining opening-round matches of the WCT tourney tonight at the Moody Coliseum. It's Borg's first appearance in the pros' $100,000 event.

Bjorn Rune Borg of Sweden is the new wonder kid of tennis, acclaimed the greatest teenager to reach the big time since Ken Rosewall and Lew Hoad toured the world for Australia in 1952.

"I don't miss school much," says Bjorn, who dropped out after his first year in high school. "I don't know what I could learn in school to make more money than I make now."

The good-looking Swede earned $49,100 on the pro circuit last year. So far in the young 1974 season he has picked up $55,145. A victory in the WCT finals here—a longshot but possible—would net him another $50,000.

"We have heads of companies in Stockholm who don't make that much money," Bjorn says realistically.

Lancaster hosting sectional track

BY LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

For many tracksters, the long journey to the state high school track championships begin tomorrow with the Class AAA Sectional.

Miami Trace, under the guidance of coach Fred Zechman, will be competing at Lancaster High School with 13 other schools. A scratch meeting will be held at 2 p.m. and the preliminaries will be under way at 3 p.m.

According to Zechman, four members of his squad have good chances of qualifying for the district meet. The top three finishers in each event will advance to the district, which is to be held at Upper Arlington High School next week.

The four tracksters Zechman was referring to were Ron Warnock, David Steinhauser, Clay King and Ernie Perry. Warnock will be competing in the shot put, in which his best put this season is 50' 10". Steinhauser, who is entered in the high jump, has leaped six feet this year. King has turned in a 53.1 in the 440 and Perry is one second off of the school mark in the two mile, as he was clocked in 10:29.4 Tuesday evening.

The sectional track meet is not a new addition to the schedule. In past years, the tournament trail consisted of district, regional and state track meets. The regional meet, which was just a qualifying meet for the state and not for team competition, was dropped from the agenda and tracksters qualified for the state through the district meets.

Ohio High School Athletic Association officials agreed that the sectional meet was needed. Actually, the sectional meet now takes the place of the district and the district takes the place of the abandoned regional meet.

Race driver not after sympathy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Salt Walther appreciates the sympathy, but he is ready for people to stop feeling sorry for him. Now he just wants to race.

"Yes, I do get a little tired of people feeling so sorry for me," the husky 26-year-old driver admitted. "So many people come up to me and say 'Gee, that was a terrible accident you had; what a recovery you've made.'"

"It's nice to have people so concerned, but I begin to wonder if people know me because of my driving talents or just the wreck," the Dayton, Ohio, driver added. "If anything, I hope people remember me because of my comeback, not the accident."

Walther spent 2½ months in a hospital, recovering from disfiguring burns suffered in a flaming 12-car accident at the start of the 1973 Indianapolis 500-mile race.

Nine months after the crash, he was racing again. He piloted his new blue and white McLaren — once driven by the late Peter Revson — to an eighth-place finish in his first outing, a 100-mile qualifying race at Ontario, Calif. He performed well in two other races, one in which he received superficial burns during a pit fire.

Now he is back at Indianapolis, practicing for his third 500-miler. His first day on the track, Monday, he attacked the 2½-mile course, turning in some of the fastest early speeds.

Red China edges toward Olympics

LONDON (AP)—The Peoples Republic of China is moving closer week by week to participation in the Olympic Games.

By the end of next week the Chinese could be fully fledged members of five international federations governing Olympic sports.

They have been edging towards this target for the last six months.

SHAMROCK 4-H

Robin Hicks collected dues for the meeting of the Shamrock 4-H Club. Angels Stephens gave roll call and for recreation, all went to the park to play. Most of the girls wanted to wade in the water near the dam. The leader told all members to bring permission slips. After recreation, every one returned to the leader's house and the meeting was closed with the 4-Pledge.

The second meeting was when all members were assigned a project of making a scarf for the next meeting. Robin Hicks collected dues and roll call was made by Angela Stephens. Sue and Melinda Showalter held the flag for the Pledge of Allegiance and Star Spangled Banner. Then the group went to the park for races and a baseball game.

Jennifer Slager, reporter

COUNTRY COUSINS

Congratulations were offered to Dee Dee Lange, who won the food and nutrition award and Lynne Rapp for her award in the bread project, in the Ohio 4-H awards program. These girls will represent Ohio this fall at Chicago, Ill. Further congratulations were offered to Marlene Braun who is the Fayette County Feef Queen this year. All three girls are members of the Country Cousins.

"Purple Promises" was the title of Joan McCoy's devotions.

Cynthia Cunningham passed out health records to the girls and explained them. "Tornadoes" was the topic of Elizabeth Cunningham's safety report. One of the most important things to do is turn on the television to Chanel 13, when it comes on turn it to a darker color, then turn to Chanel 2 and if or when a lighter color comes on this show that a tornado is approaching. Then one should find a safe place, such as a basement to stay, she said.

Sandy Lewis gave a demonstration on "How to Place a Pattern."

Sheila Gordon led the group in a game and refreshments were served by the hostesses, Diana O'Pry and Sharon Self.

Nancy Rapp, reporter

CRAFTY CRAFTSMEN 4-H

A regular meeting was held in the home of Eric VanZant with all members of Crafty Craftsmen 4-H Club present. A very good safety talk on "Fire Hazards Around the Home and Farm" was made.

There was a question provided about the type of fire extinguisher which would be used for certain fires. There was a pamphlet handed out called "17 Ways to Reduce Fire Hazards."All members were asked to go home and check on all of these hazards.

The next meeting will be at Wayne Hall in Good Hope.

GIRL SCOUT TROOP 612

Girls Scout Troop 612 left May 3 for a two night primitive camping trip in Camden. We returned May 5. The girls cooked all their own meals over an open camp fire, and we dug our own latrines and put up a cover to shelter it.

Saturday was spent hiking and exploring the woods. The hike was especially rewarding when we discovered a creek bank of blue clay. At night we had a large camp fire where we kept warm while we sang songs and told ghost stories.

In spare time, we swung on the many grape vines surrounding the camp. We all earned our troop campers badge and started requirements for our gypsy badge.

Those attending were Carla Barnett, Kim Irons, Lisa Winters, Tammy Stone, Kim Thompson, Sandy Stone, Paula Cummins, Terri Williams, Denice Coder, Lori Wilson, Daphne Moran, Loretta Jette, and Brandi Wilson from Troop 612.

Tara Wilson and Ruby Elliott came from GS Troop 1203, and Carol Van Hoose came from a Girl Scout Troop in West Alexandria. Jenny Barnett, Tommy Coder, Martha VanHoose and Nancy Sink were guests of the troops. Adults accompanying the girls were Mr. and Mrs. William Barnett, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Yahn and Mrs. Tom Coder.

Opening lead - two of diamonds.

Obviously one should tend to avoid a finesse that produces no profit when it succeeds and is expensive when it fails. The principle is self-evident, but the type of hand where it applies is not always easy to recognize.

South was in six hearts and West led a diamond. Declarer finessed the queen, losing to the king, and later went down one even though the club finesse succeeded.

Had South taken the ace of diamonds, drawn trumps, and then tried the club finesse, the story would have been altogether different. South's diamond loser would have gone on dummy's fourth club and he would have lost only a spade trick.

When you think about the matter, it becomes clear that what led to South's undoing was the diamond finesse at trick one. The fact is that the finesse could not help South to make his contract. If West had the king, the finesse would work all right, but it would not bring South any closer to home.

Before playing to trick one, South should have pondered over what he required to make the contract. As a spade loser is inevitable in any case, it is evident that South cannot make the hand unless the club finesse succeeds. It is equally evident that if the club finesse is due to succeed, South does not need the diamond finesse.

To finesse the diamond is an absolutely futile gesture. The finesse clearly jeopardizes the slam and hence incurs an unnecessary risk.

The only time the diamond finesse shows a profit is when West has the king of diamonds and East has the queen of clubs. In that event declarer saves a trick by going down one instead of two, but this is surely an insignificant factor where a slam is concerned.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Vaccinations Still Necessary?

A few years ago our children were not allowed to enter school unless they were vaccinated. I now hear that this is no longer necessary. Is this true and why?

Mrs. V. P., N.J.

Dear Mrs. P.:

I assume that you are referring to vaccination against smallpox. There has been a distinct change in attitude in recent years about the need for this vaccination. This is because the disease is considered to be wiped out.

Public Health officials at this time no longer require evidence of vaccination for readmittance to the United States after foreign travel.

The safety record is apparently so great that some states may not require vaccination for entrance to schools.

If you are referring to protection against diphtheria, whooping cough, measles, German measles, tetanus, and polio there may not be a legal requirement, but certainly children deserve the protection from all of these diseases.

A single loss of life, anywhere in the world, because of inadequate protection is a tragedy that must be avoided.

Mrs. E. E., Ga.

Dear Mrs. E.:

Many people refer to "stomach pains" when they really mean "abdominal pains." You apparently are concerned with pains in the abdomen.

Pains, cramps and spasms are usually unimportant. Occasionally, however, these pains, cramps and spasms may be symptoms of more serious underlying conditions.

For this reason there is no universal rule about the choice of hot or cold applications. For example, the simple, easily recognized pain of menstrual cramps can benefit from heat.

A cyst on the ovary or an attack of appendicitis may, on the other hand, definitely be harmed by heat.

Persistent abdominal pain associated with nausea, vomiting and diarrhea should not be treated by home remedies of any kind. Enemas can convert a simple problem into a complicated one.

The character, the intensity, and the distribution of pain is of extreme diagnostic importance to the doctor. Both hot and cold can mask or hide pain and give a false sense of security in some abdominal disorders.

Impeachment panel sifts jury evidence

WASHINGTON (A) — The House Judiciary Committee is getting its first look at the celebrated briefcase full of grand jury evidence relating to President Nixon's role in the Watergate cover-up.

The material, forwarded to the committee for its impeachment inquiry by Judge John J. Sirica of U.S. District Court, has been examined by the chairman, ranking Republican member and chief staff lawyers, but has not been available to committee members until today.

Now, after months of being kept in the dark about it and other evidence gathered by the impeachment staff, the committee will start considering the case for and against Nixon's impeachment.

The opening of the crucial phase of the inquiry will be marked by a round of speeches in public session, after which the committee will go into executive session to consider evidence bearing on the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said Wednesday the closed sessions probably would continue through next week, after which a decision will be made on opening them.

Another decision facing the committee is what to do about Nixon's refusal to give it any more Watergate material. The committee has subpoenaed tapes of 42 presidential conversations dealing with Watergate and has a request pending for 76 more.

At a Democratic caucus Wednesday there was unanimous support for issuing a new subpoena, but divided opinion on when it should be issued and what it should cover.

The most likely course to be followed was suggested by the senior Republican, Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, at a news conference with Rodino.

Hutchinson said that when gaps appear in the presentation of evidence and Chief Counsel John Doar says they could be filled by material sought from the White House, the committee could decide then whether to request it again.

Hutchinson said that rather than issue a subpoena, he would prefer to negotiate the matter with Nixon's lawyer, James D. St. Clair, who will be

Ohio House faces flood of new bills

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Both houses of the legislature held skeleton sessions Wednesday in advance of floor sessions next Tuesday formally reopening their 1974 deliberations.

It was the cut off date for bill introductions in the House, and members poured 73 new proposals into that chamber. The Senate set no cutoff date, and none was introduced.

Speaker A.G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, set no target date for adjournment of the session which started Jan. 2, but reiterated he hopes the lawmakers can wind up "some time in June."

The legislature was in recess from April 4, a break that gave members a chance to campaign in the May 7 primary election. It paid off for all but three.

Only 22 incumbents had primary opposition in the House, and they all won renomination. The lower chamber wound up 14 lame ducks, however — those who decided to retire or to run for higher office. Their terms expire the first of next year.

Three incumbent senators were defeated — Sens. Harry L. Armstrong, R-17 Logan; Howard C. Cook, R-1 Toledo, and Anthony F. Novak, D-23 Cleveland.

Subjects of the 73 new House bill covered a wide range, including a pair by Rep. Jerome P. Stano, D-7 Parma, on highway safety. He proposed the

Trudeau out; vote in July

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's political parties began preparing today for a general election in July after the toppling of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's Liberal government. Inflation was certain to be the major campaign issue.

By a 137-123 vote, the House of Commons adopted a motion of no confidence in Trudeau's minority government. The 54-year-old prime minister said he would call on Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger today to ask him to dissolve the lower house and call an election.

Election day is expected to be July 8. Meanwhile, Trudeau and the Liberal cabinet continue in office as a caretaker government.

Trudeau said in a telecast after his defeat that he welcomed the electoral fight but considered the interruption of parliament while the country faced inflationary problems "unfortunate and unnecessary."

Trudeau was brought down by the New Democratic Party, Canada's third largest political faction, whose support had kept him in office since the Liberal majority in Commons was reduced to a minority by the 1972 election.

Parking, subdivision measures OKd

Council paves way for new industry

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald City Editor

City Council members Wednesday night assisted in clearing the path for a new industrial plant interested in locating in Washington C.H.

Council members unanimously adopted a resolution to cooperate in the location of a new industry for Washington C.H. The new plant, the identity of which was not disclosed, will manufacture fiber glass and polyethelene tanks, according to the formal resolution.

In other legislative matters, Council adopted new subdivision regulations for Washington C.H. and formally approved changes in parking meter enforcement hours.

However, before the approval of five items of legislation, Council member Mrs. Bertha McCullough said she had "second thoughts" regarding the passage of legislation carrying emergency tags.

Mrs. McCullough was concerned because she felt, after receiving complaints from other city residents, that emergency tags on legislation constituted a tool used by Council to enact laws without adequately informing the public.

It was explained by Council Chairman John E. Rhoads that emergency tags merely expedite passage of legislation. Three readings of an ordinance are not required when rules are suspended under emergency legislation procedures and publication of the proposed legislation is not requred.

City Manager Dan Wolford explained that emergency legislation also deletes a 30-day period following passage for enactment of the legislation. He also said that the word emergency does not necessarily suspend the second and third readings of an ordinance.

SUBDIVISION regulations, which have been described earlier as "a stimulus for well-planned community growth," were adopted as emergency legislation by Council. The new standards had been submitted to Council with a strong endorsement for approval by the City Planning Commission.

The regulations were originally proposed early in 1973, but were delayed after City Council had requested a number of revisions.

It was again pointed out that the regulations were prepared with the professional assistance of a number of experts including developers, surveyors, engineers and architects in addition to personnel from the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development in Columbus.

The regulations, which have been applauded by developers, builders and other authorities, will replace the present standards established in 1962.

A public hearing was held during the opening portion of the Council meeting to provide residents with the opportunity to voice objections to the regulations. No objections were voiced.

Wolford pointed out that state regulations forced some new amendments in the city's subdivision standards. He said the regulations contain a consistent explanation of exactly what is expected from developers.

Council member Hugh Patton said

Council offers new pay package

A new salary and benefits proposal for city employes has been drafted by Washington C. H. City Council members, it was disclosed at Wednesday night's meeting of the legislative body.

Council members huddled in an unannounced "work session" prior to Wednesday's regular meeting to hash over the new proposal.

Chairman John E. Rhoads said the new offer has not yet been delivered to city department heads. Contents of the package were not disclosed.

The new proposal was drafted after representatives of the Washington C. H. police and fire departments expressed displeasure over a previous salary and benefit improvement package last Friday.

The major disagreement between police officers and firemen over Council's proposal is that the package did not contain any immediate provisions for a salary increase as requested by both departments in correspondence submitted earlier this year.

The police and fire departments submitted proposals, which included salary hikes and other fringe benefits, to Council more than two months ago and the city's legislators returned the counter proposal April 22.

PROPOSALS for all individual city departments differed and apparently all sections, except the police and fire departments were satisfied with Council's plan, Rhoads indicated.

Police officers had requested pay increases amounting to about 15 per cent in their original proposal, while the fire department's request contained an approximate 10 per cent pay raise.

Council's counter proposal to both departments included revised health care insurance coverage, increased uniform allowances and life insurance policies.

Chester Hamulak, 1028 Center St., criticized Council members for not providing a pay increase for the city employes.

"These dedicated men need better wages," Hamulak said.

The frequent Council visitor also mentioned that a number of concerned citizens had conducted a survey which disclosed that at least 50 per cent of the city's residents would be in favor of a one-half per cent income tax.

Nixon drowns scandal with words

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After futile efforts to dam up Watergate, the White House apparently is trying now to drown the scandal in a deluge of words.

That's half the strategy. The other half is to stonewall it against further disclosures of White House tape recordings demanded by Congress and the special prosecutor.

Public release of the edited Watergate transcripts, and the series of White House analyses, speeches and comments that have followed, add up to an intensive campaign to get across the President's version of the story.

One assumption in that effort has to be that, however many Americans take the time to read the 1,254 pages of edited conversations about Watergate, almost everybody will know that the President made them public.

In that campaign, the act of releasing the White House transcripts was itself a crucial step, whatever reading they get and whatever construction is put upon their ambiguities. It was unprecedented, and it put the White House in a position to say that the President, by his own decision, had revealed "the whole story of Watergate."

The President and his men are stressing two themes: That the transcripts, for all the scars they may put on Nixon's image, show him innocent of knowledge of Watergate or it's cover-up, and that everything relevant to the case has now been made public.

The key is relevance and the fact is that the White House decided what fits that description.

House impeachment investigators do not agree that the whole story is out. Furthermore, they want to judge for themselves what is relevant, not only in the transcript tapes but in other recordings of White House conversations.

The House Judiciary Committee seeks tape recordings of nearly 150 conversations not covered by the transcripts, involving Watergate and such other issues as dairy cooperative campaign contributions and the ITT antitrust settlement.

The President says he will yield no more on Watergate, but left room for negotiations on evidence in the other areas.

Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski seeks tapes of 64 presidential conversations, including 20 covered in the edited transcripts.

The Senate Watergate committee, saying it doesn't trust the transcripts, still is battling in court for five Watergate tape recordings—which the others already have.

So while the President has released a pile of transcripts, it is only a fraction of what is being sought. His lawyer, James D. St. Clair, says the demand would be never-ending if Nixon yielded more.

The edited tape transcripts are a

Transcripts bring mixed reaction

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ray Sauers took up President Nixon's invitation to read the edited transcripts of his private Watergate conversations, which Nixon said "will tell it all."

Sauers, one of the first to buy the blue-bound volume, doesn't think it does. Other first day purchasers think it does.

"It's a survival effort," Sauers concluded Wednesday after reading the critical March 21 conversation when then White House counsel John W.Dean III told Nixon of the full proportions of the Watergate break-in, conspiracy and coverup.

Sauers, 33, a research analyst from Birmingham, Mich., and his 8-year-old daughter, Laurie, were visiting Washington last week when the edited transcripts went on sale at the Government Printing Office bookstore. They were among the first in line when the doors opened at 8 a.m.

"The March 21 conversation convinces me ... hush money to (Watergate burglar E. Howard) Hunt was approved," Sauers said in a telephone interview from his home. "It does no more than re-enforce what I already believed ... These things (transcripts) hurt him."

A check with tourists, businessmen, housewives and lawyers who purchased the instant best-seller the first morning it was on the market indicates that many of them think the conversations raised more questions than they answered; most think the six-pound volume is worth the $12.25 it cost. All have read at least portions of the transcripts. None finished the entire volume.

"I've read some of the significant meetings," said Joshua Davidson, a customs lawyer from New York City who purchased the volume while in Washington on business. "I think I'm in apparent agreement with a good many legislators in Congress who feel it hasn't helped the President one bit. In fact, it's been the reverse."

Tom Gallian, owner of a McDonald's Hamburger franchise in Dunn, N.C., disagrees. He took time off from a Chamber of Commerce convention in Washington last week to pick up several copies of the edited transcripts.

After getting "about half through," he said, "I voted for him (Nixon), and probably would do so again. I think it's a comedy of errors the President got into. I have no conclusions yet whether he's guilty or innocent ... I think he should turn over the tapes ... So he swears a lot? What the hell? We all do."

Mrs. Marjorie Hooper, an English teacher in a Washington high school, said after reading about 400 pages of the transcripts, "I think he (Nixon) warrants impeachment. There was definitely a cover-up after March 21. After he was informed, the whole group entered into a conspiracy to obstruct justice.

"I've been floored by the depravity of the whole situation."

Gilligan and Glenn patch up differences

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Gov. John J. Gilligan and exastronaut John Glenn patched up their eight-month-old dispute Wednesday and began making plans on how to operate their fall campaigns.

Gilligan will be seeking reelection and Glenn was the upset victor in Tuesday's primary election over U.S. Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, whom Gilligan appointed and endorsed for the nomination.

"We're looking forward to uniting the party and going into the fall campaign," Gilligan said after the two emerged from an hour-long confab in the governor's office.

Gilligan noted that Democrats often were involved in hard-fought primaries but then united in the general elections.

"The national issues," he said, "are more important than primary animosities."

Campaign aides accompanied both men to the private meeting. Gilligan walked into the cabinet room, where Glenn was waiting, to escort him into his office.

"Hello senator," Gilligan said, as he walked in holding an outstretched hand.

"I like that confidence," Glenn smiled as the two shook hands.

When they emerged an hour later, Gilligan said they had spent much of the time going over statistics of past campaigns and discussing the one in November.

Glenn will face Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk. Perk, a Republican, defeated Canton businessman Peter Voss to win his party's nomination.

Glenn and Gilligan had been close friends until last September, when the governor urged Glenn to strengthen the state ticket by running for lieutenant governor.

Glenn, at a Sept. 18 meeting at Democratic headquarters, made public the offer and accused Gilligan and state party officials of trying to throw the endorsement to Metzenbaum. He called it "bossism."

Glenn said he hadn't given any thought to any changes he might want at Democratic headquarters since he will be leading the party ticket in November.

He did say that he thought the party might want to modify its endorsement procedure.

Both men agreed that their campaigns would dovetail with those of the entire party ticket in November. Gilligan will face former Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Gilligan and other regular Democrats urged support for Glenn.

But Metzenbaum gave no firm indication of what his position would be with regard to Glenn. He merely issued a statement saying he was returning to Washington to "continue to represent the people of Ohio in the United States Senate until my term expires in mid-December."

Metzenbaum said he would "leave it to the political pundits to provide an analysis" of election results.

State Rep. Richard Celeste of Cleveland, who topped a ninecandidate field for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, said "I've always had a high regard for John Glenn.

"He has demonstrated he can and will campaign hard."

Gilligan won the nomination over the relatively unknown James D. Nolan of Cleveland, who surprisingly received nearly 300,000 votes out of about a million cast.

Rhodes swept to an easy triumph in the Republican primary over state Rep. Charles Fry of Springfield and Columbiana County Engineer Bert A. Dawson.

The votes hardly had been counted when Gilligan and Rhodes exchanged verbal brickbats.

Gilligan said his administration's four-year record would be on the line. Rhodes said "the Gilligan Gougers"

Wholesale price increases slow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sharp declines in farm and food prices slowed the rise in wholesale prices in April to its slowest rate in six months, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said wholesale prices increased seven-tenths of one per cent seasonally adjusted and five-tenths of one per cent unadjusted.

The increase was still high by normal standards but considerably below increases recorded since November.

April's rise compared with adjusted increases of 1.3 per cent in March, 1.2 per cent in February and 3.1 per cent in January.

Businesses crack anti-inflation front

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council's heralded anti-inflation commitments from big business appear about to crack unless Congress votes to hold them together.

Ford Motor Co. announced Wednesday price increases averaging $163 for its 1974 autos, and the council said General Motors was planning to follow suit.

The Ford increase was quickly branded by Council Director John T. Dunlop as unwarranted and in violation of Ford's commitment last December not to increase prices further for 1974 models, barring unforeseen major economic events.

A council source said Ford may have blundered in its timing since the announcement could provide additional incentive for Congress to grant the council authority to enforce anti-inflation commitments.

The Senate scheduled a vote for today on a bill that would grant enforcement authority to the council. The old authority expired on April 30 with the rest of the administration's wage and price control program.

About 300 major businesses in 17 industries made anti-inflation commitments to the council in exchange for early release from the government's wage and price controls before April 30.

Dunlop heralded these commitments at the time as being a major help in the fight against inflation.

Defections from the commitments also accentuated problems facing William E. Simon, sworn in Wednesday as Treasury Secretary, succeeding George P. Shultz.

At a White House ceremony, Simon said inflation was his No. 1 challenge. He called for a "new political will" by Congress and the administration to bring it under control.

The Labor Department today releases its Wholesale Price Index for April, which was expected to show another big jump in some wholesale prices.

Dunlop told newsmen inflation is boring deeper into the economy and may be reaching the point where it is irreversible.

After the Ford increase was announced, Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., said it showed a need for new standby control authority.

The administration backs the legislation to give it new authority to enforce commitments, but it opposes standby controls. It argues they would only induce additional wage and price increases.

Gilligan seeks lottery cash for 'human needs' programs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan said today he will ask the General Assembly to spend $43.5 million in proceeds from Ohio's new state lottery on "important, innovative programs to meet human needs."

Gilligan proposed the first $14.9 million from the lottery be used to pay off bonds financing the state's program of bonuses for Vietnam era veterans.

Next, he said, $12.5 million should be earmarked as "state matching money for all of the vocational education levies approved in the state to date."

He said the next $4.2 million would go for free transportation for senior citizens and $2.76 million would match federal money for emergency medical service programs for Cleveland, Cincinnati, Parma, Springfield and Toledo.

The governor, in unveiling his proposal, discounted reports of a surplus in the state treasury at the end of the year.

He said current projections show tax revenues running at about the level forecast by the legislature when it adopted the biennial budget a year ago.

Said Gilligan: "There will be no surplus."

Gilligan suggested $2.5 million be spent to insure completion of the Appalachia Highway from Albany to Athens — it would be used to get $10 million in federal money—and not $2 million be used to underwrite the cost of paying patient workers at state hospitals.

He said another $1.54 million would go to the Ohio Development Center to stimulate growth of business and industry in Ohio and that the Ohio [illegible] Fair would get $1.5 million to bring facilities into compliance with health and safety regulations.

The governor proposed that $800,000 be spent for renovation and construction work at the state School for the Blind, $322,317 for operation of the new Ohio Emergency Energy Board, $262,494 to permit the Ohio Department of Natural Resources to take over Edgewater and Gordon parks on Lake Erie in Cleveland, $110,000 for disaster relief services for the residents of the tornado-torn Xenia area and $100,000 for Ohio's participation in the National Bicentennial Celebration.

Adoption authority clarified

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A county welfare department may not block an adoption proceeding that has the approval of a probate court, Ohio's Supreme Court has ruled.

The unanimous decision came Wednesday in a case involving Mr. and Mrs. Grover Hanna of Ravenna. The Portage County Welfare Department sought to prevent their adoption of a female child it originally placed in their custody Dec. 5, 1969, making them foster parents.

Records showed that in August 1972, the department removed the child from the Hannas' custody and placed her with another set of foster parents, James and Ruby Avery of Akron. The child, Antionette, had been with the Hannas since she was 12 days old.

The Hannas, subsequent to the removal of the child from their home, went into Portage County Probate Court and received approval of their application to adopt the child. The department and the Averys went into court to try to prohibit the adoption.

The Eleventh District Court of Appeals ruled against the Hannas on grounds the probate court lacked jurisdiction. It said state law requires the approval of the certifying agency (the department) in the approval of such an adoption.

However, the Supreme Court reversed the appeals court. Notwithstanding a requirement for the certifying agency to approve, the high court said the department may not act as "final arbiter" and "may not divest the probate court of its original and exclusive jurisdiction over adoption proceedings."

Kopechnes support Sen. Kennedy

SWIFTWATER, Pa. (AP) — The parents of Mary Jo Kopechne, who drowned when Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's car went off a bridge five years ago, say they will support the Massachusetts Democrat for President.

"We like the senator just as we liked his brothers, Robert and the President," said Gwen Kopechne, 56. "He stands for what I think is right. He's a lot better than what we've got now."

She and her husband, Joseph, 61, both said they thought Kennedy's political strength is in his appeal to youth. Kennedy, who has said he will decide next year about seeking the Presidency, has acknowledged the 1969 incident involving Miss Kopechne probably would be an issue if he runs.

But the Democrats and Doar appear to prefer a subpoena. Doar said at the news conference the issuance of a subpoena is the orderly, lawful way to proceed.

"It isn't a question of whether we will issue a subpoena, but when," said Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y.

Rodino said the opening phase of the presentation of evidence will be limited to Watergate, one of six areas of presidential conduct the committee is investigating.

Rodino said it probably will be the end of June before the committee is ready to vote on whether grounds exist for impeachment. House Majority Leader Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill said a full House vote on impeachment will take place about Aug. 1.

Cloudy skies, fog and rain set the weather picture in Ohio Thursday morning with little change in conditions seen over the next 24 hours at least.

[illegible] fell in all sections of the state during the night but by dawn was falling mostly in eastern counties. Fog was spotty and most dense in the northwest. Temperatures show a wide spread, varying from near 40 in the northwest to the middle 50s in the southeast.

The morning weather map showed a low pressure center in central Lake Erie with a trough from there to southwest Ohio. Rain and mild temperatures are east of a trough. West of the trough there are lower temperatures, fog and some drizzle. The trough and low pressure center will move east beyond the state today. Skies will be mainly cloudy today, clearing for a time in western sections tonight.

Friday, the state will come under the influence of another low pressure center which will spread rain into western and southern Ohio and return the clouds.

Mild with a chance of showers Saturday through Monday. Highs in the 60s Saturday and in the 70s Sunday and Monday. Lows in the 50s.

Storms soak wide area

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms and showers soaked a broad stretch of the eastern third of the nation today ranging from the lower Great Lakes to the Deep South.

Rain that began in the Ohio and Tennessee valleys during the night spread to the eastern Great Lakes and into Alabama and Georgia before daybreak.

Thunderstorms of lesser intensity continued along a front over the central Plains, and showers were scattered across the central Plateau and Rockies. Isolated showers sprinkled southern Florida and sections of the Washington coast.

Fair to partly cloudy skies prevailed from the lower Mississippi Valley through the southern Plains and over many Western states.

Unseasonably chilly weather clung to much of the Midwest and Great Lakes region where readings in the 30s and 40s were common overnight.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 28 at Sawyer Air Force Base, Mich., to 83 at Needles and Daggett, Calif.

registration of automobile repairmen and mandatory auto inspection in an effort to enhance safer operation of motor vehicles.

Stane was the author of a new state law that prohibits the use of studded snow tires on state highways except during the period between Nov. 15 and March 15.

Other new measures offered in the House covered subjects ranging from hunting and strip mining to a series of measures which in various ways would increase state aid to public education.

Rep. Sam Speck, R-95 New Concord, proposed in one measure to guarantee all school districts in the state a $75 per pupil increase in their subsidies for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Other proposals would:

—Prohibit the use of public money to provide school busing designed solely to bring about racial balance in the schools.

—Require an adult to accompany and supervise anyone under 18 using a firearm while hunting.

—Appropriate $1.5 million for the Sundry Claims Board for emergency disaster grants to pay damages such as those resulting from the devastating tornadoes in Greene County last month.

—Require a license as well as a presently required permit to engage in strip mining in Ohio.

—Expand Ohio's instructional grant program for needy college students to include those enrolled part time.

Both houses adjourned until floor sessions next Tuesday at 1:30 p.m.

Stock list up again

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices continued to climb today but trading remained slow, as the attractiveness of bargain prices of many stocks outweighted investor fears of rising interest rates and inflation, brokers said.

The Dow Jones average climbed slowly but steadily to 858.40, up 7.50 points at noon and advancing issues broadened their lead on declines to 3 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange.

The broad-based NYSE index gained .22 and stood at 48.75 at noon.

On the American Stock Exchange, the index rose .49 to 87.60 at noon.

Westinghouse Electric was the Big Board's most actively traded stock, off ⅝ to 15⅞, followed by General Electric down ¾ to 51.

Turnblazer sentenced

PITTSBURGH (AP) — William J. Turnblazer, the man whose testimony led to the murder conviction of former United Mine Workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle, has been sentenced to 15 years in prison on federal conspiracy charges.

U.S. District Court Judge Gerald Weber imposed sentence Wednesday.

Turnblazer pleaded guilty to the charges last Sept. 6, the day he and Boyle were indicted by a federal grand jury investigating the Yablonski family slayings.

That same day, previously secret state murder warrants against Boyle were released in Washington County, Pa., charging him with the Dec. 31, 1969 deaths of UMW insurgent Joseph "Jock" Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

Authorities said it was Turnblazer, former president of the UMW's Kentucky-Tennessee District 19, who supplied the information which led to the indictments against Boyle.

Priest backs President

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Jesuit priest on President Nixon's staff says the White House Watergate transcripts show that Nixon acted honorably in dealing with a "fetid episode ... a dark footnote on his administration."

Defending his boss against rising criticism from Democrats and Republicans alike, Dr. John McLaughlin said of the President's actions as disclosed by the recently released transcripts:

"The conclusion that they are amoral or immoral is erroneous, unjust and contains elements of hypocrisy."

At a news conference, Father McLaughlin said: "The President acquitted himself throughout these discussions with honor when you consider the circumstances ... the total context ..."

Reflectorized reindeer

The Lapland winters are tough on reindeer. Not, it turns out, because of the winters' severity, but because of their darkness, which for months on end prevails except for a brief twilight at midday.

It seems that great numbers of the reindeer, the chief source of livelihood for many residents of northern Fuinland, are run down by automobiles and trains.

The remedy of Lapland herdsmen have hit upon is of interest as a new example of human ingenuity. If a current experiment turns out well, some 100,000 reindeer will be fitted with traffic reflectors attached to a leather neck thong.

This will be no guarantee against their being hit by trains; it may not even be wholly successful in preventing livestock losses as the animals cross the main north-south highway in winter darkness.

Still, the idea is intriguing. If nothing else, the sight of reflectorized reindeer should help relieve the tedium for motorists tooling along Highway 4 north of the Arctic Circle.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Rodino to run tight ship

WASHINGTON — The great White House balk on the tapes was fully anticipated by the staff of the House Judiciary Committee.

Narrowing access down to matters allegedly relating only to Watergate, the President's counselors hoped to frustrate Chairman Peter W. Rodino's goal of holding up the Whole Nixon before the impeachment process.

But in spite of the stonewalling (that favorite White House phrase) the committee means to show how the milk fund, the President's taxes and ITT relate to his conduct in office.

As the public inquiry into the evidence goes forward before the committee, the plan of interrogation is as follows: Committee Counsel John Doar will present all the material available on the ITT case and the connection with an aborted antitrust suit. He will then call on the President's counsel, James D. St. Clair, seated at the counsel table, for tapes of presidential conversations on ITT.

St. Clair will replay with the statement that he has made repeatedly that they will not be forthcoming since the committee already has all the material relevant to the impeachment process.

AT THIS POINT Doar will zero in. He will demand to know why a matter directly related to the integrity of the Presidency in the conduct of a case involving a possible fix in a deal of hundreds of millions of dollars should be cancealed.

If the President has nothing to hide, why is he unwilling to let us hear what he had to say to the men who were putting the deal through? This demand will be repeated again and again as the long series of related charges comes before the committee.

St. Clair's repeated refusal will, in the belief within the committee, have a great impact on members of the House who may be wavering over an impeachment vote. For millions of television viewers, it will be a high point of the drama.

As pointed up in one charge after another, the objective of the staff is to build up a massive picture of rejection.

Should the stonewalling continue throughout the hearing on the evidence, the consequences in the committee's final report have been carefully thought out. Stressed will be the "irresistible inference" that the President has something to conceal and that concealment itself is a cause for impeachment.

REPUBLICAN leaders are saying that, by their count, the vote for impeachment in the House is still 45 votes short. They take it for granted that the Judiciary Committee will recommend a resolution of impeachment.

Rodino believes the final vote in the committee will not be on Republican-Democrat lines, or that at any rate, the division will be nothing like the 210 to 18 split over whether to accept the transcripts as satisfactory evidence as against the tapes. The chairman is determined to maintain, as far as humanly possible, an impartial position.

That is to say he wants to try to avoid becoming a partisan and advocate. Rodino declined an offer of network television time to reply to President Nixon's broadcast on the tapes. He will try during the public hearings to maintain the tightest control.

Although at one point he might have been concerned about his district back home in Newark, N.J., he has been able to put his worries aside. In the Democratic primary on June 4, Rodino will have opposition considered marginal.

His district is 55 per cent black. Running for his 12th consecutive term in 1972, his Democratic opponent was Mayor William Hart of East Orange, a black. Hart ran a formidable race, crowding Rodino too close for comfort.

THIS TIME the opponent is Michael Giordana, an Italian-American in a city where white ethnics once predominated. Newark Mayor Kenneth Gibson is a black who has become a leader among blacks in the nation. His problems in trying to keep the city solvent and to hold a peaceful balance between the races are enormous.

That the seniority escalator should have brought Rodino to the top in a key position at this critical moment is the kind of accident that now and then proves the system is workable.

A graduate of the University of Newark (Rutgers) law school, Rodino has learned a great deal in the rough and tumble of New Jersey politics and in his 26 years in the House.

Those who know him best believe he will run a tight ship throughout the upcoming public phase of the hearings and emerge with a more or less unified committee.

Startling evidence is to come that will bring the charge against the President close to bribery, which is a specific for impeachment in the Constitution. It will be a drama of an order the nation has never before experienced.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

A flood of hearsay

As a consequence of the acquittal of John Mitchell and Maurice Stans, there seems to be a sudden interest in the defects of the jury system.

No one has yet suggested the reintroduction of the old British custom, last employed in 1680, which permitted the judge to jail a jury which delivered the "wrong" verdict. But obviously something must be wrong with a system that lets off "bad men" like Stans and Mitchell.

The Times has suggested that the defense managed to stack the jury, and that the latter dominated by a Svengali named Andrew Choa, an educated, articulate man who became de facto foreman.

I admit that on the human level I would have loved to see John Mitchell — the big "law and order" man who launched all those lunatic conspiracy trials against the "Chicago 7" and the like — in handcuffs. But the obligation of a petit jury (as distinct from a grand jury) is to treat the accused as innocent until it is unanimously convinced, beyond a reasonable doubt, of guilt.

And I am prepared to say that, as I closely followed the testimony in the Stans-Mitchell trial, I became more and more convinced that it would not justify putting a dog in a pound.

TO REPEAT, this has nothing to do with my personal convictions about the defendants.

At the time of the first Alger Hiss trial for perjury, for example, I was convinced of Hiss' guilt but, if I had been on the jury, I would have voted "Not Guilty." The United States attorney simply did not present a case adequate to eliminate reasonable doubt.

The jury's reaction was similar: it was unable to reach a verdict, and Hiss had to be retired, this time by professionals who in my judgment, locked up the case. (I might add parenthetically that this kind of approach guarantees that I will never sit on a jury.)

Those of you who are bored with my attacks on the law of conspiracy can stop here. I can not resist any opportunity that presents itself to vent my passionate conviction that the time has come to drop conspiracy raps from the criminal code. As one of the Stans-Mitchell jurors is quoted as saying, "We came out 10 different ways on that one."

Well they might: the conspiracy charges were founded on a flood of hearsay. Wthout attempting an authentic rerun, the gist of an accusation was that Q told R that S had written a letter to Y. And what is a jury supposed to think when one of the government's prize witnesses is an admitted perjurer? The common sense question is, of course: "When did you decide to stop lying?"

Which brings us to the whole business of a normal jury's reaction to plea-coppers, which is going to play a major role in the trial of the "Watergate 7." Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski has developed copping a plea into a science: "If you turn state's evidence, the felony charge will be dropped. The train is just about to leave the station, but there's still time to get on board." (Not a quote from Jaworski, but a summary of his method.)

In the normal run of felonies, copping a plea may be vital to obtain direct evidence of crime: "If you tell us where the money is hidden, we'll let you off with a suspended sentence for grand theft auto." The canary sings, the cops go to the appointed spot, the money is found, and the plea-copper's accuracy is verified.

BUT IN a conspiracy case there usually is no tangible evidence to back up a copped plea. There is no tin box full of money hidden in the fireplace.

Rather, the man who turns state's evidence, like John Dean, presents fundamentally unverifiable hearsay: X told me Y said Z knew all about it, and that sort of blather.

In the New York case, for example, the jury had to choose between Dean's unprovable testimony and Mitchell's. The jurors knew that Dean had made a bargain but had produced no outward manifestation of inner and abiding veracity.

The jury, being sensible folk, inevitably suspected that there are characters around who would confess to assassinating President McKinley to avoid 10 years in the bucket.

The fault, dear Brutus, lies not in our jury system, but in the evidence. Now brace yourself for the Washington trial, where hearsay is going to flow like Niagara Falls and confessed perjuriers are going to be falling all over each other — but will there be a tin box?

Ferguson fights abortion outlays

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson remains steadfast in his refusal to approve payments for abortions performed on welfare patients.

Hundreds of vouchers—reportedly totaling more than $100,000—have been held up in Ferguson's office. The peppery 81-year-old auditor, a devout Catholic, said he will carry his fight to the U.S. Supreme Court if he is challenged in court.

The veteran state official claims abortions are murder and that the state will not be "subsidizing crime" if he can help it.

Ohio's Department of Public Welfare began paying for welfare patient abortions last August after a U.S. Supreme Court decision wiped out the state's anti-abortion law.

Welfare officials estimate the state paid out about $1 million for abortions at about $150 each before the auditor cut off payments.

Ferguson, who is retiring at the end of the year, is not alone in his position.

A bill approved by the House and pending in the Senate, giving the state a new abortion control law, provides that public funds may not be used to pay for welfare client abortions unless they are necessary to preserve the mental health or life of the mother.

Substantially rewritten and approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee, the bill is expected to be brought to a floor vote when the legislature returns to work after today's election.

The Senate version then would go back to the House for consideration of Senate changes.

Senate sponsors, including Sen. Robert J. Corts, R-13 Elyria, maintain most welfare patients would be able to find physicians who would affirm the necessity of an abortion to preserve mental health or life as the bill requires.

Not everyone agrees. Benson Wolman, executive director of the Civil Liberties Union of Ohio, maintains the provision runs afoul of constitutional guarantees of equal treatment under the law.

Most of the 10 blacks in the General Assembly say they don't like the provision because it would have the effect of depriving poor people of the right to have an abortion because they were unable to pay.

Wolman contends the proposal probably is unconstitutional in two areas other than the welfare provision. The areas he pointed out would require consent of parents for an abortion on an unmarried minor and would permit hospitals to refuse to perform abortions as a matter of policy.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Jane makes three and that's unlucky!

DEAR ABBY: My friend Jane and I work together. She and her husband and my husband and I had been close for years. Two years ago, Jane's husband died suddenly, and we were all shocked and deeply grieved.

My husband and I tried to make life easier for Jane. We invited her over and took her places with us so she wouldn't be alone. Her other friends had her for dinner once and that was the end of it.

It's going on the third year now and I think it's time Jane started to try to make a new life for herself. It's gotten so that she expects us to include her in everything. If we don't, she is hurt, and lets us know.

She and my husband and I are a regular threesome. And who do you think gets all the attention? Jane does. My husband pulls out her chair and helps her with her coat and I have to look after myself.

I mentioned this to my husband once and he said: "Why, you're jealous!"

How can I remedy this situation without hurting anyone? I don't know how much longer I can hide my feelings.

THIRD WHEEL

DEAR WHEEL: Why hide them? Tell your husband: "You're darned tootin' I'm jealous!" Enough is enough. Discontinue the threesome. Dig up a single man for Jane, or ask her to find one, but let her know that three is an unlucky number.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old male with an unusual problem. I've worked for the company for six years and have a good relationship with my boss, who is president and owner of the company. The problem is the boss's daughter who also works here. She is very friendly to me, and every chance she gets, she straightens my ties or gives me a little hug. This girl is very attractive and I find it difficult to get my work done when she's around.

Last week, while I was standing at the copy machine, she came up behind me and put her hands in my pocket to make change for a soft drink.

I don't want to offend the boss's daughter, but I can't reciprocate her friendly gestures, so what do I do?

BOTHERED IN LOUISVILLE

DEAR BOTHERED: You poor kid! Pretend she is just another girl in the steno pool. Why should she be penalized because she's the boss's daughter?

DEAR ABBY: For years I've been reading about women who use the excuse that they're too "tired" to get out of having marital relations with their husbands.

My husband and I are both in our early 30s. We've always had enjoyable sex relations until the last five or six years Now that I'm the mother of three small children, by the end of the day, I am so exhausted, the last thing I want to think about is sex.

Husbands don't realize how tiring it is to keep house, do the laundry, cooking, and care for three children under six years old.

When my husband comes home, his days work is finished and he can relax. My work goes on 24 hours a day. Where does justice lie?

Is it hard to understand that a wife loses interest in being a sex partner when her children are small and demand so much of her time and energy?

My husband still thinks I'm making excuses when I'm too tired at night. This can't be an original complaint. What do other young wives do?

IN LOVE WITH THE SANDMAN

DEAR IN: Your children will leave you one day, and unless you change your husband may leave before they do! Why not get a woman, or a schoolgirl, to come in for a few hours to give you a life? Don't let yourself get exhausted and out of sorts. If a wife stops being a wife-her husband starts finding excuses not to come home. Think about it.

NEW YORK (AP) — Although such shows as "Meet the Press" have long been major news attractions for Sunday audiences, few of the issues discussed on these shows have directly concerned black life in the United States

But two radio networks serving a predominantly black audience say they hope to remedy this shortcoming this month and the next when each starts a half-hour Sunday news show.

One network, the New York based National Black Network, says it's starting its new "Meet the Black Press" series this Sunday with a panel interview of Rep. Charles B. Rangel, DN.Y., a black member of the House Judiciary Committee.

The Washington-based Mutual Black Network, part of the Mutual Broadcasting System, says its Sunday news show, "The Mutual Black Forum," will start in June at a date that hasn't yet been decided.

Both new shows will be taped in advance, network officials say.

Mutual's show will be moderated by MBN newscaster Glen Ford, who'll be helped out each week by a different Mutual newsman and occasionally by a third reporter from outside the network, Mutual said.

The National Black Network's Sunday show will be moderated by newsman Ed Shannon, with two newsmen from outside the network brought in as guest panelists, NPN officials said.

The two networks now serve 157 radio affiliates with a basic daily diet of black-oriented news and sports items. What prompted the new shows?

"We simply felt there was a need to bring black — and white — social, political and economic leaders to a forum in which questions are raised in terms of the black community," said NBN president Eugene Jackson.

A similar reply came from Ralph Featherstone, general manager of the Mutual Black Network, who said the routine fare of sports and news just wasn't enough to sufficiently inform an audience.

The two black networks are relatively new in broadcasting. Featherstone said his company began operating two years ago this month and now has 92 affiliates. Jackson said his network started operations in July a year ago and now has 65 affiliates.

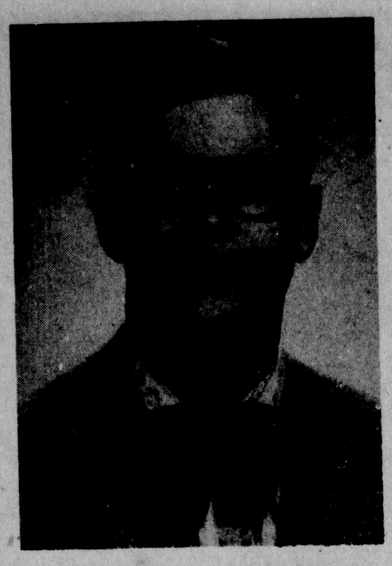
Hoffa wife, son lose union posts

DETROIT (AP) — The wife and son of former Teamsters President Jimmy Hoffa have lost their jobs with the union. Teamsters sources differed on whether it was a purge designed to stop Hoffa's comeback campaign.

The Teamsters International Executive Board, in voting to terminate the services of attorneys on retainer, in effect fired James P. Hoffa Jr., from his $30,000-a-year job.

In another action at its meeting last week in Dallas, the board voted to abolish the women's auxiliary of DRIVE, the union's political arm. Josephine Hoffa headed the auxiliary at an annual salary of $48,000, a union spokesman said in Washington.

A Macedonian astronomer, Andronikos of Kyrrhos, created a weathervane in the form of the god Triton, his hand pointing the direction of the wind, for the Tower of the winds in Athens around 50 B.C.



TO GRADUATE — Russell (Rusty) Zimmerman, son of Mrs. Dee Ellars of Lakewood Hills and Russell Zimmerman of Arlington, Tex., will be among the seniors to gradute from Belmont High School, Dayton, June 6. He will attend Sinclair College in Dayton and will continue working at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base where he has been employed part-time for the past two years.

Fernando Martin guest speaker at chapter meet

The American Field Service Adult Chapter held a meeting in the Washington Senior High School. Following a brief business meeting, Fernando Martin, AFS student living this year with the Rev. and Mrs. Gerald Wheat and family, was introduced to the group. He showed slides of his native land Spain, and particularly of his hometown Toledo.

Toledo is a small city of about 45,000 population, but no larger in actual size than Washington C.H. This is due to the fact that almost everyone lives in high-rise apartments so not much land is needed for growth. These apartments are usually owned by the tenants just as if they were separate houses.

Most people do not require cars since almost everything is within walking distance.

Although the newer dwellings appear very modern, effort is made not to disturb the old world look of the city, since Toledo is famous for its beautiful old Spanish architecture and archeological interest.

After the program, Fernando answered questions and expressed his thanks to the people in this community who made his year in Washington C.H. possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Robinson and daughters, Stephanie and Lisa, Bridge of Allan, Scotland, were visitors this past weekend in the home of his mother, and brother, Mrs. J.R. Robinson and Jack Robinson, 624 Columbus Ave., and with his brother-in-law and sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bachelor, 212 Grand Ave. Mr. Robinson has been transferred as plant manager to the Whiting, Indiana plant with Union Carbide.

M-D dinner attracts 75

Mrs. N.M. Reiff was guest speaker for the annual Mother-Daughter carry-in dinner and program held Wednesday evening in Good Shepherd Lutheran Church. Mrs. Reiff brought her collection of beautiful dolls, purchased while during her travels from most of the countries in the world, and told the story of 'Dolls.'

Mrs. Hilbert Meyer welcomed all present and introduced the speaker.

Tables were centered with flower arrangements in glass containers and some were presented as prizes later in the evening. There were 75 present.

"A Young Mother's Prayer" was presented by Mrs. Jack Sommers, and Leora Burdge read an article entitled "Mother".

A sing-along was led by Mrs. Roger Miller who also presented gifts to Stephanie Heath, Leora Burdge, Mrs. Tim O'Laughlin and Mrs. Cora Fennig, the "queens" for the evening.

The Mary Martha Circle members were hostesses with Mrs. Ora Burdge, chairman. Programs were in pastel shades and shaped like cakes.

Rev. Harold Shank, pastor of the church, was a special guest.

St. Colman Catholic Church is setting for wedding

St. Colman Catholic Church was the setting for the marriage of Miss Jeanne Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Campbell, Rt. 6, to Rick Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billie Miller, Rt. 1, Bloomingburg.

The Rev. Fr. Richard J. Connelly performed the double ring ceremony. Vases of gladioli, roses, carnations, mums and babies' breath graced the altar and the pews were marked with melon bows.

Miss Ann Black was the organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown with square neck, empire waist, and long chiffon sleeves with lace cuffs edged in pearls and lace. A wide row of lace with seed pearls was on the front panel of the skirt. Her long train was also trimmed with clusters of lace. Her elbow-length veil was caught to a cluster of petals. She wore a pearl necklace, a gift from the bridegroom, and carried a blue Rosary, belonging to her Great Aunt Eleanor Sullivan. She carried an arrangement of roses, carnations, mums and babies' breath.

Miss Debbie Schiller, maid of honor, wore a melon colored dress with long full sleeves and empire waist with matching train. The bridesmaids were Debbie Lower and Rita Berwanger, who wore gowns identical to that of the maid of honor except in blue. All three wore white floppy hats. Each carried two long-stemmed roses with babies' breath.

The flower girl was Chery Green, niece of the bride, who wore a pink checked dress with floppy hat of white with pink band. She carried a lace basket filled with roses. Chris Green, nephew of the bride, was the ringbearer.

Gary Campbell served as best man. Seating the wedding guests were Randy Johnson and Billy Miller.

Both mothers wore corsages of roses and babies' breath. The grandmother of the groom wore a corsage of white carnations.

Hostesses for the reception held at the Eagles Lodge were Mrs. Linda Campbell, Mrs. Betty Campbell and Mrs. Chris Campbell, sisters-in-law of the bride.

The new Mrs. Miller, a senior at Miami Trace High School, is employed at Steen's, and her husband, a 1972 MTHS graduate, is employed at Cincinnati Milacron in Wilmington. The couple is residing on Rt. 6, following a trip to King's Island Inn.

Reserve Mining Co. could close doors

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Republic Steel Corp. President W.J. DeLancey says the Reserve Mining Co. taconite plant in Minnesota may have to shut down if the company doesn't get a favorable court ruling on waste discharges into Lake Superior.

DeLancey told Republic shareholders at their annual meeting at Flemington, N.J., Wednesday that "Reserve and its shareholders are convinced that no health hazard exists" from waste discharges.

He said as soon as the Environmental Protection Agency reported a possible health hazard last year the company "moved to thoroughly investigate this new charge."

DeLancey said the health hazard charge was based on claims that the discharges contain "microscopic asbestos-like fibers and that such fibers were found in the drinking water of several North Shore communities, including Duluth.

"Immediately, Reserve sought out and engaged the most renowned authorities in the world to learn the true facts, whatever they might be.

"We have now had the benefit of their testimony in court," DeLancey said, "and on the basis of their reports to us and their testimony in court, we are convinced that no threat to health exists."

Reserve is owned by Republic and Armco Steel. DeLancey said the mining firm "is Republic's principal source of iron ore," producing about 55 per cent of the iron ore used by Republic during 1973.

The plant produces iron ore pellets by crushing ore-bearing rock and separating the iron from the rock.

DeLancey said before the pelletizing project was launched with an investment of $350 million, details of plans for disposal of the residue were cleared with "all governmental agencies interested in the subject."

He said the tailings from the plant flow into a "large, deep trough about five miles offshore and about 900 feet below the surface" of Lake Superior.

DeLancey said if the "health question" is not resolved satisfactorily "it is unlikely that prudent and concerned management could justify continuation of Reserve's operations."

He said Republican already has "made some protective moves" to provide continued sources of iron ore in the event of a Reserve shutdown. But he added that "no matter how successful we are...it is unrealistic to expect that out countermeasures will be able to place us in the same economic position we would be in if the Reserve operations continue."

Man pleads not guilty to murder

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)— Michial Shobek, 19, of Milwaukee, Wis., has pleaded innocent to charges of murdering an American tourist on a Bahamian beach.

Shobek broke a long courtroom silence Wednesday, entering the plea at the start of his trial for the murder of Irvin Bernstein, 44, of Ocean City.

Shobek, who also faces murder charges in the slayings of two other American tourists, had sat silent through nine previous appearances.

As the prosecution opened its case, the judge allowed Shobek's handcuffs to be removed.

In her opening remarks, Crown Counsel Janet Bostwick said that Bernstein arrived in Nassau on Jan. 17 aboard an Air Bahamas flight. His body was found on an [illegible] Cable Beach the next morning.

Police said they found Shobek's pen and sunglasses near the body. The prosecutor said a pen and pencil owned by Bernstein were found in Shobek's possession.

Mrs. Bostwick said that a black bag found on Paradise Island in Nassau, eight miles from the death scene, contained some of Bernstein's papers and Shobek's driver's license.

Shobek also has been charged with killing Katie Smith, 17, a Detroit student, and Paul V. Howell, a lawyer from Massillon, Ohio.

Last month, Supreme Court Chief Justice Leonard Knowles ordered a psychiatric hearing for Shobek, who police say has travelled between the Bahamas and the United States for about two years. The report was not introduced when the trial opened.

Rail work proves fatal to young man

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Eugene Conner of Youngstown said his son, Ronald, liked working on the railroad and "wanted to follow in Dad's footsteps."

Ronald Conner, 21, was one of two train crewmen killed Wednesday when a Penn Central Tansportation Co. freight crashed into a bridge over the Cuyahoga River in Cleveland's Flats area.

The elder Conner, a road foreman for engines and a 34-year veteran of Penn Central service, said he was working "in my own territory" when he heard about the accident.

"I went right to it," Conner said.

He reached the scene about two and a half hours later at 7:30 a.m.

Conner said his son had worked for the Penn Central for about three years and wanted to become an engineer.

"He liked it very much," Conner said. "After graduation from high school he wanted to go on the railroad the same as I did."

The younger Conner had been living in Madison, Ohio, but the body was taken to the Fox Funeral Home in Youngstown, where services were scheduled for 9:15 p.m. Friday.

The train's engineer, 53-yearold E.J. Koester of Bellefontaine, also has been killed in the crash.

The railroad said two other crewmen aboard the train escaped injury. They were identified as the conductor, W.E. Landis, 51, of Bellefontaine and the flagman, R.B. Talisman of Willowick.

A railroad spokesman said the train tried to cross the bridge while it was in a raised position and hit the massive counterweights which were near track level at the time.

The bridge had been raised to allow a lake freighter to pass underneath.

Koester and Conner were in the first of two locomotives on the 85-car train.

A Coast Guard official said diesel fuel leaking fom the crashed locomotive polluted the river "pretty bad."

Liquor Control attorney to address Kiwanis Club

The chief of the legal section of the Ohio Department of Liquor Control will address the Kiwanis Club at the Lafayette Inn Monday night.

J. Fred Rose, a former Kiwanian, will explain the workings of the liquor board to the membership. The meeting will begin at 6:15 p.m.

Rose was admitted to the practice of law in 1951 and engaged in private practice before becoming a referee in probate court, then a permit chief in the Department of Liquor Control, and finally the head of its legal division.

A native of Kenton, Ross attended in Bellfontaine schools and is a graduate of Ohio State University and the Capital University Law School. He was a lecturer on constitutional law at Ohio Dominican College.

A veteran of World War II, Rose served in China with the Office of Strategic Services and with Gen. George Marshall in his efforts to settle differences between the Chinese Communists and Nationalists.

Winter wheat harvest large

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The agriculture department predicted Wednesday that Ohio farmers will harvest the largest crop of winter wheat on record this year.

The Ohio Crop Reporting Service estimated the winter wheat crop at 69.3 bushels— three times the 1973 output.

The service estimated that Ohio farmers have 1,540,000 acres of the grain to harvest, up 114 per cent from last year. The acreage is the largest since 1954.

Yield, based on conditions on May 1, will be 45 bushels per acre, the service forecast. This is the same as the 1972 record yield.

Report boa constrictor stolen from store

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Pet store operator Greg Stewart decided Wednesday that "Pink" was not hiding and reported the 3½-foot boa constrictor had apparently been stolen.

Stewart said the snake—a rare pink boa—and his 35-gallon tank have been gone for about a month.

"Pink doesn't have the nicest disposition in the world," said Stewart. "He tends to snap at people," but only in defense.

Boas only go after things they think they can swallow, Stewart added.

The forests throughout Ontario include about 90 species of trees.

Food costs move over 16 per cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has lost, at least temporarily, one of his favorite lines: that the American people should count their blessings for having to spend less than 16 per cent of their take-home pay on food.

A report Wednesday by his department's Outlook and Situation Board showed that, in the first quarter of this year, after about two decades of annual decline or stability, the amount of disposable income allotted to food went up to 16.1 per cent.

On an annual basis, the percentage has been 15.7 for the last three years, even during last year's record 14.5 per cent boost in retail food prices. The expenditures-income ratio had been falling from 20 per cent in 1960 to 18.1 per cent in 1965 to 16.2 per cent in 1970.

The board also reported that it still holds as "most likely" the previous estimate of a 12 per cent increase in retail food prices for all of 1974 over all of 1973.

Warning that its 12 per cent annual rate estimate could be pulled either way by demand and supply changes, the board gave a range of 8 to 15 per cent for the final over-all average jump in retail prices over last year.

Portuguese adjust to changes

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Manuel Fernandes Videira is a plasterer, a man on a scaffold, who still reaches, bends, coughs in a sea of white dust nine hours a day for the equivalent of $25 in a brown pay packet at the end of the week.

He still takes the same overcrowded trolley bus downtown to work and his wife still packs him the same lunch of fish sandwiches. But for the plasterer, life has changed since April 25, when a military coup overthrew the authoritarian regime that had ruled Portugal for 48 years.

"It has to do with the boss," says Videira. "He's gotten very quiet all of a sudden. He's not stepping on my toes any more. He's promising raises, but there's a bigger change. It's in the way he talks. Before it was always work more, work harder. Now it's just do your job properly and do it well."

More than just a regime, the military coup that the Portuguese call "our revolution" overthrew a relationship between people—one which involved a sullen acceptance of authority and an assurance that power at any level would always go unchallenged.

The plasterer's wife works at the Lisbon University canteen, and she and the other women there felt free enough after the coup to complain about working on Sundays. As a result they got weekends off.

"You could say that we are a bit of a revolutionary couple," said Videira jokingly.

Life has changed, too, though not materially, for some of the privileged class—like Maria Fernanda Portugal Ribeiro, an elegant woman with two grown sons and a husband who commands a navy training ship.

Her cleaning woman still comes to her town house, and her mother-in-law still worries that she is too outspoken. But Mrs. Ribeiro says she is no longer ashamed of her country.

"I used to live here in constant irritation," she explained. "I was always nervous. When I tell you I hated to live in this country the way it was I am telling you the truth. I always wanted to get out. Now I feel jubilant. I want to stay and see what happens."

She said that the biggest change was in her attitude toward Portuguese men.

"I used to feel a lot of contempt for them. I used to think they were worthless, incapable of attempting anything noble. I know many other women who felt this same way. A friend called me up the other day and said the biggest surprise of the whole thing was to find out there are some men in Portugal."

Bad information costly to Xenia residents

By MARK ROTH
Dayton Journal Herald

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — A bureaucratic bobble by the Small Business Administration (SBA) may cost some Xenia tornado victims thousands of dollars in unnecessary interest payments to rebuild their homes.

The snafu erupted when SBA officials handed out incorrect information on the agency's disaster loan program for two weeks after the April 3 storm.

Many residents who lost their homes said SBA spokesmen advised them to use insurance proceeds to pay off existing mortgages, with the promise that they would then be eligible to get 5 per cent loans from SBA for the full amount needed to replace their houses.

Several homeowners did so, only to discover later that either they are not eligible for any SBA funds or can get only a limited loan.

As a consequence, many Xenians are now facing the prospect of scrambling for a new loan at today's higher interest rates to get all the money they need for reconstruction.

Wayne Luders, who arrived from Seattle to head the SBA disaster operation in Ohio just two weeks ago, admits that the misinformation "seems to have occurred here."

He said the problem arose because the first SBA officials to arrive here after the tornado did not clearly understand the loan program.

But he urged victims to "give us a chance to correct any mistakes that have been made."

Under the current law, in effect since July 1973, SBA can provide 5 per cent loans to disaster victims only for the amount of uninsured damage to their homes and personal property, with a ceiling of $55,000 per family.

In addition, the agency can help refinance existing mortgages, but only if 30 per cent or more of the damage is uninsured. Even then, the refinancing is limited to an amount no greater than the uninsured loss.

But the tornado-stricken homeowners contacted by the Journal Herald all said the restrictions were not mentioned when they first visited the SBA.

Instead, the residents said they were told simply that if their homes were leveled, they were eligible for 5 per cent SBA financing for whatever was needed to pay for rebuilding.

A case in point is Roger Alexander, whose home in the Windsor Park subdivision was so badly damaged that the city has scheduled it for demolition.

Alexander—who has been laid off from his job at Chrysler Airtemp since late January— still owed $16,300 on the home to Land Mortgages, Inc. of Dayton.

He received a full insurance payment of $18,700, and decided he wanted to rebuild on the same site.

A builders representative told Alexander it will cost roughly $16,500 to reconstruct an identical home. Alexander sent the insurance check to Land Mortgages and the week after the tornado went to see the SBA representative.

At that point, Alexander said he realized it would be unwise to use the insurance proceeds to pay off his existing 7 per cent mortgage unless he had solid assurances that he would qualify for a new SBA loan.

"I told the SBA man that I could still call and stop the (insurance) check if there was any doubt I would qualify on the SBA loan, and the SBA guy said there was no problem, even though I was out of work."

It was not until two weeks later, after they had filled out the application and returned it, that SBA "said I had no loss that was uninsured and so I wasn't eligible for a loan," Alexander said.

In other words, since it would cost less to rebuild the home than Alexander had received in insurance, he did not qualify for SBA assistance under the law.

In the meantime, though, Alexander had used his insurance to pay off his mortgage and had only $2,400 left over to apply toward rebuilding.

That leaves Alexander over $14,000 short of the sum he needs to rebuild, and since he is out of work, "I've been told I can't get a new loan; I can't get nothing."

If the SBA program had been correctly explained to Alexander the first time, he might have been able to keep his old mortgage alive and use his insurance funds to cover the cost of rebuilding.

Alexander said he has tried to get the old loan reinstated by Land Mortgages, but has been told it is impossible.

Earl Portner, loan service supervisor for Land Mortgages, explained why.

"The trouble is," Portner said, "Mr. Alexander didn't call us until two weeks after his old loan had already been canceled; we called the investor to see what could be done, but the investor said there was just no way the loan could be restored at the old interest rate."

But Luders and SBA attorney Jack Look claimed that where people have mistakenly paid off their original mortgages, SBA can influence the lending institutions to restore the old loans.

Profanity expert loves transcripts

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dr. Reinhold Aman takes a different view of the Watergate transcripts than the pastors and politicians who have criticized President Nixon for the salty language used in the White House.

"I just eat it up," said Aman, a professor of medieval German literature and an expert on swearing who can give 'em hell, damn and thousands of other expletives in 50 languages.

Aman, who teaches at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, sees swearing as a necessary means of letting off steam in almost every language.

"I don't advocate swearing," he said. "I don't encourage my children or students or friends to swear. I personally swear because there are so many things that bug me. That's why everyone swears, and almost everyone does."

Far from being shocked at the language in the White House transcripts, Aman finds it lacking in the very words he's interested in.

"Most of the time they are omitted, although you can sometimes predict what should be there," he said. "I've been sort of trying to fill in what it can be.

"I wish I could get all the expletives. That would be like winning at a lottery or something."

Aman, 38, has plenty of experience in dealing with nondeleted expletives. He has published several scholarly works on profanity patterns throughout the world and compiled dictionaries of cusswords to help explain the background and meaning of curses.

"Swearing is a means of letting off steam, to keep from getting ulcers and from keeping frustrations bottled up inside," said Aman.

"It should be use properly," he cautioned, adding that most people don't appreciate the finer points of cursing.

He said the unsophisticated curser aims insults at a foe's physical characteristics rather than gauging his cultural and educational background before using the verbal rapier.

Only a low-brow swearer relies on ethnic slurs, he said.

Americans are among the least refined cussers, largely because their profane vocabulary is 25 or fewer words, Aman said.

Among his favorites curses are Yiddish's "May all your teeth but one fall out so you can get a toothache," the rhymed insults of the Turks and the singing exchanges between Eskimoes.

"Tell me what swear words you use and I will tell you who you are," he said.

the Fayette County Planning Commission and members of the Fayette County Board of Commissioners had been invited to attend the public hearing in an attempt to reach a compatible set of standards for the city and county.

Developers and other concerned citizens have voiced objections to a set of subdivision regulations proposed by the county on numerous occasions.

Wolford said an effort should be continued to meet with commissioners and the county planning commission to reach an agreement on a compatible set of standards.

A PIECE of emergency legislation amending a codified ordinance pertaining to changing parking meter hours in Washington C. H. was approved. The change in enforcement hours for parking meters was approved by Council members at the last meeting. Most of the meters already have been converted.

Enforcement hours will be changed from 8 a.m. until 9 p.m. on Mondays and Fridays only. Meter regulations will be enforced until 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday. Typographical errors in the ordinance were corrected before approval by Council.

In other legislation, Council confirmed the appointments of Carl R. Elberfeld, 426 Rawlings St., to the City Zoning Board of Appeals and Mrs. Evelyn Graves, 219 Wagner Way, to the City Recreation Board.

COUNCIL AGREED to schedule a public hearing on June 26 to consider legislation on an application submitted by Donald P. Woods, 133 W. Circle Ave., to have a tract of land rezoned from residential to commercial to permit the construction of an office-type commercial complex, similar to Fayette Center.

The 5.794-acre tract of land is situated 428 feet east of Elm Street between the Washington Square Shopping Center and land owned by the Washington C. H. Board of Education.

Councilman Billie Wilson argued against the zoning change since he said the original intent of the residential zoning in that area was to serve as buffer zone between the school grounds and commercial property.

FIRE CHIEF Maynard L. (Joe) Denen presented a proposal requesting Council to explore the feasibility of purchasing an additional car for fire department officers.

Denen said an additional vehicle is needed by the department because of the increasing number of semi-emergency calls received.

Denen, who pointed out that there was no monetary loss in fires in Washington C.H. during March, said the department plans to launch a more intensive fire prevention program which would include an emergency index card system for city businesses and industries.

He also said the Fayette County Tuberculosis and Health Association had donated $500 to the department for the purchase of oxygen and pulmonary equipment to treat heart attack victims. The department has nine registered emergency medical technicians.

The department plans to keep its present 1965 model station wagon even if Council purchases an additional five-passenger vehicle. Wolford strongly supported Denen's request.

Rhoads said Council will be meeting in an executive session to consider the request.

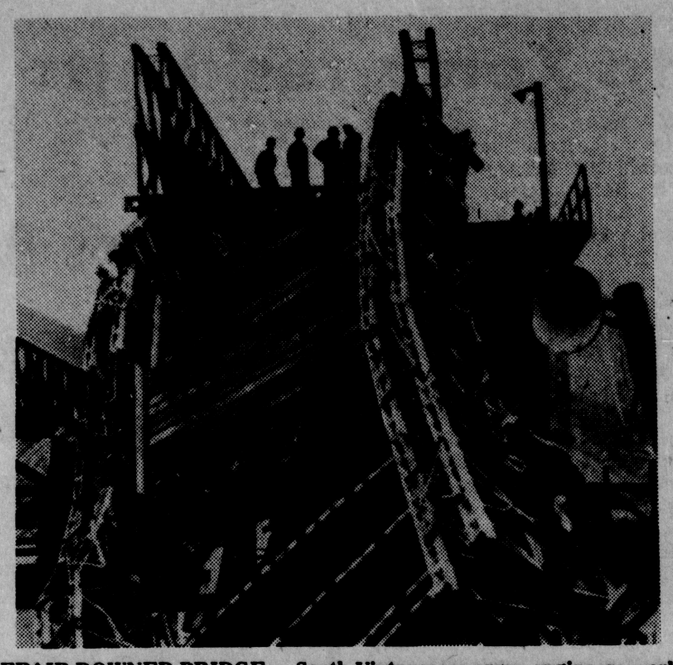
THE CITY'S LEGISLATORS agreed to retire a $60,000 debt which is due Friday on money borrowed in 1971 to construct storm sewers in the city. A total of $100,000 was borrowed for the five major projects and the debt has been reduced by $40,000 with annual installment payments. The debt will be retired with funds from the five-year, one-mill storm sewer levy.

Council also agreed to pay its annual fee of $1,000 to the Mid-Ohio Regional Health Planning Council, which is a lobbying organization which assists its 17-member counties to obtain federal funding for health services. Expert services also are provided by the organization and it was pointed out that the city received approximately $5,000 in consulting benefits from the organization last year for sewer treatment plant improvements.

Extension of sewer lines to a residence located just outside the city corporation limit on W. Elm Street and the launching of annexation procedures for the matter were approved by Council.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Gray, 726 W. Elm St., had requested the sewer line extension because of an emergency situation with sewage disposal at their residence.

The city has an ordinance which for the past 10 years has prohibited extension sanitary and storm sewers outside the city limits. The ban was waived and annexation proceedings were begun for the Gray residence.



REPAIR DOWNED BRIDGE — South Vietnamese army engineers work to repair a bridge wrecked by the Viet Cong recently at Bong Son in the province of Binh Dinh, South Vietnam. The bridge linked Saigon with the northern provinces. It was one of several such bridges destroyed by the VC as part of the "economic warfare" campaign.

VFW members plan park clean-up Saturday

Members of the Burnett-Ducey VFW Post No. 4964 in Washington C.H. will be collecting litter and conducting a general cleanup of three city parks Saturday morning.

The VFW post members have been granted permission by City Manager Dan Wolford to conduct the general cleanup campaign as the organization's annual civic project.

Ben Jamison, post commander, said the VFW post members would be sprucing up the grounds at Eyman and Christman parks and the park located on Rawlings Street.

the VFW members expect to start the project at 11 a.m. Saturday, according to Jamison.

Lawyers fight confidence loss

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The president of the Ohio State Bar Association said today the loss of confidence by the general public in the legal profession is a foremost problem.

Walter A. Porter of Dayton, in a prepared text, said, "Obviously many factors have combined to give rise to this conclusion. Perhaps it has been influenced by so many lawyers being involved in Watergate."

Porter said he is "keenly aware of the fact that our profession was, and remains deeply embroiled in the Watergate syndrome."

Some 10,000 Mounties now enforce federal laws in Canada.

MT Junior Achievers receive state awards

Two Miami Trace high school students received awards at the 22nd annual Junior Achievement Future Unlimited banquet, held Wednesday in the Ohio Student Union at Ohio State University, Columbus.

Regina Roush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roush, 8 Fent St., Jeffersonville, and a junior at MTHS, was a finalist in the J.A. of Central Ohio President of the Year contest. She was a member of Ramco III, a J.A. company, counseled by Armco Steel Corp's Metal Products Division.

Howard (Ike) Hixon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Hixon of 4920 CCC Highway-W and also a junior at MTHS, was awarded the Best Purchasing Manager of the Year award. He also was a member of Ramco III.

Both achievers received travelship awards to attend the National Junior Achiever's Aconference to be held Aug. 11-16, at Indiana University in Bloomington, Ind.

JUNIOR ACHIEVEMENT is an international, non-profit organization dedicated to the economic education of youth. In the past eight months more than 1,200 teenagers, from high schools located throughout Central Ohio, have been participating in the Junior Achievement program.

The Future Unlimited banquet concludes the year for 57 miniature companies, all formed in October 1973. These student-operated companies manufactured and marketed their own products or rendered a service under the guidance of volunteer adult advisors from businesses and industries located throughout Central Ohio.

Approximately 1,000 were in attendance at the banquet. About 600 of these were "teen-age tycoons" from Junior Achievement. They were joined by 400 adult business executives, parents and educators, symbolic of the way Junior Achievement instructs youth in the business of business.

ALSO AWARDED at the banquet were five company awards, 16 scholarships, 27 travelships to the National J.A. Conference (NAJAC) to be held in August and 9 awards to top individuals in officer catogories in J.A. companies.

General chairman and master of ceremonies for the event was Beaton F. Pettengill, executive vice president of Corco, Inc. Pettengill is a member of the board of directors of J.A. of Central Ohio, Inc., and currently is chairman of the J. A. Awards and Scholarship committee.

Americans face costly vacations

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
Associated Press Writer

Americans planning a vacation trip this summer should be prepared to pay more, start planning sooner and keep a careful eye on the gas gauge.

A nationwide Associated Press survey shows that families are not being scared away from planning summer vacations by high gasoline prices and the memory of winter shortages. But tourism officials say the summer vacationer plans to travel a shorter distance to find his spot in the sun and to stay put longer once he gets there.

The sharp increases in the price of food and energy will hit the summer traveler hard.

Some vacation areas report food and beverage prices up 20 per cent over last year, and federal officials foresee an average nationwide price for gasoline of 60 cents a gallon this summer, up from the current average of 54 cents for regular and 58 cents for premium. Some tourist areas predict it could go as high as 70 cents. Motel and hotel prices are also up in most tourist areas, but not significantly.

The overall effect means you'll pay up to 20 per cent more for the same vacation you took last year.

Many tourist areas suffered between a 20 and 40 per cent decline in business during the winter. But by April most reported business nearly normal again, and some expect a record summer.

The AP survey showed that traveling on Sundays could mean risking running out of gasoline this summer. There will be fewer gasoline stations open on Sundays for two reasons: (1) many stations do not need that day to sell their monthly allocation, and (2) some owners have gotten used to having Sundays off and aren't anxious to work. The American Automobile Association said Tuesday a survey showed 39 per cent of the nation's service stations open Sundays.

The AP survey also shows that most tourist areas have increased their advertising budgets and concentrated their messages much closer to home. Cape Cod resorts, for example, are advertising in a 300-mile radius instead of a normal 700 miles.

Major tourist areas such as Cape Cod, the Poconos, the Smoky Mountains, Southern California and the lake areas of Michigan and Wisconsin are running ahead of or even with 1973 on advance bookings. These areas said some persons who stayed only three or four days in the past are now making reservations for two weeks.

The economical traveler can cut costs. The AP survey found that in some areas the smaller motels and hotels had been hardest hit by the energy crisis and are less likely to be booked for the summer.

And special deals are available in most areas to tourists seeking them. Some of these offer extra nights in motels free of charge if tourists stay a certain length of time. Others include free rooms for children under 12 and free tickets to local points of interest. Tourists seeking these deals should check with chambers of commerce, travel agents and tourist bureaus.

The major concern is the availability of gasoline. Most officials say they're cautiously optimistic there will be enough. However, there is at least a possibility there won't.

The Federal Energy Office says the outlook for summer is that gasoline supplies will be 4 to 6 per cent below potential demand—the amount used in normal times. A recent AP survey showed that citizens are returning to their normal driving habits. If that continues the chances of spot gasoline shortages this summer are strong.

The energy office suggests that travelers seeking information on gasoline check with the American Automobile Association or phone ahead to their destination before leaving.

Honor awards presented as Masons meet

One 50-year award and five 25-year awards were presented at the regular meeting of Fayette Lodge of Masons held at the Masonic Temple, S. Main St., Wednesday night.

A 60-year award is to be presented to a member of Fayette Lodge, Robur I. Ogle, by a Masonic lodge in Tucson, Ariz., where he now lives, according to Harold V. Speelman, head of the lodge here.

Malcolm Grady, of Williamsport, district deputy grand master of the 8th Masonic District, made the presentations here. The 50-year pin and certifiicate of merit is an award made by the Grand Lodge F&AM of Ohio for 50 years of continuous membership. Receiving this honor was W. Henry Cheesman, of Englewood, head of the lodge here in 1928, now retired from the State Fire Marshal's department.

Twenty-five year pins are presented by the local lodge for 25 years of continuous membership. Present to receive these awards were C.L. Musser, A.E. Shelton, Dana Smith, Paul Thornhill and Cecil West.

Unable to be present but eligible for the 25-year pin were Quincy A. Cheadle, now of Maryland; James R. Elliott of Denver, Colo.; John E. Frost, of Bloomingburg; Charles L. Herman and Kenneth I. Miller, Washington C.H., and Edward E. Moser, of Britt, Iowa.

book, and a long one. A Washington radio station is broadcasting hour-long, nightly readings of the transcripts—a series that is to continue for 36 nights.

For the White House, one gamble now is public reaction to the sheer volume of what Nixon has disclosed. A crucial question is whether Americans will deem it enough because it is so much, despite the fact that it is not what the House panel or the special prosecutor sought.

There is in addition the question of how Congress and the courts will respond to Nixon's announced intent to withhold further tapes.

And there is another question mark, too: That of public and congressional reaction to the substance of the transcribed conversations Nixon released. The White House maintains that they prove the President "never engaged in a criminal plot to obstruct justice," and carried out his constitutional duty to enforce the law. There is debate about that now between Nixon's critics and his defenders.

But in any event, even in expurgated version, the transcripts show the seamy side of the Oval Office.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott has described the discussions as shabby, immoral and disgusting. The House GOP leader, Rep. John J. Rhodes, said he wouldn't quarrel with that.

At one point in the transcript for March 21, 1973, Nixon said:

"'I don't give a damn about the publicity. We could rock that through if we had to let the whole damn thing hang out, and it would be a lousy story for a month. But I can take it. The point is that I don't want any criminal liabilities. That is the thing that I am concerned about for the members of the White House staff."

That quote may still be operative. But White House concern now is with the battle over impeachment, and that involves the President, not the staff.

Police cite driver after city accident

A Lyndon woman was charged with improper lane change by police after an accident Wednesday.

Medrith M. Mitchell, 39, was cited after she collided with a car driven by Ruby E. Anders, 31, of 1115 S. Elm St., on Columbus Avenue, 50 feet east of Blackstone Street. Damage was moderate to both vehicles.

Defendant forfeits

A Washington C.H. man arrested for intoxication failed to appear in Municipal Court Wednesday. Acting Judge John P. Case accepted a $100 bond forfeiture from Robert C. Carter, 55, of Washington Manor Court, on the charge. He had been arrested by city police.

Band concert moved indoors

Unfavorable weather forecasts have forced a change in plans for the annual All-City Band Concert Friday night.

Charles L. Shaffer, band director at Washington Senior High School, said Friday's weather forecast calls for chilly temperatures and rain.

The band concert, originally scheduled to be staged at Gardner Park Stadium, will be held in the Washington Senior High School gymnasium.

The public is invited to attend the concert which will begin at 8 p.m. Friday.

Police checking gas theft attempt

An attempted gasoline theft is being investigated by city police.

Sometime between midnight and 8 a.m. Wednesday, the attempt at gas larceny was made at Larkins Arco Station, 205 W. Court St.

Investigating officers found the lock on the ground tank on the west side of the building broken and the nozzle broken off the front pump. But apparently no gas was taken.

A check cashed May 5 for $75 at the Washington Savings Bank, 150 E. Court St., was returned marked "account closed." The person whose name was signed was questioned by police and it was found the fradulent check and another check had been missing from her check book.

An video tape identification is being made of the man who cashed the check.

OU strike arbitration being sought

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio University Student Workers Union has voted to submit unsettled details of a union recognition election to arbitration.

Union President Mark Satchwell said he is to contact OU personnel director Ward Wilson today to request that the official obtain an arbitrator from American Arbitration Association.

OU President Claude R. Sowle has said he would agree to arbitration if negotiations came to a "total breakdown."

Wednesday afternoon, the union was presented with a new election proposal which included several modifications of earlier administration plans.

But Satchwell said about 75 union members Wednesday refused to accept requirements that at least 75 per cent of eligible student workers participate to validate the election.

Satchwell said union negotiators will ask the arbitrator to establish a 60 per cent validation figure.

Sharp quake jolts Japan; report death

TOKYO (AP) — A sharp earthquake jolted central Japan this morning, killing one woman and injuring 23 persons over a wide area of the Izu Peninsula, 70 to 100 miles southwest of Tokyo, officials said.

Twenty-nine persons, caught in a landslide, were still unaccounted for.

Police said the quake, which registered four on the Japanese scale of seven in the hard hit areas, destroyed 54 houses, including five in a fire that followed the tremor, and damaged 231.

Scientists in Honolulu said the quake registered 6.2 on the Richter scale. The quake that hit San Francisco in 1906 registered 8.3.

The quake hit shortly after 8:30 a.m. and lasted for several seconds.

The Meteorological Agency said the center was in the Pacific, 22 miles off Cape Irozaki, where it registered five. Seismographs measured four in Shimoda, Mishima and Shizuoka, all on Izu Peninsula, officials said.

The quake also registered four in Yokohama, 20 miles south of Tokyo, and three in Tokyo where buildings swayed and subways and commuter trains were momentarily stopped. No damage, however, was reported in Tokyo or Yokohama.

Police said rains and landslides which blocked roads in Izu were hampering rescue operations.

Officials said 83 aftershocks were recorded in 10 hours and the shocks were continuing.

Ohio retail sales continue upswing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Retail sales in Ohio in March continued on an upward swing, the Center for Business and Economic Research at Ohio State University reported today.

The center said total sales, seasonally adjusted, were 1 per cent higher in March than in February.

March sales were up 3 per cent from the same month last year.

would be the target of his campaign.

Celeste, who will face incumbent Lt. Gov. John Brown in November, and Tony P. Hall, who won the Democratic nomination to oppose Republican veteran Secretary of State Ted W. Brown in the general election, both were the party's endorsed candidates.

Gilligan earlier had said those two primary races were better indicators of the success or failure of the endorsement program than the Glenn-Metzenbaum battle.

In other contested GOP races Tuesday, Franklin County Prosecutor George C. Smith won the attorney general nomination and ex-state Rep. Roger Tracy was the choice for auditor. Smith will oppose incumbent Atty. Gen. William J. Brown and Tracy will challenge Thomas E. Ferguson, son of incumbent Auditor Joseph Ferguson.

The 22 incumbents seeking re-election to the 99-member Ohio House all won party nominations Tuesday. Five incumbents didn't run again, nine sought higher office and 61 were unopposed for renomination.

Feller wins court suit

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Bob Feller says he'll wait until things settle down before making plans with the former Mrs. George Wolf.

Mrs. Wolf was at his side Wednesday, smiling and crying happily after a Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court jury cleared the former Cleveland Indians' pitching great of alienation of affection charges.

"This is my fourth no-hitter," Feller remarked.

The 55-year-old Feller was sued by George E. Wolf, a grocer from Benton Harbor, Mich., for $1.5 million.

Wolf charged that Feller stole the love of his wife of 27 years, but Mrs. Wolf testified on the witness stand that love had left her marriage before she met Feller.

She and Feller admitted having had an affair that stretched back to 1966. She said Wolf knew of her relationship with Feller and encouraged it.

The jury of four men and four women deliberated 90 minutes before returning their unanimous verdict.

Wolf left the courtroom without a word. His attorneys said no appeal was planned.

Small businesses ask bigger slice

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Earlier this year the National Small Business Association presented congressmen with its view that small and medium-size businesses must be permitted a bigger share in the American economy.

The big three of big business, big government and big labor, the association's spokesmen asserted, ruled the land, formulating a national economic policy that:

"... discourages, handicaps, squeezes, and often destroys small business. Their actions are counterproductive, incestuous, and self-serving in nature. As a result, only the 'scraps on the table' are left for everyone else."

The injustice is clear, they claimed, in the areas of taxes, access to market and money raising — "would any fair-minded person say that equality of treatment is given to the would-be entrepreneur versus the economic power of an ITT although both want to enter the same field?"

But the impact of the small-business report to Congress really lies in pointing out the de facto situation. Here are some excerpts:

—In 270 of 413 manufacturing industries — that is, in 65 per cent of the industries for which figures are available — the eight largest companies account for 40 per cent or more of the value of shipments from their industry.

—In 1960, small and medium manufacturers had 50 per cent of the assets and 41 per cent of profits. By 1972 these corporations had only 30 per cent of assets, and 28 per cent of profits.

Citing Census Bureau figures, the association listed the percentage of shipments accounted for by the eight largest concerns in selected industries, based again on 1967 or 1970 figures.

Here are a few:

Cereal preparations, 97 per cent, chocolate and cocoa products, 90; chewing gum, 97; cigarettes, 100; woven carpets and rugs; 90; tire cord and fabric, 97; carbon black, 100; flag glass, 98; primary aluminum, 100; typewriters 99.

"By what accident or plan did we come to the point where a handful of giant companies can determine what foods will come to our tables and what that food will contain, and what it will cost?" the association asked.

And that's the question—not whether small business provides more variety, competitiveness and innovation, or whether big business produces sameness, administered markets and the status quo.

Is the country drifting into an era of superbig business, evading a decision and dealing with the event after the fact rather than attempting to influence its course?

Rather than drifting, is it being taken along a prescribed course by existing businesses that seek their own preservation rather than the overall good of the country?

Cincinnati to abide by court decision

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Cincinnati has agreed to abide by a U.S. District Court decision to hire enough blacks to make up 18 per cent of the fire department by 1980.

Judge David S. Porter gave the city the timetable. He also said past criminal records could not be a factor in a black applicant's hiring.

Wellman film festival opens

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Most motion picture directors are a little screwy. I know that fliers are, and I have been both, so draw your own conclusions."

The writer is William A. Wellman, whose 75 movies included "Wings," "Public Enemy," "Call of the Wild," "A Star Is Born," "Nothing Sacred," "Beau Geste," "The Oxbow Incident," "Story of G.I. Joe" (his favorite), "Battleground" and "The High and the Mighty."

Also such bombs as "Lady of Burlesque," "The Next Voice You Hear," "Westward the Women" and "Lafayette Escadrille" (his last, in 1958).

He wrote: "A bad picture is like a frightful birthmark on your face — it never leaves you, first run, second run, reruns, TV prime time, late time, lousy time; it's always there for people to stare at unbelievingly or turn away from or worse still turn off, or should that be better still?

"It's your eternal badge of embarrassment."

During his 38 years as a director, Wild Bill Wellman earned his name, laughing, brawling and bulling his way through 75 movies, five marriages, countless feuds and many friendships.

Now 78 and as feisty as ever despite a long battle with arthritis, the director is enjoying a belated spotlight.

Wednesday night marked the start of a 39-film Wellman festival at the Royal Theater in West Los Angeles, organized by the director's actor-son, William Jr., and sponsored by Tom Laughlin ("Billy Jack"), who was hired by Wellman for "Lafayette Escadrille."

Hawthorne is publishing Wellman's memoirs, "A Short Time for Insanity," a remarkable confessional that ranks among the best books about Hollywood.

It is not easily read. In parts it is as circuitous as "Finnegan's Wake." This is because Wellman chose to write it during a drug-laden recuperation from serious illness, and his fantasies mix with past reality. But Wellman is a superbly irreverent storyteller, as anyone can tell from a list of his screen credits.

Wellman is toughest on himself, but he saves some barbs for fellow workers during his studio years. He relates a long binge by Spencer Tracy, whom he describes as "freaky —the bottle never made him high, it always made him miserably low."

Louis B. Mayer, the autocrat of MGM studios, reminded Wellman of a praying mantis, which "feeds upon other insects and clasps its prey in forelimbs as if in prayer."

Wellman's fifth marriage, to Busby Berkeley dancer Dorothy Coonan, in 1933 took. They have seven children and 12 grandchildren. In recent years Wellman has spent his time enjoying his family, enduring constant pain (he broke his back in a World War I plane crash), drinking only beer ("I was not what you'd call a good drinker"), and writing.

He's already working on a second memoir, "Growing Old Disgracefully."

By BARB MARVIN

Here at Miami Trace, one of the highlights of the school year is the election of Folksingers in the spring.

This outstanding group of young people are selected by Cinda K. Stinson, director of the Folksingers. The chorale of around 50 are patterned after an Ohio State University group.

Not only have our Folksingers sung numerous times at the Ohio Theater, but also have received congratulations and awards from many organizations and well-known persons including Sen. Robert Taft.

The Folksingers perform at churches, civic organizations, Christmas programs, other schools (including the vocational school), and at various events in central Ohio.

Elise Hill and Brenda Garringer are the accompanists of the group. Old members are Jim Arledge, Denise Beoddy, Belinda Bonner, Beanie Cross, Don Davis, Brenda Garringer, Bob Holloway, Connie Hughes;

Doug Joseph, Tim Keaton, Gretchen Krieger, Dan Lowe, John Milstead, Bud Mountcastle, Mike Pierce, Jeff Ruth, Pam Straley, Carmen White, Jim Woods, Vernon Stanforth, and Jomi Warner.

New members are Leah Wlesh, Cindi Grover, Kathey Edwards, Cheryl Blue, Debbie Haines, Yvonne McCarty, Kathy Junk, Julie Fetters, Teresa McDonald;

Karmel Knedler, Cheryl Pendleton, Susan Coe, Jay Pendleton, Rusty Bainter, John Schlichter, Doug Welsh, Ed Binegar, Kevin Dunn, Keith Holbrook, Bob Phillips;

Jeff Smithson, Michael Kent, Bruce Fennig, Raymond Mick, Randy Beekman, and Mike Ferguson.

Alternates are Karen Brennan, Sherrie Holloway, Linda Varney, Angela Holbrook, Marilyn Creamer, Sam Grooms, and Kevin Higgins.

This Sunday there will be a carry-in picnic at Paula, Leah, and Doug Welsh's residence just outside Bloomingburg. Folksingers often get together at one another's homes, and this will be for both in-coming and outgoing members.

Frosh students receive tests

By DANNY PEARCE

For the past couple of weeks the freshman class of Miami Trace have been taken in groups of one busload a day to the Joint Vocational School near Wilmington. The purpose of the visit is twofold, the most important of which is to take the General Aptitude Battery, or GATBY test.

The written part of the test was taken in the mornings by the entire attending group. Then after lunch the freshmen split into two groups, one doing the manual part of the test while the other group toured the school, which was the second part of the test. The groups then reversed positions and the test was complete.

The GATBY test is a standard aptitude test and is being given to help the freshmen decide on their future occupations and what courses they might take if they enter the vocational school.

The guidance counselors — Mrs. Margaret Dowler, Mrs. Vickie Snow, and Mrs. Fred Doyle — accompanied them.

See rubber auto fronts coming soon

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—It's what's up front that counts, even in new-car bodies, a Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. executive said Wednesday.

Weight, corrosion and damage in minor collisions may drive auto manufacturers to turn to rubber for bumpers, rocker panels and maybe even fenders and door panels, Vice Chairman Richard A. Jay said.

"Petroleum shortages are making auto makers into fanatical weight watchers," Jay said. "Gasoline mileage will become a major selling point on new models."

Lightweight, rubbery materials can add to a car's life by resisting rust while saving on high repair costs by minimizing damage in minor collisions, Jay said.

A block of rubber is the impact-absorbing heart of one of the simplest and most reliable bumpers already in use, he said.

"Although a short-term scarcity of petrochemicals is affecting a portion of the plastics industry, feedstocks are expected to be adequate for both rubber and urethane, the prime candidates for auto body use," he said.

CONNIE STAYROOK

GARY TAYLOR

Seniors of the Week

By ANN CAMPBELL

"I have enjoyed my four years at Miami Trace, but I'm looking forward to graduation. My advice to the underclassmen is to enjoy your high school years because they go very fast," comments Connie Stayrook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Stayrook, Rt. 1, New Holland.

Connie has been very active this year. She is a member of AFS, Y-Teens, Folksingers, Vocal Council, and a member of the Grace United Methodist Church. Connie has also been a cheerleader all four years at Trace. Her talents were obvious as she sang and danced the lead role of "Nanette" in this year's production of "No, No, Nanette."

Her courses this year are Psychology, Sociology, Journalism, Speech, Government, Child Development, Housing, Symphonic Choir, and Bookkeeping.

In her spare time, she enjoys camping, water-skiing, and singing.

This fall, Connie will be attending Clark Technical College in Springfield where she will study to become a medical secretary.

Our next featured senior is Gary Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Taylor, Rt. 4, Washington C.H.

Gary has been very active in the field of farming. He has been a member of the Yatesville Producers 4-H Club, he's been in 4-H for nine years, is vice president of Junior Leadership, president of the Junior Fair Board, president of the Fayette County Farm Bureau Youth Organization, secretary and vice president of the Bloomingburg Presbyterian Youth Group, and a past president of FFA.

He loves to ride horses but says there is "not much time to do so after taking care of our sows and market hogs."

Gary has taken college preparatory courses up until this year. He now takes such subjects as Crop Production, Farm Power, Sociology, and Government. Gary leaves school at 1:30 to work on his farm.

Upon graduating, Gary will "continue farming with my father, then I'd like to, someday, raise purebred breeding swine."

Diane Oesterle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Oesterle, Rt. 1, New Holland, is our last senior of the week.

Diane' hobbies are bicycling, swimming, playing softball and basketball.

DIANE OESTERLE

She is taking Government, Advanced Math, World Literature, which is her favorite, Typing II, Physiology, and Art I.

Diane is very sports-minded. She played girls' basketball for two years, girls' softball for one year, and was in GAA. She is also in the Linguistic Arts Club.

After graduation, she would like to work for the government.

She says, "My years at Miami Trace have been very pleasant but I'm looking forward to graduation and the future."

"YOU WIN!" — was what these Record-Herald paper carriers were told because of their incentive in recruiting new customers, promptness in paying bills and perseverance in making deliveries. Left to right are: Shirley Arnold, tied for third place; Pam Estle, first place; Shirley Wimer, third place, and Jeff Scott, second place. Prizes consisted of cameras and record albums.

Cardinals turn back Cincinnati, 2-0

Curtis blanks Reds on three hits

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Three former Boston Red Sox players did in the Cincinnati Reds in back-to-back shutouts for the St. Louis Cardinals to sweep the two-game series.

"In spring training, I wouldn't have known either of them if they walked into my office," said Cards Manager Red Schoendienst.

He referred to pitchers Lynn McGlothen, 4-1, who set Cincinnati down with four hits Tuesday night and John Curtis, 2-3, who turned the trick with three hits Wednesday night.

"I know them both now," beamed Schoendienst. "Curtis' control was better, that was a big change. He's got good stuff and if he gets the ball where he wants it he'll win."

Outfielder Reggie Smith, another ex-Red Sox, crashed two hits scoring Lou Brock in the sixth and eighth innings to down Don Gullett, 2-3. He has also been the Reds nemesis for St. Louis which has taken four of five games from the Reds this season and is 11 for 21 at the plate. He has 26 runs batted in and is hitting .375.

All three came to the Cardinals in trades over the winter.

"I knew I wasn't going to start the season bad," said Smith. "When you're happy you plan well and I'm happy just being away from Boston. I always identified with the National League. In Boston there was undo knocking in the media towards me and I wasn't exactly pleased with the guys.

"There were too many immature players who were too busy watching what the other guys did instead of taking care of themselves."

Curtis said he felt in control throughout the game.

"I must be part duck because the rain did not bother me at all," he joked. The game was played under a tornado watch from the National Weather Service, but no storm conditions materialized.

"I've been fed up with the early walks and some other bull that I've been doing out on the mound. That's just not me. I just decided to go out there and get with it tonight," he said.

Curtis erased the final 18 men he faced with the help of two double plays turned in by the Cardinals, both involving catcher John Bench who had two Reds hits.

It was the first time the Reds, 1973 Western Division champs, suffered back-to-back shutouts in 142 games. The Cubs did it to them in May, 1973.

Reds Manager George "Sparky" Anderson was philosophical about the double loss.

"You run into these things when you're just not hitting. It goes in streaks," he said.

Cincinnati was held to only seven hits in the two-game stint. Cincinnati is idle today and opens a three-game series with Houston here Friday. St. Louis heads for Montreal.

Mayberry's shot gives Royals 4-2 victory

By The Associated Press

Kansas City slugger John Mayberry didn't have to call his own shot Wednesday night against Texas ace Ferguson Jenkins. His manager did it for him.

"Just before John went up to the plate I cautioned him about trying to pull Jenkins' sliders and curves down the line," said Royals' skipper Jack McKeon. "I told him just to aim for the 370-foot sign ... and that is where the ball went."

Mayberry's fifth homer, a two-run shot in the eighth inning, carried over the 370-foot sign in right field and gave the Royals a 4-2 victory over the Rangers, snapping Jenkins' personal five-game win streak and extending the Rangers' losing streak to four.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Boston Red Sox blanked the New York Yankees 4-0; the Oakland Athletics whipped the Baltimore Orioles 7-3; the Cleveland Indians downed the California Angels 32 in 11 innings; and the Chicago-Detroit and Minnesota-Milwaukee games were rained out.

Despite the loss, the Rangers hung on to first place in the West by a half-game over California.

Red Sox 4, Yankees 0

Bill Lee shackled New York on five hits and Carl Yastrzemski contributed a two-run single for Boston. Lee, who evened his record at 3-3, was helped by four double plays. Dick McAuliffe and Dwight Evans drove in the other Red Sox runs with singles.

Athletics 7, Orioles 3

Lefty Vida Blue recorded his first victory after four losses as Oakland snapped a three-game losing streak. Reggie Jackson, Bert Campaneris and Gene Tenace drove in two runs apiece for the A's. Earl Williams clubbed a two-run homer for Baltimore.

Indians 3, Angels 2, 11 innings

Cleveland tied it in the ninth on John Lowenstein's sacrifice fly and won it two innings later when George Hendrick doubled and Ossie Blanco singled him home. The surging Indians have won 10 of their last 12 games and have beaten California six straight times this season. The Angels scored one run while Cleveland was completing a double play and the other on an error by Tribe catcher Dave Duncan.

Bats silenced by NL hurlers

By The Associated Press

The National League is the hitters' league, right?

Don't tell that to a couple of refugees from the American League.

Their names are John Curtis and Jim Lonborg—although a lot of hitters are probably using more picturesque names today.

Curtis silenced Cincinnati's potent bats with a three-hitter Wednesday night, hurling the St. Louis Cardinals to a 2-0 triumph over the Reds.

Lonborg went him even one better. The former American League Cy Young Award winner manhandled San Diego, checking the Padres on two meaningless singles and pitching the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-0 victory.

In Wednesday night's other NL games, the New York Mets beat San Francisco 4-2, Los Angeles defeated Montreal 6-3 and Houston belted Pittsburgh 8-6 in 12 innings. Atlanta at Chicago was rained out.

Phils 4, Padres 0

Lonborg's shutout Wednesday was the first of the year by a Philadelphia pitcher and his first in the National League. He held the Padres to singles by John Grubb in the fourth inning and Willie McCovey in the seventh.

Mets 4, Giants 2

Jon Matlack pitched a fourhitter for the Mets—one of the hits a Bobby Bonds homer—and Jerry Grote and Felix Millan drove in two runs apiece to beat San Francisco.

Dodgers 6, Expos 3

Steve Garvey hit a two-run double in a four-run first inning that gave Andy Messersmith all the runs he needed to turn back Montreal.

Home runs by Ron Cey in the fifth and Jimmy Wynn in the seventh gave the Dodgers their other runs. Ron Fairly belted a two-run shot for the Expos.

Astros 8, Pirates 6

Dave Parker put Pittsburgh on top in the top of the 12th with a solo homer—but Doug Rader unloaded a three-run shot in the bottom of the inning to vault the Astros past the Pirates.

Ladies have nine winners in golf outing

Thirty-two ladies participated in the Wednesday morning Ladies Golf Association at the Washington Country Club.

In the Class A division, Shirley Willoughby recorded the best score with a 51. Katie Moore registered 16 putts in her round and low net was won by Fran Junk's 41.

Jane Wintringham shot a 59 for low score honors in the Class B group. Sally Hagerty was the top putter with 17 putts and Helen Flee turned in a 44 net score.

Phyllis Lehman's 60 was tops in the Class C division. Linda Cramer had 18 putts and Dorothy Mahoney finished with a net score of 50.

Philadelphia Flyers seek to boost morale

BOSTON (AP) — The Philadelphia Flyers have adopted a "You Gotta Believe" battle cry in hopes of squaring things against the Boston Bruins tonight in the second game of the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup final series.

The Flyers have not won in Boston since their NHL expansion club posted a 4-2 victory in its first appearance at the Garden Nov. 12, 1967, and Coach Fred Shero admittedly was concerned.

"I think losing so much to Boston in the past has affected us," Shero said after the Bruins' 3-2 victory in the best-of-seven series opener Tuesday night.

Men's golf league

Because of the bad weather Wednesday evening, the men's golf league was rained out at the Washington Country Club. The men will make up their mtaches this Monday evening.

Nets' series sweep eliminated

Stars find new life with 97-89 win

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — "We lucked out in the third game and made too many mistakes in the fourth," declared New York Nets' rookie Coach Kevin Loughery who now must rally his forces.

Injured Ron Boone proved the decisive factor Wednesday night in the Salt Palace as Utah's Stars escaped oblivion with a fourth-quarter rally and a 97-89 victory over the Nets in their American Basketball Association championship series.

Although New York leads the best-of-seven series, Loughery has problems.

On Monday night here, a last-second three-point shot by Brian Taylor knotted the count at the end of regulation play and the Nets went on to win 103-100 in overtime.

Boone suffered an unusual injury in the second game of the championship playoffs. His left hook caught Taylor in the teeth and severed a tendon in Boone's left hand.

He plays with the fingers taped and bandaged and on Monday scored only two points.

"I had a little less padding on my hand and the shots were just falling for me," the five-year pro veteran from Idaho State said. "We gained a lot of confidence."

The Stars also have an improved Zelmo Beaty and the 6-foot-9 pivotman kept Utah in the game with 14 points in the third quarter as New York outscored the home club 34-24 and took a 76-74 lead. He had 18 for the night.

In the final period, the New Yorkers scored only 13 points and ace Julius Erving had none although finishing as the Nets' leading scorer at 18.

"We were not nearly aggressive enough," Loughery said. "We'll have to pick up hustle for Friday. We are just fortunate to have the 3-1 lead."

No team in major professional basketball ever has lost three straight in a best-of-seven playoff start and rallied to win four in a row.

Beaty, who suffered a gland infection, missed the first two games in New York, but he's now back in action and appears to be gaining full strength.

"We expected him to start hitting sooner or later," said Loughery, "and sure enough, he did. We tried to double up on defending against him, but he hit a bunch in a row there in the third quarter."

Borg's play shows plenty of maturity

DALLAS (AP) — He's just 17, and doesn't shave. He has a mop of unruly blond hair that flies like a pony's tail. He looks like a kid who has been separated from his mother at the supermarket.

But don't let Bjorn Borg's callow youth fool you.

"If you don't take him seriously he will murder you," says the veteran tennis star Rod Laver. "He's mature and he's very good."

Laver should know. He lost to Bjorn 6-1, 6-1 in the semifinals of the World Championship Tennis tournament this year in Barcelona.

"He could be the best 17-year-old tennis player who has ever lived," says Arthur Ashe. Ashe's career record against the youngster is 2-3, losing twice this year.

Ashe and Borg clash in one of the remaining opening-round matches of the WCT tourney tonight at the Moody Coliseum. It's Borg's first appearance in the pros' $100,000 event.

Bjorn Rune Borg of Sweden is the new wonder kid of tennis, acclaimed the greatest teenager to reach the big time since Ken Rosewall and Lew Hoad toured the world for Australia in 1952.

"I don't miss school much," says Bjorn, who dropped out after his first year in high school. "I don't know what I could learn in school to make more money than I make now."

The good-looking Swede earned $49,100 on the pro circuit last year. So far in the young 1974 season he has picked up $55,145. A victory in the WCT finals here—a longshot but possible—would net him another $50,000.

"We have heads of companies in Stockholm who don't make that much money," Bjorn says realistically.

Lancaster hosting sectional track

BY LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

For many tracksters, the long journey to the state high school track championships begin tomorrow with the Class AAA Sectional.

Miami Trace, under the guidance of coach Fred Zechman, will be competing at Lancaster High School with 13 other schools. A scratch meeting will be held at 2 p.m. and the preliminaries will be under way at 3 p.m.

According to Zechman, four members of his squad have good chances of qualifying for the district meet. The top three finishers in each event will advance to the district, which is to be held at Upper Arlington High School next week.

The four tracksters Zechman was referring to were Ron Warnock, David Steinhauser, Clay King and Ernie Perry. Warnock will be competing in the shot put, in which his best put this season is 50' 10". Steinhauser, who is entered in the high jump, has leaped six feet this year. King has turned in a 53.1 in the 440 and Perry is one second off of the school mark in the two mile, as he was clocked in 10:29.4 Tuesday evening.

The sectional track meet is not a new addition to the schedule. In past years, the tournament trail consisted of district, regional and state track meets. The regional meet, which was just a qualifying meet for the state and not for team competition, was dropped from the agenda and tracksters qualified for the state through the district meets.

Ohio High School Athletic Association officials agreed that the sectional meet was needed. Actually, the sectional meet now takes the place of the district and the district takes the place of the abandoned regional meet.

Hardship cases eligible for draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Scoring aces James "Fly" Williams of Austin Peay, Gary Brokaw of Notre Dame and Campy Russell of Michigan and rugged rebounder Maurice Lucas of Marquette head a list of 20 college undergraduates who will be eligible for the National Basketball Association's May 28 college draft as hardship cases.

Williams is a sophomore, the others juniors. They will become eligible to play pro ball next season, ahead of their classmates, under the NBA's hardship system whereby a player obtains special classification because of financial need.

Also accepted for the NBA's hardship draft were Alvan Adams, Oklahoma; Jimmy Baker, Nevada; Michael Sojourner and Luther Burden, Utah; Rubin Collins, Maryland Eastern Shore; John Edward Drew, Gardner Webb; David Mitchell, West Florida; Eric Money and Coniel Norman, Arizona; Roscoe Pondexter and his brother Clifton Pondexter, Long Beach State; Robert Taylor, San Francisco State; Mel Utley, St. John's, N.Y.; Henry Williams, Jacksonville; Rudy Jackson, formerly of Hutchinson Junior College, and Michael Washington, Southeastern Community College.

The 6-foot-5 Williams was the nation's third-leading scorer in 1973-74, averaging 27.5 points per game. As a freshman he averaged 29.5 points per game to rank fifth in the nation.

Brokaw, a guard, was a key man on the fifth-ranked Notre Dame team that ended UCLA's 88-game winning streak. The Irish finished 26-3 for the season.

Russell, a 6-8 forward, averaged 23.7 points per outing for sixth-ranked Michigan, 22-5. Lucas, 6-9, helped Marquette to a 26-5 record and a No. 3 ranking.

Race driver not after sympathy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Salt Walther appreciates the sympathy, but he is ready for people to stop feeling sorry for him. Now he just wants to race.

"Yes, I do get a little tired of people feeling so sorry for me," the husky 26-year-old driver admitted. "So many people come up to me and say 'Gee, that was a terrible accident you had; what a recovery you've made.'"

"It's nice to have people so concerned, but I begin to wonder if people know me because of my driving talents or just the wreck," the Dayton, Ohio, driver added. "If anything, I hope people remember me because of my comeback, not the accident."

Walther spent 2½ months in a hospital, recovering from disfiguring burns suffered in a flaming 12-car accident at the start of the 1973 Indianapolis 500-mile race.

Nine months after the crash, he was racing again. He piloted his new blue and white McLaren — once driven by the late Peter Revson — to an eighth-place finish in his first outing, a 100-mile qualifying race at Ontario, Calif. He performed well in two other races, one in which he received superficial burns during a pit fire.

Now he is back at Indianapolis, practicing for his third 500-miler. His first day on the track, Monday, he attacked the 2½-mile course, turning in some of the fastest early speeds.

Red China edges toward Olympics

LONDON (AP)—The Peoples Republic of China is moving closer week by week to participation in the Olympic Games.

By the end of next week the Chinese could be fully fledged members of five international federations governing Olympic sports.

They have been edging towards this target for the last six months.

SHAMROCK 4-H

Robin Hicks collected dues for the meeting of the Shamrock 4-H Club. Angels Stephens gave roll call and for recreation, all went to the park to play. Most of the girls wanted to wade in the water near the dam. The leader told all members to bring permission slips. After recreation, every one returned to the leader's house and the meeting was closed with the 4-Pladge.

The second meeting was when all members were assigned a project of making a scarf for the next meeting. Robin Hicks collected dues and roll call was made by Angela Stephens. Sue and Melinda Showalter held the flag for the Pledge of Allegiance and Star Spangled Banner. Then the group went to the park for races and a baseball game.

Jennifer Slager, reporter

COUNTRY COUSINS

Congratulations were offered to Dee Dee Lange, who won the food and nutrition award and Lynne Rapp for her award in the bread project, in the Ohio 4-H awards program. These girls will represent Ohio this fall at Chicago, Ill. Further congratulations were offered to Marlene Braun who is the Fayette County Feef Queen this year. All three girls are members of the Country Cousins.

"Purple Promises" was the title of Joan McCoy's devotions.

Cynthia Cunningham passed out health records to the girls and explained them. "Tornadoes" was the topic of Elizabeth Cunningham's safety report. One of the most important things to do is turn on the television to Chanel 13, when it comes on turn it to a darker color, then turn to Chanel 2 and if or when a lighter color comes on this show that a tornado is approcaching. Then one should find a safe place, such as a basement to stay, she said.

Sandy Lewis gave a demonstration on "How to Place a Pattern."

Sheila Gordon led the group in a game and refreshments were served by the hostesses, Diana O'Pry and Sharon Self.

Nancy Rapp, reporter

CRAFTY CRAFTSMEN 4-H

A regular meeting was held in the home of Eric VanZant with all members of Crafty Craftsmen 4-H Club present. A very good safety talk on "Fire Hazards Around the Home and Farm" was made.

There was a question provided about the type of fire extinguisher which would be used for certain fires. There was a pamphlet handed out called "17 Ways to Reduce Fire Hazards."All members were asked to go home and check on all of these hazards.

The next meeting will be at Wayne Hall in Good Hope.

GIRL SCOUT TROOP 612

Girls Scout Troop 612 left May 3 for a two night primitive camping trip in Camden. We returned May 5. The girls cooked all their own meals over an open camp fire, and we dug our own latrines and put up a cover to shelter it.

Saturday was spent hiking and exploring the woods. The hike was especially rewarding when we discovered a creek bank of blue clay. At night we had a large camp fire where we kept warm while we sang songs and told ghost stories.

In spare time, we swung on the many grape vines surrounding the camp. We all earned our troop campers badge and started requirements for our gypsy badge.

Those attending were Carla Barnett, Kim Irons, Lisa Winters, Tammy Stone, Kim Thompson, Sandy Stone, Paula Cummins, Terri Williams, Denice Coder, Lori Wilson, Daphne Moran, Loretta Jette, and Brandi Wilson from Troop 612.

Tara Wilson and Ruby Elliott came from GS Troop 1203, and Carol Van Hoose came from a Girl Scout Troop in West Alexandria. Jenny Barnett, Tommy Coder, Martha VanHoose and Nancy Sink were guests of the troops. Adults accompanying the girls were Mr. and Mrs. William Barnett, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Yahn and Mrs. Tom Coder.

Opening lead - two of diamonds.

Obviously one should tend to avoid a finesse that produces no profit when it succeeds and is expensive when it fails. The principle is self-evident, but the type of hand where it applies is not always easy to recognize.

South was in six hearts and West led a diamond. Declarer finessed the queen, losing to the king, and later went down one even though the club finesse succeeded.

Had South taken the ace of diamonds, drawn trumps, and then tried the club finesse, the story would have been altogether different. South's diamond loser would have gone on dummy's fourth club and he would have lost only a spade trick.

When you think about the matter, it becomes clear that what led to South's undoing was the diamond finesse at trick one. The fact is that the finesse could not help South to make his contract. If West had the king, the finesse would work all right, but it would not bring South any closer to home.

Before playing to trick one, South should have pondered over what he required to make the contract. As a spade loser is inevitable in any case, it is evident that South cannot make the hand unless the club finesse succeeds. It is equally evident that if the club finesse is due to succeed, South does not need the diamond finesse.

To finesse the diamond is an absolutely futile gesture. The finesse clearly jeopardizes the slam and hence incurs an unnecessary risk.

The only time the diamond finesse shows a profit is when West has the king of diamonds and East has the queen of clubs. In that event declarer saves a trick by going down one instead of two, but this is surely an insignificant factor where a slam is concerned.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Vaccinations Still Necessary?

A few years ago our children were not allowed to enter school unless they were vaccinated. I now hear that this is no longer necessary. Is this true and why?

Mrs. V. P., N.J.

Dear Mrs. P.:

I assume that you are referring to vaccination against smallpox. There has been a distinct change in attitude in recent years about the need for this vaccination. This is because the disease is considered to be wiped out.

Public Health officials at this time no longer require evidence of vaccination for readmittance to the United States after foreign travel.

The safety record is apparently so great that some states may not require vaccination for entrance to schools.

If you are referring to protection against diphtheria, whooping cough, measles, German measles, tetanus, and polio there may not be a legal requirement, but certainly children deserve the protection from all of these diseases.

A single loss of life, anywhere in the world, because of inadequate protection is a tragedy that must be avoided.

Mrs. E. E., Ga.

Dear Mrs. E.:

Many people refer to "stomach pains" when they really mean "abdominal pains." You apparently are concerned with pains in the abdomen.

Pains, cramps and spasms are usually unimportant. Occasionally, however, these pains, cramps and spasms may be symptoms of more serious underlying conditions.

For this reason there is no universal rule about the choice of hot or cold applications. For example, the simple, easily recognized pain of menstrual cramps can benefit from heat.

A cyst on the ovary or an attack of appendicitis may, on the other hand, definitely be harmed by heat.

Persistent abdominal pain associated with nausea, vomiting and diarrhea should not be treated by home remedies of any kind. Enemas can convert a simple problem into a complicated one.

The character, the intensity, and the distribution of pain is of extreme diagnostic importance to the doctor. Both hot and cold can mask or hide pain and give a false sense of security in some abdominal disorders.
